QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I plan to submit new and material evidence related to my service-connected condition for consideration by a Veterans Administration regional office rating board. I have already filed notice of appeal. Must I first withdraw the appeal before I submit the new evidence?

A—No. New and material evidence may be submitted for consideration by the regional office rating board at any time prior to certification of the appeal and transfer of the claims file to the Board of Veterans Appeals.

Q—Does a widow or widower permanently lose entitlement to Veterans Administration benefits if he or she remarries?

A—No. A widow or widower may reclaim eligibility for Veterans Administration benefits if the remarriage is terminated by death, divorce or annulment.

Q — My claim for compensation for a World War II service disability has now been approved by the Veterans Administration. Am I now eligible for service-disabled veterans insurance?

A — You are not eligible if your only service was during World War II. Service-disabled veterans insurance is availabe only to those veterans released from active service under other than dishonorable conditions after April 24, 1951.

Q — My father reached age 78 in March 1979. Is he eligible for the 25 per cent increase in his Veterans Administration pension?

A — No. Public Law 95-588 eliminated the 25 per cent increase in rates for veterans attaining age 78 on or after January 1, 1979. However, those pensioners who attained age 78 before January 1, 1979, do retain the 25 per cent pension increase they received.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I plan to submit new and material evidence related to my service-connected condition for consideration by a Veterans Administration regional office rating board. I have already filed notice of appeal. Must I first withdraw the appeal before I submit the new evidence?

A—No. New and material evidence may be submitted for consideration by the regional office rating board at any time prior to certification of the appeal and transfer of the claims file to the Board of Veterans Appeals.

Q—Does a widow or widower permanently lose entitlement to Veterans Administration benefits if he or she remarries?

A—No. A widow or widower may reclaim eligibility for Veterans Administration benefits if the remarriage is terminated by death, divorce or annulment.

Q — My claim for compensation for a World War II service disability has now been approved by the Veterans Administration. Am I now eligible for service-disabled veterans insurance?

A — You are not eligible if your only service was during World War II. Service-disabled veterans insurance is availalbe only to those veterans released from active service under other than dishonorable conditions after April 24, 1951.

Q — My father reached age 78 in March 1979. Is he eligible for the 25 per cent increase in his Veterans Administration pension?

A — No. Public Law 95-588 eliminated the 25 per cent increase in rates for veterans attaining age 78 on or after January 1, 1979. However, those pensioners who attained age 78 before January 1, 1979, do retain the 25 per cent pension increase they received.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

November 7, 1979
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
October 16, 1979

Pursuant to Adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 7 p.m., October 16, 1979.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

The Board proceeded to discuss the 1980 proposed Budget presented by the various Office and Department Heads in an attempt to justify the proposals and to be made aware of any changes that were being contemplated in any of the Departments.

The County Court Budget was reviewed with Judges Harren and Jorgenson and the need was indicated that some new equipment was needed and an additional Secretary should be added. This was reflected in the Clerk of Court Budget.

Veterans Service Officer asked that the Board consider funding his Office on a full time basis.

The Treasurer, Highway Department, Sheriff and Auditor were questioned with no substantial changes being asked for. The County Attorney indicated a problem with the time involved with County work and indicated a probability that an Assistant would have to be added.

No action was taken on any of the requests.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that the meeting adjourn to convene at 9:00 A.M., Oct. 23, 1979. Motion carried.

The motion for the adoption of the foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and upon vote being taken thereon, the following voted in favor thereof: All present in favor and the following voted against the same: none whereupon said resolution was declared duly passed and adopted.

IT IS TO BE NOTED AT THIS POINT that this sale of bonds regulates the interest rate on the Liens being filed on the seven (7) various ditches for collection over the next 10 years. The rate shall be 7 per cent on said Liens.

Moved by Koop seconded by Stenberg that the funds available from Revenue Sharing in the amount of $161,083.00 for the 11th Entitlement Period be tentatively allocated according to schedule before the Board and the Auditor was instructed to publish said proposed allocation and advertise that a public hearing will be held according to Revenue Sharing regulations in the Courthouse in the City of Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1979. Motion declared adopted unanimously.

At 4:00 P.M. the Board moved to the 1st Floor Meeting Room to conduct a Public Hearing as required by Law for replacement of a Bridge over the Red Lake River at the South-East edge of the City of St. Hilaire as duly advertised and called for. A full transcript of the proceedings were taken by Court Reporter and made a part of the total Bridge proceedings, of record in the Office of the Highway Engineer.

The Chairman of the Board called the meeting to order and announced the purpose of the hearing and asked that Engineer Arvid Olson continue to 'Chair' the hearing. Approximately 30 people were in attendance.

Engineer Olson read an opening statement into the record indicating the purpose of the hearing and then asked for statements from those supporting the installation of the bridge.

Mayor James Gavin of St. Hilaire spoke briefly of the need for the additional bridge and this was followed by presentations by business people and members of the St. Hilaire City Council.

The opposition was then asked to speak and Attorney Paul Ihle took charge and in behalf of Doug Dehnert proceeded to document by questioning Mr. Dehnert and entering maps and photos of the area. Other owners in the area were questioned relative to their position on the matter. Attorney Ihle presented J.F. Quinlivan, a planner for the City of Thief River Falls, and questioned him relative to a professional approach. The opposition consumed the greater part of an hour on presenting their case.

The Board then adjourned the Hearing and continued their County Board meeting in the Commissioners' room.

Because of the late hour and because of the need for the Board to attend another meeting at 7 P.M. Moved by Tasa seconded by Stenberg that the meeting adjourn to convene at 7:00 P.M., Thursday, Oct. 25, 1979. Motion carried.

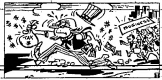
The Public Interest

REGULATION—THE PENALTY FOR SUCCESS

Irdnically, business often functions more immediately in your interest than do the so-called "public interest advocates." In this article, a distinguished American businessman, the president of the Formica Corporation, shows how your interests and those of business intermesh.

By Martin B. Friedman



You pay for government regulations in the form of higher prices and tax dollars. How much protection is too much?

Certain individuals and organizations in government want to bring business "to heel." Then they criticize business for speaking out in protest against being brought "to heel."

Businesses represent many billions of dollars in investment across our land, millions of jobs for Americans, and no small portion of the future health and viability of our country. We have the right to a voice in public policy debates.

Friedman

Businesses have constituencies, just as government agencies and officials do. Our constituencies include employees and prospective employees, shareholders, managers, suppliers, customers and our local communities, as well as the national community that benefits from our labors. We have the right to assume an advocacy role on issues of importance to these people.

In many cases, the constituency of a given business may be larger than that of many public agencies, and its relationship to that business more relevant to the real-life concerns and everyday interests of individual Americans.

The elected public official has a demanding constituency that cares about both his philosophy and performance—and holds him directly accountable.

The appointed official, however, is a level removed from the public—observed by and accountable to none but the most keenly involved special interests. The public in whose name so much is done, knows little or nothing about his personal philosophy or performance.

In the past few years, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has devised new ways of looking at thousands of businesses. My company, for instance, Formica Corporation, has been locked in a struggle with the FTC since last May when the agency decided to have our trademark—which is also our company name—canceled on the grounds that it had become generic.

The FTC says the Formica name has stifled competition, yet many of our competitors have spoken out against the FTC action. The FTC apparently feels we have abused the public trust. But no consumers have complained about us. If we haven't stifled competition, and we haven't wronged consumers, what have we done? We've been too successful. We've become too well-known!

It is difficult to see how spending millions of dollars in taxpayer and consumer monies on pursuit of trademarks will either lower costs and prices or lessen inflation—or to see how stripping famous trademarks will increase innovation.

NEWS OF HEALTH

How To Care Better For Mind And Body

Do you know one thing that can probably do more to promote your good health and prevent disease than hospitals, doctors and medicine?

It's you as an individual, according to the U.S. Surgeon General's Report on Health Promotion and Disease Prevention, released after two and a half years of research.

Both the government and medical profession are urging Americans to make changes in their living habits that will promote a healthier existence, especially since the cost of health care is going up.

Staggering 1979 statistics show that the cost of living has risen 74 percent in 25 years, but medical care costs have soared 330 percent! Experts say the major causes of many expensive illnesses are habits over which people have a degree of control—alcohol abuse, smoking, overeating and chronic stress.

These and other facts about health are the theme of a new film, "The Wellness Revolution," commissioned by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. The 27-minute health film explores the care of body and mind through relaxation, exercise, stress management and nutrition.

Ways to achieve better health can be easy to learn from a new health film.

Narrated by Dick Van Patten, star of the ABC-TV series "Eight Is Enough," the new movie features a cast of experts in various fields, such as stress researcher Dr. Hans Selye, founder of the International Institute of Stress at the University of Montreal, and Dr. Robert Arnot, sports medicine center director at Lake Placid for the 1980 Winter Olympics.

"The Wellness Revolution" is available on a free-loan basis through Modern Talking Picture Service, 5000 Park Street, N., St. Petersburg, FLA 33709. When ordering the film, refer to it as "Digest 11899."

Showing this movie to your club or group could suggest ways for your members to participate in the wellness revolution.

GOOD PSYCHOLOGY

People who study people have found that one can work faster, more accurately and with more pleasure at a job in which the tedious and repetitious is at a minimum.

People who want to do well in business have found that one way to make jobs more interesting is to get the proper tools, such as a microcomputer. The new TRS-80 Model II from Radio Shack, for instance, can make tasks like inventory, general ledger posting, payroll and accounts receivable fast and easy.

Awareness Of Library Goal Of Promotion

"Be With a Book for a Day", a nationwide support program for the White House conference on libraries and information services, will take place in Minnesota November 15-19. Program intends to involve all citizens in an effort to expand public awareness on the importance of libraries.

According to Bill Asp, director of the Minnesota office of public libraries and inter-library cooperation, this is a followup to the successful pre-White House conference called by ex-Governor Rudy Perpich and conducted in Minneapolis during September 10-12, 1978.

"Be With a Book for a Day" emblem, featuring the White House on an open book, will be distributed to Minnesota citizens via public, school, academic and special libraries. Civic groups, youth groups and service organizations will also assist in getting the emblems onto wearers in all sections of the state.

In addition to thousands displaying their support for libraries with the diamond-shaped symbol, people are being asked to carry a book during the period November 15-19, as an indication of their interest in libraries.

Governor Albert Quie will celebrate "Be With a Book for a Day" by a ceremony adding new books to the collection of Minnesota books housed in the governor's mansion and said he would personally be with a book that week of November 15-19. All residents in Minnesota are urged to visit a library during the period, pick up an emblem, and check out a book.

According to Wayne Alfveby of Northwest regional library "if you don't have a book with which to be, stop by a library or bookmobile and select one."

The Lighthouse Principle

Maybe few of us landlubbers ever thought about it, but those graceful old lighthouses were built on a firm and logical principle.

They assumed their light would be seen and understood. In fog ships did not see the light and many foundered on the shoals. Occasionally captains mistook the light for that of another vessel and sailing across its bow or stern they came to grief upon the rocks. Yet despite hazards of nature and blunders of man, lighthouses became the landmarks of our coasts.

Whenever in your travels, work or play, you see a church think of it as a lighthouse. Its gleam may not reach every soul. But it's there for those who see and understand.

It lights our way to port while keeping us off the shoals.

Wild Oats Major Threat For Crops

Wild oats (Avena Fatua) is an ancient weed known to farmers since the days of Roman and Greek antiquity. It is generally believed wild oats were inadvertently carried to North America in the 1800' by European immigrants who settled in western Canada.

The weed now infests more than 60 million cultivated areas in the Central Plains area including the Canadian provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba as well as northern United States from the Great Lakes to the Pacific Ocean.

A single wild oat plant can produce up to 800 seeds which sometimes remain active in the soil for many years. In most cases, they ripen before the grain crops. The plant then shatters — scattering seeds, instead of retaining them as do food grains. Modern machinery, especially the combine, has increased the wild oat problem in recent years.

Wild oats normally shatter before harvest, but the amount of wild oats removed from the field along with the crop probably was greater when binders and threshing machines were used in harvest operation rather than swathers and combines.

Wild oats cut green a week or 10 days after heading produce seeds. Each kernel bears a twisted, spring-like awn that opens in response to wetting and drying. This causes seeds to actually plant themselves. Once in the soil, the wild oat responds to favorable germination conditions in the same manner as small grain.

Wild oats have other built-in survival characteristics:

(1) Varying and unpredictable dormancy of some seeds. No way has been found to break or regulate this dormancy, which may vary from a few days to several years.

(2) Wild oat seeds emerge from greater depths than wheat or barley. The wild oat seedling can grow up from a considerable depth, often the full depth of the plow layer.

Wild oats, like other weeds, are fierce competitors with the seeded crop for moisture, nutrients and light. Recent field trails at various universities show that wild oats reduce grain yield of all crops. Barley is more competitive than wheat; flax shows the poorest competitive traits.

The number of wild oat plants that must be present before an economic loss occurs depends on the general crop, its vigor and variety. Generally, an infestation of one to 10 plants per square foot is considered low; 11 to 25 plants per square foot is moderate. Over 25 plants per square foot is heavy.

Farmers have estimated their losses in wheat and barley crops to wild oats at over $303,000,000 annually in the United States. Wild oats rob soil of valuable moisture and compete with the crop for plant nutrients. Wild oats harvested with grain count as dockage. Also, the grade of the grain may be reduced if wild oat seeds are not removed. Weight and volume of wild oats adds to storage and transportation costs. Most important factor to consider is that uncontrolled wild oats produce a crop which will reinfest the area to cause even bigger problems next year.

Regardless of the crop, the loss in dollars per acre caused by an infestation is directly related to the market value of the crop. For example, if barley produces 30 bushels per acre and sells for $3 per bushel on the market, 10 wild oat plants per square foot reduce profits by $20.77 per acre. Likewise, a 50 bushel per acre wheat crop selling for $3.40, when 10 wild oats per square foot are present. If 20 wild oat plants per square foot infest a field, wheat yields will crcrease by about 48 per cent. This is a reduction of 24 bushels per acre, or $81.60 in gross profit.

Under normal growing conditions, a wild oat plant develops a new leaf about every four to five days, or approximately one-fourth to one-fifth of a leaf per day. This rule of thumb is helpful in estimating at what leaf stage a wild oat plant will be on a given date.

If a wild oat plant has 1½ leaves (second leaf half grown) on Monday, it may have 2½ leaves (third leaf half grown) by Friday. Leaf developments will be somewhat slower under adverse growing conditions such as cold, drought or low fertility.

Look for the leaf with a counter-clockwise twist to identify wild oats. Young wild oat plants are sometimes hard to identify in grain seeded by broadcast methods. You can tell them apart by the twist of the leaves. When viewed from above, the first full wild oat leaf has a counter-clockwise curl. Wheat and barley leaves curl clockwise.

The surest way to identify them is to pull up young plants and check the seed attached to the seedling.

Since the early 60's, herbicides selective for wild oats in various crops have been marketed. Prior to their availability, farmers also had several cultural approaches for wild oat control including delayed crop seeding, post seeding cultivation, and competitive crops.

According to various university studies, both cultural and chemical approaches to wild oat control have not had any noticeable influence on infestation. This may be because of lack of acceptance by farmers on effectiveness of weed control.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's projection for a record-high $32 billion in farm exports this year means a 17 per cent increase in value over last year's foreign farm-trade.

National Bible Week: November 18-25

A nation-wide campaign to promote Bible reading and study will be launched Sunday, November 18, when the Laymen's National Bible Committee begins its 39th interfaith National Bible Week under the leadership of Thomas A. Murphy, Chairman of the General Motors Corporation who is National Chairman for this year's observance.

A major feature of the campaign is advertising for newspapers, magazines, radio and TV created by N.W. Ayer ABH International. It is aimed at young people and is built around the slogan, "Keep the Force With You. Read the Bible."

A major event of Bible Week will be the Eastern Premiere of the film, Jesus, at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington on Sunday evening, November 18. The film, produced by The Genesis Project, Inc., will receive an award from the lay committee at the Washington event. Mr. Murphy also will present to President Carter the completed volumes of the New Media Bible, also produced by The Genesis Project, in appreciation of the President's support for National Bible Week.

A luncheon at New York's Pierre Hotel on November 16 will officially inaugurate Bible Week. It is being chaired by Donald V. Seibert, Chairman, J.C. Penney Company, with noted sportscaster Howard Cosell as master of ceremonies.

Murphy, as National Bible Week Chairman, will be guest of honor. Awards will be presented to the New York International Bible Society for translating and publishing the New International Version of the Bible and to N.W. Ayer for creating the Bible Week advertising.

Another Bible Week program feature is a national billboard campaign, "Welcome to the Bible. Come Inside for the Good Life," for which space on 2,000 large billboards has been donated by 154 outdoor advertising companies across the nation.

Bible Week displays and projects have been planned in various cities, including public readings of the entire Bible patterned after the "America Reads the Bible" marathon held in New York City last year.

President Carter has issued a special message commending "efforts to encourage increased familiarity with the Bible." Senator Dennis DeConcini of Arizona and Rep. Richard T. Schulze of Pennsylvania are co-chairman of the Congressional Committee for National Bible Week.

Gov. William P. Clements of Texas and Mayor Kenneth A. Gibson of Newark, N.J. are enlisting the cooperation of governors and mayors, respectively.

Hundreds of civic clubs, youth organizations, libraries, book stores and the Armed Forces chaplains are participating, utilizing various materials provided by the Laymen's National Bible Committee.

Complaints On Insulation In Homes Grow

A general increase in complaints concerning insulation installed in older Minnesota homes has been noted by the office of the Minnesota attorney general. This trend reflects a national pattern of unfair and deceptive sales practices recently reported by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

"If the FTC report is accurate, consumers are largely uninformed about insulation effectiveness; insulation is not the kind of product that can be evaluated by even the relatively knowledgeable consumer," says William Angell, extension housing specialist at the University of Minnesota.

The problem is especially serious with insulation installed in the sidewalls of older homes, Angell says. "Statewide, consumers, contractors and building inspectors seldom use effective techniques to evaluate the coverage of sidewall insulation jobs. Consequently, voids, gaps, settling and shrinkage problems aren't discovered unless the consumer takes on major home remodeling."

Due to the unique nature of insulation and how it is purchased by the consumer, there is no one easy answer when it comes to avoiding consumer rip-offs. "Even building inspectors have difficulty determining how complete the coverage is without tearing off siding or plaster," Angell says.

Only sure-fire way to prevent being taken by insulation fraud is to not purchase any insulation this winter, a highly undesirable option. Knowing what should be done in various insulation installations could help consumers know they're getting their money's worth.

Glass fiber insulation in bat form is most common in new construction or in existing attics. "Doing a poor job is relatively hard in this type of job," Angell says. "However, it's quite important to cut around electrical outlets and around plumbing and electrical runs. Make sure the bat is not compressed at any point."

Cellulose is a common loose-fill insulation material. "When installed in attics, the loose-fill should be of uniform density and thickness," Angell says. "The point where the attic floor meets the roof is a common problem spot. This area should be carefully filled in and proper ventilation is a must."

Cellulose is also used to insulate sidewalls. "The best installation uses a two and a half inch hole bored into the wall and an extension inserted into the very top of the wall cavity," Angell says. "After the cavity is filled, the hose should be slowly removed to allow for increased density, which prevents settling."

Angell has a few words concerning insulation contractors: be very careful. Remember, Minnesota has no licensing or certification requirements for insulation installers.

Here are some suggestions to consider when working with an insulation installer:

—Always question and attempt to verify all promises, claims and guarantees made by insulation contractors. Determine the savings potential resulting from insulation installation in your home by obtaining Extension Folder No. 389 free of charge at your local county extension office.

—Always obtain a minimum of two written bids from contractors. Compare the amount to be charge for provided materials.

—Check with but don't rely exclusively upon local utility companies, the Better Business Bureau, municipal building inspectors, friends and neighbors.

—For loose-fill insulation work, try to be on the job site when the work is being done. Request to see empty bags to verify how much material was actually used.

—In sidewall jobs, have an independent infra-red photograph or thermogram made of your house. A number of firms are providing this service for less than $100 in the metropolitan area. Outstate, the price may be higher. To locate these firms, contact your local utility company or the Minnesota Energy Agency.

Tighten House But Allow Air To Aid Flames

Weatherstripping and caulking, insulating and adding storm windows and doors are good conservation measures that can save homeowners both energy and money. However, tightening up your house by doing all these things may change the way your furnace or fireplace burns.

In fact, doing extensive weatherizing on your home without being sure enough combustion air from outdoors is available, can be dangerous. Several tragic deaths have resulted from inadequate combustion air sources in tightly sealed houses, according to the Minnesota energy agency.

This startling fact should not discourage you from tightening up your home. It's wise to remember that home conservation measures have two parts: tighten up your home for comfort and energy savings, and provide enough combustion air for safety.

Now you're wondering just what combustion air is. All fires need air, specifically oxygen, to burn. Furnaces, fireplaces and woodstoves need enough oxygen for complete combustion of their fuels. The incomplete combustion that takes place when a furnace is "air starved" and not enough oxygen is available, causes carbon monoxide to be formed in quantities that can be dangerous or fatal inside a well-sealed house. Carbon monoxide is ordorless and can be deadly in farily small concentrations. Having a source of combustion air from outside prevents this air starvation of the furnace.

Why the problem? In older homes, enough air leaked in through the cracks around windows, doors, utility opening, rim joists and the foundation to provide oxygen for complete combustion of the fuel. This leakage, in most cases, was far in excess of what was needed for combustion air and also caused uncomfortable drafts. Therefore, although the fuel burned well, much energy was wated. Low fuel costs and large energy supplies kept this from being considered a problem.

Now, homeowners are anxious to change their houses for more efficient and cheaper energy use. However, in tightening up a house to save energy, the homeowner may inadvertently reduce infiltrating air below the point needed to provide enough oxygen to the furnace of fireplace.

Problem becomes worse when other kinds of fuel-burning equipment such as fireplaces, woodburning stoves, gas or oil water heaters, gas stoves and clothes dryers compete for combustion air.

Using kitchen, bathroom or attic ventilation fans can add to the problem. This happens because air is being blown out of the house, and not enough replacement air is coming in to make the furnace draft properly.

If you suspect a problem, air out your entire house. Then, crack open a window in the furnace or fireplace room. This is only a temporary solution, but leave that window open until you get some professional advice and-or help to install an outside air duct directly into your furnace room, fireplace or woodburning stove. Consult with your local building official, heating contractor, utility company, furnace serviceman or the Minnesota energy agency right away.

So if you're fixing up your home to save energy, make it more comfortable by eliminating drafts and cold walls. It could save you money. But don't forget that you also change the way your house and heating system "breathe" by doing so. To make sure your furnace — and your family — breathe properly, balance the conservation changes with combustion air changes.

For more information on embustion air, write the Minnesota energy agency at 980 American Center Building, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Amateur Athletes... Professional Fans

Lincoln high school student body and athletic staff have again accepted a challenge from the Minnesota state high school league to participate in sportsmanship competition during the coming sports seasons. Last year the local efforts at sportsmanship resulted in Thief River Falls receiving the championship trophy for Region 8AA.

As we informed Lincoln athletic director Russ Smith in a letter commending him and the school on participation in the program, sportsmanship qualities are the most enduring of those benefits that accrue to high school athletic participants. It should be emphasized by coaches at all levels and student athletes should set the example for their student contemporaries.

It is perhaps natural for student athletes to display emotions of anger or disappointment in the areas in which they compete. But they should not be permitted to affect the level of play nor to be of any long-lasting duration. And they should especially not be directed against opposing players or officials charged with interpreting the rules.

High school athletes are after all amateurs, some of whom are exceptionally gifted but amateurs nonetheless. Their performances may be less than perfect, but if their effort is 100 per cent there should be no criticism of that performance. Athletes do not intentionally throw a pass out of bounds, miss a lay-up, drop a fly ball, fumble, double-fault, triple-bogey. They want to be their best and they strive for perfection as if they didn't know it is unattainable.

Those of us who sit in the stands or watch from the sidelines should take it upon ourselves to do what we can to add to the sports experience. That includes welcoming visiting players and fans, applauding fine play by members of either team, being courteous to officials, taking a positive attitude in team support.

Sportsmanship should be natural; it shouldn't have to be competitive. But there is nothing wrong with healthy competition on a positive basis and there is pride in being among the best in anything.

This year at Lincoln athletic events let's leave the taunts and jeers and other adolescent activity to others who are willing to display their lack of maturity. Let's encourage our boys and girls to play hard and fair and to put out total effort, then to accept victory or defeat graciously. Let's recognize that sports at the high school level involves amateurs, but be professional in the truest sense in our attitude and action as fans.

More On Big Brother

The Bamidji Pioneer editorial column recently contained these tidbits of information on government which, although stimulating to anger, also provide a bit of wry humor by their ludicrous circumstances:

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) seems to have forgotten about the Golden Rule. Last year, one of its employees attended the Computer Security Institute's Fifth Annual Security Conference in New York City. Two letters, three invoices, eight calls and nine months later, the IRS still has not paid its registration fee.

Feeling frustrated, John C. O'Mara, executive director of the institute proposed an alternative. He suggested to the IRS that his firm at least be given an equivalent reduction in its federal income tax — to the tune of $491.67. This would cover the unpaid $430.00 fee, plus interest at 1.5 per cent a month. The IRS told Mr. O'Mara to forget it.

But O'Mara would not forget it. He went public, blasted the agency, and observed that out of more than 600 conferees, the IRS was the only organization that had failed to pay its fees. Three days later a check from the IRS arrived in the mail.

A federal Office of Education program which channels aid to the nation's developing colleges boasts a remarkable 14-year record. After spending nearly a billion dollars, not one of the 800 schools receiving the federal aid has managed to graduate from the program.

The General Accounting Office, the independent congressional oversight agency, has concluded the program is so "beset with problems... (and so) largely unworkable" that Congress should consider abolishing it.

A Michigan community center, that cost U.S. taxpayers $279,000 to build collapsed barely three years after it was completed. Conservative Digest reports it had never been painted, furnished or used. A woodsman discovered the collapsed pile of timbers in a rural part of the state where the building had apparently been crushed by heavy snows.

An Economic Development Administration spokesman, while expressing "regret" at the incident, was quick to see a silver lining. With smug satisfaction, he observed that the major goal of the project — providing more jobs — had been met. He did not say whether the government would provide still more jobs by assigning a new crew to clean up what remained of the first crew's work.

Puffy federal employees are flying first class at taxpayers' expense despite a White House-ordered crackdown.

These cushy trips are allowed whenever bureaucrats present notes from their doctors stating their derrieres are too big for the standard seats in commercial aircraft. These seats are 17-18 inches wide, while the first class seats are 20-21 inches wide.

The next time politicians promise us they will cut the fat from the federal budget, let's be sure to remind them to start cutting from the bottoms up.

Washington has been plagued with a near-epidemic of hot air for years. Just recently this problem has dramatically worsened. It seems that the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), which supervises almost everything Americans eat, drink, breathe, or wear, has been spewing cancer-causing chemicals into the air from its own Washington laboratories.

FDA admits to discharging daily more than 38 pounds of toxic and carcinogenic chemicals into the air we breathe, but claims such amounts pose no threat to public health and safety. Congressman Elliott H. Levitas isn't so sure and says: "I find it singularly out of character for an agency such as the Food and Drug Administration to say there's nothing wrong with a little poison."

For your information, FDA also maintains laboratories in Philadelphia, Chicago, Seattle and Denver.

A Farmer's Will

Making the rounds of rural Minnesota newspapers recently has been this last will and testament which farmers should be able to identify with in nearly all cases:

I leave:

To my wife — My overdraft at the bank. Maybe she can explain it.

To my son — Equity on my car. Now he'll have to go to work to meet the payments.

To my banker — My soul. He's got a mortgage on it anyway.

To FHA — My unpaid bills. They took some real chances on me and I want to do something for them.

To the SCS people — My farm plan. Maybe they can understand it.

To the junk man — My machinery. He's had his eyes on it for years.

To my undertaker — A special request: six implement and fertilizer dealers for pallbearers. They're used to carrying me.

To the weatherman — Rain, sleet and snow for the funeral. No sense in having nice weather now.

To the grave digger — Don't bother. The hole I'm in should be big enough.

To the monument maker — For my epitaph use "Here lies a farmer who has now properly assumed all his obligations."

MOTORCYCLES: DOGGONE GOOD IDEA!

Daisy, the motorcycle-riding Airedale from Pinetop, Arizona thinks it's a gasser! Daisy, like her owner, Angelo Lombardo, likes to take to the open road on their Suzuki TS-185. Daisy's love affair with the two-wheeler began when the four-legger was put astride the Suzuki by her master. "When I got off," says Lombardo, "Daisy stayed in the saddle." This cunning canine may know, as do millions of other Americans, that motorcycling can be fun and saves gasoline. Some Suzuki models can get up to 120 miles per gallon. And Daisy... she's "arf" and running!

U.S. Senator Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

We Need To Get Our Own Energy System Moving

+ Would there be enough fuel to plant Minnesota's crops last spring?

+ Will there be enough fuel oil to heat Minnesota homes this winter?

+ What impact will cuts in Canadian oil to the U.S. have on our supplies?

All these questions have concerned and frustrated me over the past few months.

Even more annoying, while we're presently overly dependent on OPEC oil, we can't seem to get moving on our own domestic projects to help ease shortages. Too often, the cause behind the stall is excessive and unnecessary regulation.

The classic case is the legendary Sohio pipeline, intended to run from California to Texas. The pipeline would have more quickly moved Alaskan oil from the West Coast to the Midwest — presently that oil must be shipped all the way south and through the Panama Canal.

Planning for the pipeline began in 1974. Five years later — last May — it was abandoned after the company had already spent $60 million on investment in materials and on legal work and completing applications and reports.

Sohio had managed to acquire 732 of the required 733 federal, state, and local permits before finally giving up on the project.

Some of these permits exist for valid environmental protection reasons. Many, however, proved duplicative, inconsistent, and even contradictory from one locality to another.

Cases like this are the reason I supported a bill to establish an "energy mobilization" board. This board will study high priority energy construction projects and will have the authority to waive certain procedural laws and regulations when those requirements were judged contradictory and unnecessary.

The mobilization board should break up part of the jam now stalling important projects.

However, what is actually needed for the future is a method to get rid of duplicative and inconsistent laws or regulations in the first place.

To accomplish this, I offered a successful amendment which calls for the Board to report in three years, all the federal laws and regulations which may significantly hinder the completion of energy-producing projects.

I will then be up to Congress to determine which ones are dispensable and should be eliminated.

If we are ever going to get rid of red tape, the first thing we must do is identify it. And, if we are going to get rid of our overly-dependent relationship with OPEC, we can not afford to unnecessarily stall our own energy production.

After-School Snack You Won't Forget

If you have active youngsters who come running home from school hungry for a snack, "Peanutty Tote'Em Cups" is a recipe you'll want to remember. Ready for eating in minutes, these tasty pudding-like snacks are peanutty-rich and dotted with chocolate — sure to be a hit with the kids. You'll enjoy how easy they are to make — it's all done in a blender (even dissolving the unflavored gelatine!), and you can use paper cups to serve them in. Best of all, your youngsters won't forget what a great Mom you are for making this delicious treat for them.

PEANUTTY TOTE'EM CUPS

2 envelopes Knox® Unflavored Gelatine
1 cup cold milk
1 cup milk, heated to boiling
1-1/3 cups peanut butter
1/3 cup sugar
2 cups ice cubes (about 12 to 16)
1/2 cup mini or regular semi-sweet chocolate chips

In 5-cup blender, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over cold milk; let stand 3 to 4 minutes. Add hot milk and process at low speed until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 2 minutes. Add peanut butter and sugar; process at high speed until blended. Add ice cubes, one at a time; process at high speed until ice is melted. Pour into 5-ounce paper cups and stir in chocolate (about 1/2 tablespoon each cup). Chill until set, about 10 minutes. Makes about 10 servings.

Bond Between Daughter And Mother Changes

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

When a woman has a baby, she becomes closer to her mother. The barrier between mother and daughter formed by the daughter's marriage is relaxed. This same change in life stage makes the new mother more distant from her mother-in-law, and, under certain circumstances, from her husband too.

These family changes have been explored by Lucy Rose Fischer, sociology professor at the University of Minnesota, in an interview study with 43 daughters, their mothers, mothers-in-law and husbands. Fischer focused on the mother-daughter relationship.

"Women form the alliances that establish the family structure," Fischer said. "Consequently, changes in their lives, especially an event as significant as the birth of a baby, affect families a great deal. Even in male-dominated families, mothers often gain power by forming alliances with their children, and in the most traditional families, the wife forms the bridge even to her husband's family.

Closer mother-daughter relationship begins when the daughter leaves adolescence and eventually moves out of the house. Closeness is intensified when the daughter becomes a mother. "There is a sense of bonding and appreciation," Fischer said, "and more mutual confiding than between a mother and an unmarried daughter."

Many things are discussed, though some topics are still taboo. Pregnancy and delivery room stories are exchanged. Child care advice (from feeding to toilet training), commiseration (over late night feedings and the like), and babysitting are offered, especially when the mother is geographically close. Usually the daughter asks for the advice, but if her mother helps with the baby she feels a "license to criticize too," Fischer said.

This exchange of views is healthy, Fischer added, and probably accounts for the fact that middle-aged women are more receptive to changing values than are middle-aged men.

The now easier mother-daughter relationship is in contrast to the daughter's relationship with her mother-in-law, however. Mother-in-law's child care advice is often seen as an alien threat, and her blow-by-blow accounts of pregnancy and delivery tend to be resented, Fischer said. She does much less babysitting than the daughter's own mother.

"But even mothers and daughters avoid some topics — usually sex, money and complaints about the daughter's husband. Some daughters are afraid their mothers might suggest a new husband," Fischer said.

Most daughters feel their mothers don't interfere, but just to be sure, they give their husbands' time priority even if the mother is very close.

Mothers generally have a quite selfless attitude, Fischer said. Even though most daughters are better off financially than their mothers, and have fewer children and more egalitarian marriages, the research turned up no suggestion of maternal jealousy. Some mothers were wistful about their daughters' life styles, however, and a few had succumbed to feelings of martyrdom, Fischer said.

Strongest mixed feelings came when daughters discussed how they found themselves becoming more like their mothers. They wanted to preserve some of their mothers' child-rearing ways and dump some others, such as silly "let's go nightie-night" routines.

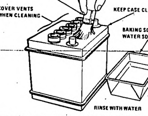
They also wanted to avoid the sexuality model of their mothers. These neutral or negative feelings reflect the low image of women in general, Fischer said. Husbands point out the negative similarities too. "After all," Fischer said, "he never fell in love with his mother-in-law."

Geographical distance doesn't interfere much when the new baby is very young. Fischer said. "You can hug a baby and bring it any toy," said one new grandmother. But when the child reaches two and one-half or three years old, the distant grandmother sometimes feels she doesn't really know the child. This distance can then cause some distance in the mother-daughter relationship.

But the bond between mother and daughter is quite elastic. Most of the women who responded said something comfortable like "my mother knows me." And, as Fischer said, "Women seem to live lives of delicately balanced alliances."

Getting Started on CAR CARE

CLEANING AND SERVICING YOUR CAR'S BATTERY



Your automobile battery should be checked on a regular basis. It's easy to remember to do this if you check both engine oil level and the battery when you fill your car's gas tank.

The level of electrolyte should be checked and filled as necessary (unless the battery is a "maintenance free" type). Check the battery more often in hot weather, or when you're using your car harder or more often than normal.

EASY VISUAL INSPECTION

Water level: Normal operation causes the electrolyte level — commonly called the "water level" — to drop. The level should be to the bottom of the circular or triangular lip on the bottom of the filler hole. If the level falls below this, it may uncover portions of the battery's plates and reduce its efficiency and power.

Battery cables: Inspect your battery cables and posts for a gray or black deposit. This deposit can mean real trouble, since it can insulate the cable end from the terminal.

Battery case: Check the battery case and top for cracks. Raised portions may signal leaks or corrosion at work beneath the surface.

SIMPLE MAINTENANCE

Keeping the battery case clean will reduce corrosion throughout the system. Washing with plain water can get rid of most of the corrosion and acid residue on the outside of the case. If the battery's top is covered with corrosion and residue, cover the vent holes in the battery caps and wash the entire top of the battery with a solution of baking soda and water. MAKE SURE NONE OF THE SOLUTION ENTERS THE BATTERY. Brush the battery with a stiff bristle brush and rinse with clean water. Then remove the covers from the battery vent caps.

These are do-it-yourself tips from Mopar's "Engine Service Guide," a book which helps the automobile owner maintain and service his or her car.

Mopar's 220 page book containing well-illustrated, easy to understand service information for US-made cars and light trucks produced from 1968 to the present, is available for $7.95, including shipping and handling. Michigan residents should add 4% sales tax. Send a check or money order, payable to Chrysler Corporation, to: Engine Service Guide, P.O. Box 970, Dept. C., Detroit, Michigan 48232. Allow several weeks for delivery.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Rehabilitation of Cancer Patients is Vital

Rehabilitation is an important part of caring for cancer patients. Helping the patient to return to living as normally as possible is a major goal of any successful rehabilitation program advises the Minnesota Medical Association (MMA). In the following interview, the MMA has answered a number of the questions frequently asked about rehabilitation of the cancer patient.

Q: Why is rehabilitation of the cancer patient so important?

A: The patient who has been afflicted with cancer has suffered in many ways both physically and emotionally. This individual must be helped back on the right track from both points of view. Whatever physical disability has been inflicted on the individual by virtue of the treatment of cancer, it must be corrected as much as possible so that the patient can return to living a normal or near normal life.

Similarly, from the emotional point of view, the patient must be helped when he or she needs help in coping with cancer or the recovery from treatment. The cancer patient must learn to understand that cancer is just one other form of chronic disease which need not be especially feared.

Q: Can all cancer patient benefits from rehabilitation programs?

A: There is no doubt that most cancer patients could benefit in one way or another. However, some patients particularly need rehabilitation. Some procedures are more devastating than others.

In some instances the treatment may involve gentle chemotherapy for easy to treat malignancies and suffer very little from the disease for their treatment. Consequently, very little rehabilitation would be required. In stark contrast, the patient who undergoes a colostomy or a bladder reconstruction may require a great deal of help in getting back into the normal walk of life.

Q: Is there any difference to the approach to rehabilitative programs as they relate to men and women?

A: Men and women cancer patients need rehabilitation equally but the kinds of rehabilitation may differ. Body image is very important. No less so for a man than a woman. For example, the woman who has undergone the mutilating procedure of a mastectomy has experienced a threat to her sexuality, in addition to a change in her body image.

A man who has had a colostomy, the loss of his vocal cords, or a limb removed will also require special rehabilitation assistance the same as for a woman.

Q: What does emotional rehabilitation of the cancer patient involve?

A: In recent years the ranks of the team available to offer emotional support to the cancer patient have expanded to include physical therapists, psychologists, psychiatrists, case workers, in addition to the patient's own doctor and his nurse. In addition there are lay support groups which give cancer patients an opportunity to exchange similar experiences and offer encouragement to those attempting to rehabilitate. The expanding field of plastic surgery can repair or reconstruct portions of the face or body which have been affected by the various cancer therapies.

Numerous body changes take place with advancing age. The eye grows older too. The Minnesota Medical association (MMA) answers some of the questions most frequently asked about the aging eye.

Q. Are most of the changes which take place in the aging eye the result of natural developments or are they due to specific eye disorders or disease?

A. They are really due to both. There are many natural developments that occur as we grow older. However, there are also many diseases which occur as we grow older.

Q. What sorts of natural changes take place?

A. The loss of the ability to focus the eye or presbyopia is one of the most common changes to take place in the aging eye. This condition results when the lens of the eye loses its elasticity and is unable to focus properly for reading and doing close work. This can make reading and close work more difficult. Other eye conditions which can occur are cataracts, floaters and dry eyes.

Q. Should one be willing to accept failing eyesight as one of the signs of growing older?

A. Failing eyesight should not be accepted on the basis of age only. Many of the natural changes and diseases commonly associated with the aging process can be corrected or eliminated with proper care.

Q. Is it inevitable that all people will eventually wear glasses as they grow older?

A. This is generally true because of inability to focus the eye properly due to its loss of elasticity in the lens. Glasses are usually prescribed at some point around age 45, sometimes a few years earlier for reading ability even though distant vision has been normal throughout the individual's life and still remains normal.

Q. Occasionally one sees an older person without glasses. Does this indicate that this individual is an unusual person?

A. Such individuals are very rare. It may mean that this individual does not do a great deal of close work and accepts the fact that he or she cannot see clearly for close up activity. On the other hand, some individuals may accept the fact that they can't see clearly at a distance and opt for close-up work.

Q. What is presbyopia?

A. The terms means old sight — the inability to focus the eye properly for close up sight.

Q. Why does the lens of the eye tend to lose its elasticity as we grow older?

A. The lens substance itself begins to harden as one gets older. Consequently, it cannot change its shape as readily for close up focusing. As the lens becomes harder and cannot readily change its shape, it becomes increasingly more difficult to change the eye's range of focus and thus can make it more difficult to do close up tasks.

Q. What are floaters or spots which seem more noticeable to older people?

A. These are changes which take place in the jelly-like body of the eye called the vitreous humor. Most of the time they are normal and are of no significance. They are commonly noticeable when looking at the bright sky or write paper. They tend to move along with the vision. Generally, these floaters are benign, and are no cause for concern. However, an eye examination at the time when those floaters or spots first begin to appear will rule out any more serious problems.

Q. Why do these floaters occur? Does it mean that there is some part of the eye that is coming loose and floating around in the eye?

A. No, when the person is younger, the jelly-like (vitreous humor) in the eye is firm. At about age 20, the vitreous humor in the eye begins to liquify. As this happens, there are really two substances in the eye, the liquid and the jelly-like substance and their protein pieces which cause floating. There are also pieces of pigment in the back of the eye which may come off into the vitreous humor. The only time there is any cause for concern is if there is a sudden shower of floaters or flashing lights with the floaters.

Q. What does this mean?

A. It may mean a tear in the retina of the eye or retinal detachment. When retinal detachment is diagnosed, and repaired early, a good percentage of sight can be saved.

Q. When should a person consult a physician about eyes?

A. It is wise to see a physician when a change in vision occurs or when an irregularity appears. Early detection of a problem can result in successful treatment of aging eyes.

1 cup sugar
1 cup canned pumpkin
2 eggs
2-1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
3/4 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate Mini Chips

For Cookies: Spoon batter by tablespoonful onto greased baking sheets. Bake at 350° for 12 to 15 minutes. About 3 dozen 2-1/2-inch cookies.

Mini Chip Cookie Frosting: Combine 1/3 cup sugar and 3 tablespoons water in small saucepan; bring to boiling. Remove from heat; immediately add 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate Mini Chips. Stir until melted; frost cookies. (Add warm water, several drops at a time, if frosting is too thick.)

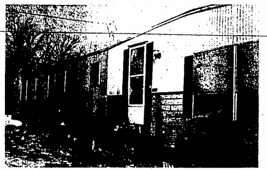
"Everybody is Somebody in Thief River Falls"

Published Twice A Week

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES 15¢

Volume 69 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Monday, March 10, 1980 Number 20



A THIEF RIVER FALLS woman and her two young children escaped injury early Friday morning from a fire which apparently started from electrical wiring and set fire to hay bales surrounding their mobile home located approximately two miles east of Thief River Falls on highway 1. Mrs. John Gunn, awakened by the fire, carried her two children, ages two and one-half years and six months, to a neighbor's home one-half mile away, where the neighbor notified the fire department. Call was received by the fire department at 2:45 a.m., according to Duane Noel, Thief River Falls fire chief. (Another photo is on page 6)

Plan Memorial At TRF Airport

Committee to create a military memorial at the Thief River Falls regional airport met at 6:30 a.m. today at the Best Western Inn and elected Mayor Bob Carlson and regional airport manager George Singer as co-chairmen of the group.

The airplane will be mounted on a pedestal eight feet off the ground and the tracked vehicle and salute gun will be placed on concrete bases. Monument and landscape committees will determine the type of monument and plantings to be located on the site. It is hoped by the committee that progress can be rapid enough to permit dedication of the memorial during an airport open house in late July.

10-Ton Permit Extended On Area Highways

Mn-DOT stated that 10 ton limits will continue until the beginning of spring load restrictions, due to national weather service 30 day forecasts of below normal temperatures and snowfall extending the period of frozen conditions, strong public support and economic importance of the movement of goods — agricultural and timber products in northwestern Minnesota and the roadway conditions holding pretty good as indicated by recent field observation.

Minnesota department of transportation has announced that 10-ton limits on the emergency monthly permit routes and the experimental seasonally posted 10-ton routes will continue until the beginning of the spring road restrictions (historically placed around March 15).

Permits for 10-ton loads on the emergency monthly permit routes will continue to be issued through and terminate on the day that spring road restrictions are placed. Permits are available through the Mn-DOT offices at Bemidji and Crookston.

'The King's Men' . . . Musicians With A Message

"...make a joyful noise unto the Lord..."

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Mix three warehouse employees, a farmer, vocational school instructor and elementary principal with a love for music and a message to tell and what do you have?

"The King's Men", a local gospel music group which is growing in popularity and performance, is the answer to that question. The six Thief River Falls area men who comprise the group give of their time and talent to uplift the spirits of their listeners in about 40 concerts a year in approximately a 40-mile radius of Thief River Falls.

"We don't perform with the sole purpose of entertaining," states Orville Trontvet, one of the original members of the group, "although we do hope that our music is entertaining. We have a message to present, and we include scripture reading and personal testimony as well as music in our concerts.

"We recognize that wherever we sing there are a variety of personal needs in the people in the audience and we want to help fill some of those needs. We want our music to be uplifting and a blessing to those who come to hear us."

In the last few years gospel singing groups have proliferated and rare is the issue of this newspaper when at least several groups are not listed as performing in the area. For the most part they are short-lived, such as student organizations which last for a year or two, or professional, at least to the extend that the traveling teams earn their living from their performances.

"The King's Men" are unique in several ways. They have been together for about five years, although they have been singers or musicians for most of their lives. They are strictly amateur, realizing no personal financial benefit from their efforts, and they charge no fee for their services, accepting only a freewill offering which goes into a fund to pay expenses.

And despite the fact they are highly musical with a pleasing blend of vocal harmony, piano, bass and lead guitar, only a couple can read musical notes. The rest learn by trial and error and memory — a system which has given them a repertoire of 40 to 50 songs. They use 15 of those songs in the average concert and are constantly working on new material.

"When we get invited back to a church for a repeat concert, we want to have new material," stated Everett Kompelien, one of the three vocalists in the group. "And in spite of what you may have heard, we DO occasionally get invited back!" he laughed.

Such a statement is perhaps a key to the success of the group and its rapport with audiences throughout northern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota. The men enjoy what they are doing and they let their enjoyment show in their performances. Their good humor is infectious and their audiences react accordingly.

"We have received applause in churches where I'm sure we must be the first group applauded," noted Glen Espe, the third vocalist in the group said. "In some churches, applauding just hasn't been the thing to do. In other churches we have probably been among the first to bring guitars and amplifiers into the sanctuary. We could talk for hours about the experiences we have had."

"Like that night up at the Day Spring chapel at Roosevelt," laughed lead guitar player Earl Hanson. "Remember that? They had a 265-gallon fuel barrel, hinged in the middle, for a stove and they opened it up and threw in four-foot logs. It got so hot we almost melted right off the platform."

"Or that church down south that had nothing but an auditorium," chimed in piano player Dil Lewis. "We came in

Tracy Lynne Brown And Roger D. Eriksson Wed

Tracy Lynne Brown and Roger Duane Eriksson of Thief River Falls exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, December 29, at 7 p.m., at the Evangelical Free church in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Brown, Jr., of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Algot Eriksson, also of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Curtis Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Joel Carlson was the organist and Mrs. Floyd Dalzell, the pianist. For the processional, they played "A Time For Us," theme from Romeo and Juliet. Vocalists, Ruth Ferber, a friend of the couple, and Kevin Kompelien, a cousin of the groom, sang, "Through They Eyes of Love," "The Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the background for the wedding party were two white-flocked Christmas trees with green satin balls and two nine-branch, white wrought-iron hurricane candelabra with green candles, decorated with red velvet ribbon, greenery and white doves. Single hurricane candelabra marked the center aisle.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white floor-length gown with a Queen Anne neckline outlined with Venice lace forming graceful scallops over the bodice. The long, fitted sleeves with English net insertions were frosted with Venice lace in intricate design. Adding back interest was a cascading chapel-length train. A Juliet-styled headpiece held her chapel-length veil of bridal illusion, edged with the same lace that graced the gown. She carried 22 cascading red roses with white feather trim and white velvet ribbon streamers.

Karyn Eriksson was the bride's personal attendant.

Serving as maid of honor was Rhonda Hanson of Minot, N.D., a friend of the bride. Other attendants were Tami Hedlund and Terry Olson, sisters of the bride, and Jill Swanson of Fargo, N.D., a friend. They wore a sleeveless mint green satin gowns topped long-sleeved, dark green velvet jackets trimmed with mint green marabou. In their hair they wore a sprig of holly.

Trudi Brown, a sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She wore a long-sleeved mint green satin gown complemented by a dark green velvet vest with feather trim. All wore necklaces, gifts from the bride, and carried solitary long-stemmed red roses with white lace ribbon.

Flower girl was Becky Elleson, a friend of the couple. She was attired in a long-sleeved, white eyelet gown, ruffled at the neckline and wrists and with a mint green velvet ribbon tied around the waistline. She carried a white basket filled with red roses and white feathers. The rings were carried by Chris Eriksson, Grand Forks, N.D., a nephew of the groom. Like the groom, he wore a dark green tuxedo with satin lapels, a white ruffled shirt and a dark green bow tie. He carried the rings on a white satin and lace pillow, made by the bride and trimmed with red rose buds.

Attending the groom were his brothers: Peter Eriksson of this city as best man, Arlon Eriksson, Grand Forks, Mervin Eriksson, Missoula, Mont., and a friend Mark Jahraus of Linton, N.D. Their dark green tuxedos were accented by mint green ruffled shirts and carnation boutonnieres. The ushers, Bruce Brown, brother of the bride, Gary Hedlund and Keith Olson, brothers-in-law of the bride, wore white carnations pinned on their dark green tuxedos, accented by white ruffled shirts with green trim.

The mother of the bride was attired in a mint green double-knit, gown with a long-sleeved lace peasant-styled over-blouse. The groom's mother wore a forest green belted gown featuring long sleeves of a coordinating open weave. Their identical corsages were of red roses, accented with small white flowers and white lace ribbon.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mrs. Frank Brown, Sr., of Brainerd, George T Stroming, Pillager, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Bella Kompelien, grandmother of the groom.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors for about 280 relatives and friends. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake supported by square filigreed pillars. The cake was iced in white, decorated with cascading red roses, and topped with a traditional bride and groom ornament backed by a rose trimmed arbor. Sharon Eriksson, Grand Forks, sister of the groom, and Barbara Holt, a friend of the bride, cut and served the cake. Pouring coffee were Dorothy Kompelien, aunt of the groom, and Joyce Olson, a friend of the couple.

Serving as host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Kent Christensen, friends of the couple. Sharon Eriksson registered the guests as Barb Eriksson, also a sister of the groom, served the punch, assisted by Dave Capes, a friend of the couple. Waitresses were Bernie Swanson, Kristie Olson, Debbie Holt, Cindy Vernon and Linda Otteson presided at the gift table. All are friends of the couple.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Wisconsin, the bride wore a two-piece beige woolen suit.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Lincoln high school and a 1979 graduate of the local AVTI, department of cosmetology. The groom is a 1976 graduate of Lincoln and completed a course in accounting in December of 1979 at the University of North Dakota. He is employed by Touche Ross and Company, Minneapolis.

The couple is at home in New Hope.

Former Resident Explains Plan On Basketball Play

Duane Rafteseth, graduate of Lincoln high school and now a superintendent of schools at Grove City, wrote at article recently in the Minnesota state high school league Bulletin. The article deals with cutting some expenses by playing boys and girls basketball games in the same town on the same night.

Pointing out the potential benefits and negative aspects of the program, he explained the situation as follows:

In view of constantly rising energy costs, Grove City Public Schools during its 1979-80 basketball season scheduled five of its "A" and "B" boys and girls on the same night and site. Utilizing two gyms, the format was as follows: Gym 1 "B" team boys, 6:30 p.m.; Gym 2 "A" team girls, 6:30 p.m.; Gym 1 "B" team girls, 8 p.m.; Gym 2 "A" team boys, 8 p.m.

The above schedule was rotated each playing date so that the boys and girls "A" teams would have the opportunity to play at 8:00 p.m.

The following Circle Eight Conference schools participated in the above program: Buffalo Lake, Cosmos, Lester Prairie, Stewart, and Winsted-Holy Trinity. In addition, Grove City played at Stewart on a similar basis, and somewhat modified format of the above at New London-Spicer.

Some of the positive aspects are:

1. Using the above format resulted in five less nights in which athletes and student spectators had to be away from home.

2. It reduced demands on the school staff and custodians in regard to supervision and plant operation.

3. The demands on the use of heat and use of the school facilities was reduced.

4. It provided the opportunity for parents to see their sons and daughters playing the same evening.

5. It reduced the transportation costs of visiting schools. Rather than making two trips (boys-girls) to Grove City it would be only one.

7. We believe it created a greater sense of school spirit. The student bodies of schools involved really supported their teams. This was also true of adult spectators.

7. It gave the participants of the squads the better opportunity to know one another prior to and after the games when they shared dressing rooms.

8. It appears that our receipts were the same whether the teams played the same night or two separate nights.

9. We hired four certified officials for these games. The officials working the "B" games were college students and getting started in officiating.

Some concerns:

1. The band size was reduced because of the many students participating as athletes and cheerleaders.

2. A parent could have a boy or girl playing in the varsity and "B" game at the same time, causing them to make a choice as to which one to watch.

3. Crowd control was a little more difficult because people were going from one gym to another constantly.

All in all, it appears that this format is a workable alternative. However, you must have two gyms. There are other formats that could be used with one gym, but these have positive and negative factors. It is difficult for schools and communities to change game procedures they have been comfortable with for 40 years, but energy conservation measures may require all of us to take a good look at our school programs.

DNR Telephone Number Listed For Fuelwood

Department of Natural Resources now has a special telephone number for callers desiring information on fuelwood.

By dialing (612) 297-3061, callers will receive a recorded message on how to obtain fuelwood from state-owned lands. Callers may also request further assistance and-or a list of forestry offices throughout the state where fuelwood is available.

DNR forestry offices issue permits allowing the cutting or salvaging of fuelwood for personal use. The amount of wood cut varies with the field office but may not exceed 25 cords. All wood cut for fuelwood is from dead, downed, or diseased trees, and -or from trees which have been determined to be of negative value to the forest management program.

Fuelwood permits cost $5 and are good for one year. Only one permit is issued per family.

In addition to state fuelwood, the DNR field offices occasionally have names of private property owners willing to sell firewood from their lands.

Permits must be obtained from the forestry office located in the area where the fuelwood will be cut. Office hours for field foresters are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. District foresters are best reached early in the morning or near the close of the working day.

Study Of Milk Production Set In Minnesota

Minnesota dairy farmers rank fourth in the nation in milk production. The "price tag" for their efforts will be studied by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service, in conjunction with USDA.

Field representatives from the service will begin interviewing a cross-section of Minnesota dairy farmers in March about their production costs. Interviews will also cover inventories, forage production, land ownership, milking systems and feed storage facilities.

Survey results will focus on the economic well-being of U.S. dairy farmers compared with producers of other agricultural products. Farmers' individual answers are confidencial and only regional and national summaries will be published.

More information on the survey is available from Bud Bever at the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service, phone (612) 296-4143.

Census Takers Still Needed For Area Work

More applicants for paid, temporary work as census takers during the 1980 census are urgently needed, according to Carole Wilson, manager of the census office in Bemidji.

Census takers will be assigned to their own neighborhoods whenever possible, Wilson said. Paid training will begin soon, followed by several weeks of fulltime work visiting homes and interviewing the residents.

Census takers should be U.S. citizens 18 or older, however they may be hired at 16 or 17 if they are high school graduates or have equivalent work experience. Also the citizenship requirement may be waived, especially for persons fluent in a foreign language as well as English.

As specified in the March 5 issue of the Times, a census taker must be able to follow printed instructions, do simple arithmetic and read maps, all of which will be tested before interviewing for hiring. Pay will average $4 an hour or more.

Test dates for the test to be taken in the Thief River Falls city auditorium were printed in the March 5 issue of the times. Other areas and test dates include: Warren fire hall, March 14 at 10 a.m.; Karlstad city hall, March 11, 13 and 20 at 10 a.m.; and Grygla community development center, March 14, at 2 p.m.

Fire Education Workshop At AVTI March 31

Deaths and injuries from Minnesota fires are on the rise, and persons in small communities and rural areas seem to be particularly vulnerable.

The University of Minnesota's fire information research and education (FIRE) center is sponsoring a free public series of fire education workshops in ten communities during March and April. The workshops are intended for educators, civic and youth group leaders and members, industrial safety overseers and fire department personnel.

Participants will look at education's role in reducing fire deaths and injuries and will review fire education programs that have proved successful, according to FIRE center director Antona Richardson. FIRE center offers the workshops through a grant from the U.S. fire administration and the consumer product safety commission.

Lack Of Snow Enables Some To Get Loans

Small businesses in Minnesota which can prove a substantial economic injury due to the lack of snow may be eligible for an economic dislocation loan from the U.S. Small business administration (SBA).

A. Vernon Weaver, SBA administrator in Washington, D.C. amended the designation of economic injury for ski related industries February 8 to include all small businesses within eight designated states which can demonstrate substantial economic injury due to the lack of snow. The eight affected states are Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, Vermont and Wisconsin.

According to Paul Jansen, SBA district director in Minnesota, loan applications for economic injury must still be supported by documentation showing that the injury resulted from the lack of snow this winter. Economic dislocation loans can be made only to otherwise financially sound businesses which would have been able to meet normal obligations had the snow drought not occurred.

"Disaster loans may not be used to replace lost or anticipated profits," cautioned Jansen, "and applicants must demonstrate that their economic injury is tied directly to the lack of snow," he said.

In addition, Jansen explained that personal and-or business assets must be used to the greatest extent possible before a loan application can be approved. The 8.25 per cent loans are limited to the amount of the economic injury and cannot exceed $100,000. The repayment period will be based on the applicant's financial condition with a maximum of 30 years allowable.

For additional information concerning the Economic dislocation loans contact the SBA office in Minneapolis located at 12 South Sixth Street, or call 725-2362.

Flynn reported on progress of the parking and tax assessment district and noted that options had been taken by the district on a number of pieces of property in the downtown area. He said the next step will be a hearing procedure regarding property acquisition.

Plans for a farm-city week promotion from March 18 to 24 were announced with a number of activities planned. Included will be tours of a local grain farm and dairy farm at noon on March 20 and the annual farmer-merchant mixer as a concluding event on the evening of March 24.

The chamber of commerce board is on record favoring a gas tax increase and other necessary fund transfers to up-grade the rural Minnesota road system to 10-ton standards. At Friday's meeting Douglass Steiger, president of Hydra-Mac, Inc., voiced his company's concern over proposed long-range restrictions on highways leading into Thief River Falls.

Hydra-Mac uses large quantities of steel shipped from Chicago, he said, and pays freight costs on a mileage basis. The company would be placed in a bad competitive position if loads from Chicago would have to be reduced in size because of restrictions on highways from U.S. highway 2 to Thief River Falls.

It costs so little to call someone in the 48 states when you dial direct without operator assistance after 5PM weekdays. And long distance is even less on weekends. So go ahead, reach out, and make someone smile. America Long distance is the next best thing to being face to face.
Reach out and touch someone.

Dear friends,
No one is in a better position than you to decide how your estate should be apportioned among your prospective heirs and charities. However, unless you have a proper 'will' or 'trust funds', this distribution will be made by the courts of law. One should make legal preparations well in advance for the distribution of one's estate.

U.S. Wheat Sets Policies At First Meet

Executive committee of U.S. Wheat associates met in Washington, D.C. recently, the first meeting of that organization since it was formed a month ago with the merger of Great Plains wheat and Western Wheat associates. Terry Fladeland of Red Lake Falls participated in the executive committee meeting representing the Minnesota Wheat council.

According to Fladeland, primary purpose of the executive committee meeting was to review the progress in consolidating the two former organizations and to provide initial policy direction.

"Executive committee approve the tentative staffing pattern for U.S. Wheat associates, subject to the approval of the president-chief executive officer, a position still to be filled," Fladeland stated.

The committee also gave preliminary approval to the proposed budget for the new organization for the 1980-81 fiscal year reflecting an increased level of market development efforts. The budget will be reviewbd and adopted by the full board of directors at the next scheduled meeting to be conducted March 24-26 in Washington, D.C.

In a meeting with secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland, the farmer board members reaffirmed U.S. wheat's strong commitment to the expanded export marketing of wheat and other agricultural commodities. They also expressed concern that, inspite of verbal committments by administration officials toward greater emphasis on exports, especially in light of the embargo of grain shipments to the Soviet Union, very little concrete action has been taken to strengthen the market development programs.

Fladeland stated, "U.S., Wheat urged secretary Bergland and the National association of Wheat Growers, to actively seek improvements in the available marketing tools so necessary for the expansion of U.S. grain abroad. Among the issues being supported by U.S. Wheat are an increase in both the level of funding and the flexibility for PL480 and the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) export financing programs, and an increase in government financing support for export market development to match the increasing contributions from the wheat producer."

Fladeland stated that U.S. Wheat Associates also reaffirmed its committment to carry forward its petition against the European communities' export subsidy program which was initiated by Great Plains wheat with the support of Western Wheat associates. The validity of the wheat farmers complaint against the European community was earlier accepted by the U.S. Government and action must be taken on the complaint by the end of July.

According to Fladeland, the U.S. Wheat Associates executive committee concluded with the call for the rapid expansion of the U.S. Wheat information program to provide the U.S. wheat farmer foreign customers with timely information on the U.S. wheat situation and the outlook for world trade. This would begin with the employment of a director of information to coordinate and expand on the work previously carried out by the two merged organizations.

U.S. Wheat Associates is the consolidation of WWA and GPW, a foreign market development organization supported by wheat producers through their respective state wheat commissions in Colorado, Kansas, Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Washington and Wyoming. In addition to the central office in Washington, D.C., USWA maintains foreign regional offices in Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America, and the Middle East.

NFO Seminar At Alexandria March 17-18

Minnesota National Farmers organization will sponsor a series of collective bargaining seminars the week of March 17. The seminars are in response to increased interest generated recently among farmers by NFO's grain marketing seminars held across the country, several of which have been in Minnesota.

Upcoming seminars, however, will be expanded to cover all major commodities — grain, milk, hogs, cattle and specialties.

The main meeting at each seminar will be conducted by the grain department but will touch on all commodities. Next there will be individual sessions for each commodity designed to answer specific questions about the commodities.

To assure maximum flexibility for farmers attending, there will be three complete seminars per day three of the days and two complete seminars the other day. On March 17 and 18 the seminars will be held at the Radisson Arrowwood motel in Alexandria.

Seminars will begin at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 8 p.m., with the exception of Tuesday, March 18, when there will be no 8 p.m. seminar. It is hoped this choice of times will make it easier for farmers to attend.

The seminars are open to all farmers in Minnesota. Anyone interested may contact any NFO leader in his area or call the NFO dairy office in Mankato (507-625-3600) or the NFO dairy reload at Sauk Centre (612-352-2906).

The seminars will discuss how the marketing system functions in all commodities, along with the presentation on how farmers can gain control of the marketing system.

Loing Hired As Counselor For 7-County Area

Linda Loing has been hired by the Region I career education council as a career counselor for the seven-county area.

Loing, a 1976 Mayville state college graduate, will direct the career education center, housed at the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC).

"The center serves all ages," Loing said. "It will be accessible to people in high school and college, adults, the unemployed, underemployed or any person wanting career counseling."

Purpose of the center which provides a seven-county area with interest tests, information on job applications, interviews, the job market, and salary ranges, is to help individuals determine their interest, skills, and abilities, and relate those to educational and-or career goals," according to Loing.

The center has expanded its hours to 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday evenings as well as Monday through Friday, 8 to 4 p.m., in Selvig hall, room 208.

National Older Worker Week Set March 9-15

"Wasting the talent, energy and experience of older workers has a shortchanging effect on our economy at all levels," said Paul Anderson, state director of Minnesota Green Thumb.

A continuing nationwide effort in 1980 to become aware of the capabilities of this integral part of the labor pool begins March 9-15, during National Employ the Older Worker week. As a part of this kickoff wekk, Green Thumb pledges to work actively with Job service and Minnesota's agencies and employers in the recruitment and employment of older workers.

Green Thumb, an employment program for rural workers aged 55 years and over, places senior workers into community service jobs serving all rural citizens. It is sponsored by the Farmers union and funded, primarily, by the U.S. department of labor. "We are proud of the work product of our approximately 800 Green Thumb employees in Minnesota," said Anderson.

"It is simply not true that our skills and abilities disappear overnight once we reach an arbitrary age," Anderson emphasized. "To ignore older worker capabilities in a country where people over 65 make up the fastest growing segment of our population is to steer the nation deeper into financial trouble," added Anderson. Our current social security system is unequipped to bear the burden that has been projected for it in the upcoming decades. More employers will need to utilize the skills and energies of older workers and respond to their continued desire to contribute.

Mike Benson Of Blackduck Tours Europe

Mike Benson, the national forest management proficiency award winner from Blackduck FFA chapter, Blackduck is among 22 top Future Farmers of America (FFA) award winners who left New York recently for 18 days of agriculture-related visits in six European countries. The participants won their right to go on the all-expense paid trip through their excellence in one of twenty-two particular endeavors, ranging from diversified livestock production to soil and water, management, and forestry to floriculture. The travel seminar, like the monetary awards for the proficiency winners, is sponsored by concerns of business and industry through the national FFA foundation.

"Recent events have made us yet more aware of international relations and we realize the importance of understanding more about the countries we must deal with," said Byron Rawls, National FFA Advisor. "There is a tremendous amount of interaction between nations, agricultural-related and otherwise, and our students need to be exposed to differentucultures. The experience of meeting with people from other nations on a one-to-one basis should prove to be invaluable to these outstanding young people."

Defending Ethnic Jokes

An apparent fact of political life is that telling any type of ethnic story can get you in a potful of trouble with the press. The fact stands despite the innocence of the story and the amount of humor it provides.

A case in point is the story told recently by a U.S. presidential candidate. It involved recognizing one nationality by the person bringing a duck to compete in a cockfight, another nationality by the person betting on the duck, and the mafia by the fact that the duck wins. It was one of those stories in which nationalities may be substituted at random in accordance with the response the teller wants to provoke.

Columnist Joseph Sobran ventures the opinion recently that ethnic jokes offend liberals far more than they offend ethnics. The jokes are based on stereotypes and are as frequently told by people of the so-called "offended" nationality or minority as by others.

"Stereotypes aren't the whole truth," Sobran points out, "but they aren't all lies either. They express how people look to each other. And while it may be impolite to tell other people your opinions of them, they will gather them anyway from your behavior. White liberals talk a good ball game where integration is concerned, but they wind up marrying white liberals."

That is one point. The other is that the ethnic joke makes a caricature out of a stereotype, making fun not only out of an object but one's own perception for the object, so we may laugh at our own exaggerations.

Ethnic jokes are rarely told with creating offense in mind. For the most part they are quite witty and absurd. Tolerance of the teller is also a test of our social maturity. If we can't laugh at ourselves on occasion it is a sad commentary on our sense of humor.

By the way, did you hear about the Swede, Norwegian and Finlander. . .

Minnesota, Show the Way!

Following editorial appeared recently in the Ely Echo:

The Carter Administration has finally pinpointed the cause of the fuel shortage, much to the chagrin and horror of fishermen: It is the motorboat operating on Sundays!

Lest there be some snorts of derision from weekend anglers, let it be clearly understood that the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) has formally proposed to President Carter that motorboats be banned on Sunday.

At first, the DOE thought about banning all motorized Sunday recreation such as dune buggies, motor scooters, snowmobiles, 4 WD's, airplanes, etc., but they got into several problems. The main one was enforcement. It would take an awful lot of cops to chase down all those vehicles. Boats, they figured out, are easy to spot since they are about the only things running around on the water, outside of loons. In all probability, the experts at DOE made an in-depth study and determined that law enforcement officials could, in most cases, tell a motorboat from a loon. So they settled on outlawing the use of motorboats on Sunday.

Just why Sunday was picked is not clearly indicated. There are some critics (mostly Republicans) who say that the Sunday motorboat ban is a bias in favor of Jimmy Carter's teaching Sunday School. Since Jimmy can't go boating on Sunday and still retain his image, that's a "safe" ban. Also, there are suspicions that this was pitched at getting a few more votes from the nation's clergy who are, from time to time, miffed that portions of their flock may stray to the waterfront on Sunday instead of attending to prayer. True, there are backsliders amongst even the most devout outdoor folk.

On the other hand, there are a number of athiests who also go boating. One can foresee the possibility of a lawsuit here from the American Civil Liberties Union asserting that Sunday bans discriminate against the unchurched. It could also raise the hackles of the Jewish Anti-Defamation League since the feds obviously discriminated against the Jewish Saturday night sabbath. It is possible that the U.S. Supreme Court may be forced to rule that the federal motorboat ban run from noon Saturday to noon Sunday, in order to not leave anyone out. . .and that may create a host of new problems.

Now we have a much better idea. That is, the 10 a.m. Walleye and Forensic Society, that meets at Sportsman's Cafe, has a better idea. Their concensus is that there should be a total ban on motorboat use for four months. Sundays not included. To manage this within the historic precepts of our great republic, the governor of each state could select the four months of the ban. Just look at this from the fuel conservation standpoint: A year-around Sunday ban would net only 52 Sundays. A four-month ban, not including Sundays, would net about 104 motor-less days, give or take a couple, and the controversy over Sunday would not even be contested. Thus the nation and the Department of Energy could dispense with the legal battles and get right on with saving the nation's energy supplies.

Furthermore, the 10 a.m. Walley and Forensic Society, in order to save Governor Quie the problem of appointing committee with per diem costs, hearings and delays, has selected the four months for him. They are formally recommending that Governor Quie announce to President Carter, the DOE and the nation, that Minnesota will, starting in 1980 and continuing henceforth, in the name of a recognized national emergency, officially ban all motorboat use (Sundays excepted) in December, January, February and March. That is, if the other states follow suit. If there is any foot-dragging Quie has the option of withdrawing March from the ban.

There now. Let the nation stand shoulder to shoulder with the DOE in this energy crisis. If motoroboats are causing the energy crisis, then let the nation's greatest boating state, Minnesota, show the way! We will ban our boats from December through March, no matter how much it hurts. Take that, OPEC!

Stiff Measures Planned

Following editorial is from the Renville Star-Farmer:

Americans may be in for radical changes in the ways they work and play if standby oil-saving measures being planned by the federal Energy Agency become the way of the future. The steps, aimed at conservation, were mapped in response to a congressional mandate and could be imposed by the President during a serious oil shortage if state governments fail to meet oil-saving targets assigned by federal officials.

Nine measures in the plan include:

—A mandatory reduction of one day in the workweek of most workers.

—A ban on driving all cars and trucks for one to three days each week.

—A requirement that large employers in a state take immediate steps to curb work-related employee travel.

—A crackdown on highway speeding by reducing the speed limit five miles an hour and increasing enforcement.

—A permanent version of present controls on building temperatures.

—An odd-even gasoline sales system.

—Minimums on gasoline purchases, probably $7 for large cars and $5 for small ones.

—Restriction on weekend use of pleasure boats.

—A state-sponsored advertising effort to increase use of mass transit.

An emergency that would open the way to imposition of the measures has not been declared, but Washington reports suggest such action is being considered in light of the uncertainty surrounding oil supplies in the Persian Gulf region.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The worried horse owner called his veterinarian. "One day my horse limps," he said, "and the next day he seems perfectly normal. What should I do?"

"That's simple," the vet replied. "The next day he doesn't limp, sell him."

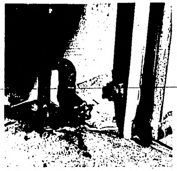
"If you really care about my feelings," said the rich man's son rejected by the college where he had applied, "you would have pulled some wires to get me into the school where I want to attend." "I didn't start soon enough," the father replied sadly. "I should have started with the wires to the phone, television and hi-fi years ago."

The trouble with being a bachelor is that a guy has to get up so early to make enough money to stay out so late!

"Two men once used pistols to see who would get me," the maiden boasted.

"A duel?" the listener gasped. "What happened?"

"Oh, one got me in the arm and one got me in the leg."



ONLY VISIBLE INSIDE damage to the trailer home owned by Mrs. John Gunn of Thief River Falls during an early Friday morning fire was a hole burned through the hall closet floor in a back bedroom. Fire apparently started from electrical wiring which set fire to hay bales around the home, according to Duane Noel, Thief River Falls fire chief. Thief River Falls fire department received the call at approximately 2:45 a.m. — nearly 45 minutes after Mrs. Gunn awakened her two young children and carried them a half mile to her nearest neighbor's home where the fire department was notified.

Legislative Report
Marv Hanson
District 1 State Senator

A bill which would double the penalties against adults convicted of possessing drugs on school grounds was approved by the state Senate last week. This legislation aims at adult drug dealers who often find school grounds a profitable narcotics market. This increased penalty should discourage school ground drug trade. Drug dealers who prey on school children will receive more severe sentencing and the presence of narcotics at schools should diminish.

Legislation setting stiff penalties for bringing liquor, drugs and weapons into a state hospital also received final approval this week. This bill provides three to five years imprisonment for bringing such contraband into state hospitals — a penalty identical to that given for bringing those items into a state correctional institution.

The State Senate Special Committee on Juvenile Justice of which I am a member reported this past week on its study of our juvenile justice system — a report which recommended holding juveniles more accountable for criminal activity.

Basically, these recommendations would strengthen juvenile justice programs. I personally feel a key to the recommendations is the proposed restitution program for juvenile offenders. That effort would have juvenile offenders repay their victims — financially or through service provisions — for losses resulting from the offense. For example, a juvenile offender could be required to replace damaged or stolen property, pay medical bills, handle chores that were the responsibility of the injured household member. Overall, the program would not only impress the importance of "justice" on the offender but it would give juveniles a very graphic lesson in the real impact of crime. Thirty-two states already have these programs in operation, and they seem to be working well.

The Committee also recommended giving courts additional flexibility in determining if juvenile offenders over the age of 14 should be tried as adults. Under its provision, juveniles who are habitual offenders or violent offenders could more easily be transferred to the adult court system. The criteria recommended for the referral are:

(1) Whether probable cause for referral has been established.

(2) The failure of past rehabilitative efforts in the juvenile and corrections systems.

(3) Whether the juvenile represents a clear and present danger to the public safety.

(4) The admission of an aggregated felony warranting punishment.

Committee hearings made it clear that some change must be made in the handling of juvenile offenders — particularly repeat of habitual offenders. It was shown that 10 to 20 per cent of the juvenile population is responsible for 50 to 60 per cent of the serious crime in the state. Further, the State Crime Control Planning Board has reported that the majority of serious offenders are "typically repeat property offenders."

Among the other recommendations of the committee were:

(1) Allowing the juvenile court to recommend fines against offenders. (now allowed in 17 states, but not Minnesota)

(2) Allowing the courts to require detention in a juvenile facility for up to 30 days, if a juvenile fails or refuses to follow a court order.

(3) Move minor juvenile traffic violators to adult court.

(4) Additional funding for juvenile detention facilities as well as a reaffirmation of the state commitment providing rehabilitation, education and treatment programs for juvenile offenders.

If you should have any quistions or comments concerning these or other matters, please write me at 23J State Capitol or call 612-296-4835.

Minnesota National Farmers organization will sponsor a statewide collective bargaining forum on March 15 at the Kandi entertainment center, Willmar, beginning at 12:45 p.m.

Ralph Kittelson, director of NFO's grain department, will be the featured speaker.

"Farmers have long needed their own system of marketing," Kittelson recently said. Farming is in jeopardy, and NFO is offering farmers the opportunity to become part of a marketing system that belongs to them, he said. Like any system, farmers have to use it to cause it to function," he said.

"True independence can come about only if we are willing as farmers to be as concerned about our selling and marketing as we are about producing," he said.

Kittelson said he believes farmers want their own system because the old buyers' system has not worked very well.

Quie Proclaims Older Worker Week In State

"The federal government and the state of Minnesota are working to overcome widespread reluctance to hire older job seekers by making employers aware of each worker judged on the basis of individual ability to do a specific job," Governor Al Quie stated in a proclamation urging citizens to observe "Employ the Older worker week" in Minnesota March 9-15.

Gov. Quie noted in his proclamation that more than 78 million Americans are age 40 or older, and nearly 40 million are working or seeking work.

According to department of economic security statistics, there are many thousands in the state's older worker classification. The unemployment rate for persons in this group is relatively low but once they lose their jobs they have difficulty finding new ones because of some misconceptions commonly held by employers.

Contrary to employers' beliefs, U.S. department of labor studies show that older workers, when compared with those averaging 20 years younger, had better attendance, health and injury records.

During older worker week, Minnesota job service offices will be making special efforts to assist older workers, find employment and to encourage employers to consider hiring them. Each area office has at least one older worker specialist trained to assist with the employment problems of older job seekers. Job Service facilities are available with no fee to job seekers or employers.

Horseman And Horsewoman Of Year Named

Horseman and horsewoman of 1980 were presented Saturday night in pre-show ceremonies at the Red River valley winter shows building. Honored were Al Becker of Fargo, N.D., and Tove Altepeter of Crookston.

The Red River Horsebreeders sponsor this honor annually. Winning candidates are selected from nominations by the general public.

Educational Seminar At Winter Shows

Winter Shows education seminar was held on February 26, at the University of Minnesota-Crookston campus. Theme of the seminar was: "Alternatives to Consolidation — Pairing, Sharing, Cooperation."

Speakers at the seminar were Carl Johnson, chairman of the House committee on education; Willis Eken, chairman of the House subcommittee on school aids; Adeline Vollan, regional planner for the NWM-ECSU; Senator Marv Hanson; Senator Roger Moe; and Dr. Randy Johnson, state department of education. Moderator was Stan Sahlstrom, provost at UMC.

Representative Johnson assured the seminar that there would be no pressure from the state government to push for consolidation of school districts. He noted several bills recently signed into law that put local school districts in charge of their own future. Representative Eken noted that under the present state funding, the schools having the most trouble were schools with 500-1,000 students and the larger school at the other end of spectrum. Eken also noted that although the smaller schools had a better teacher to pupil ratio, the teachers were also paid lower wages. He said another important factor was the decreasing number of teachers graduating from state universities.

In five years the group has presented approximately 200 concerts throughout northern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota, plus trips to the Twin Cities and Duluth-Superior.

LEAD GUITAR player for "The King's Men" gospel group is Earl Hanson of the Newfolden area. Recipient of a $2 guitar from his father when about six years old, Earl is a self-taught guitarist who doesn't read music but is improving his playing ability through experience with the group.

BASS GUITAR was added to the background of "The King's Men" about two years ago when Ron Trontvet joined the gospel music group. Ron is an instructor at the area vocational-technical institute.

"King's Men" Present Music And Message

the front door, set up our equipment, and when it came time to change clothes for our concert we opened a side door and were right back outside in the snow. The only place to change was an outhouse without a door and every time a car swing into the church yard the headlights shone in the open doorway. The next time we go down there we're going dressed to perform!"

"The King's Men" name for the group dates back some 20 years and still relates to Christ as the King and the fact that the group is bringing witness for Him. When the group was formed out of barbershop singing background five years ago, the name was picked up and used again.

Ron Trontvet, bass player, sang in a barbershop quartet called the "Harmony Cats" with Orville Trontvet, Glen Espe and Everett Kompelien. His wife played piano for the quartet.

When the men turned to singing only gospel music, Hanson and Lewis joined the group. Ron Trontvet, Orville's nephew, joined the group two years ago when he returned to teach at the local AVTI.

Hanson is among those in the group who can't read music. His dad bought him a $2 guitar when he was about six years old and he picked up on the instrument from there, eventually getting into aplified instruments. He farms in the Newfolden area and says he plays the electronic organ at home more than he plays his guitar.

Lewis was a captain in the Salvation Army for 15 years in Illinois, Alaska and southern California. He came to Thief River Falls for a one-year leave of absence. . . five and a half years ago! Although he doesn't read music either, his piano stylings give added life to the music presented and he is often the object of the group members' good-natured jokes.

Lewis works at L. B. Hartz wholesale as do Kompelien and Trontvet. Espe is principal of Knox and Mark Twain elementary schools and as a young man in the Roseau area sang gospel music with two of his brothers.

In the five years the men have sung together they have presented about 200 concerts. The 40 concerts a year average keeps them away from home on many a Sunday afternoon and evening and they also rehearse one night a week as well. "We have some exceptionally understanding families," Hanson said, "or we wouldn't be able to do what we are doing."

"When we were in barbershop singing we would practice every week and sing once a year," Kompelien said. "now we get to perform more often and we get a feeling of accomplishment from bringing a Christian witness to people of all denominations."

One Sunday the group sang four concerts at four different churches in two parishes, beginning with an early morning service and ending with an evening concert. "The King's Men" have sung in the Twin Cities, Duluth-Superior, on the Iron Range, all over northeastern North Dakota and in many churches throughout northern Minnesota. Recently at the Red River Valley winter shows that sang for an audience of 350 to 400 people, probably one of their largest crowds.

Except for a couple of stormy days when travel was impossible, the group has never missed a concert for health or other reasons. One night Lewis played piano with a broken finger so the show could go on. And, the rest of the group hastens to remind him, he never played better than he did that night. (Interpret that as you like!)

"We have people who come to hear us whenever we are in the area," Trontvet said. "It's nice to see familiar faces in the crowed. And once we even sang over the telephone to a woman who was hospitalized with cancer and couldn't make it to the concert. After the concert was over we made the call and sang for her and she really appreciated it."

"The King's Men" have recorded two albums which they offer for sale at their concerts and which are on sale at the Bethany book store here. "God Gave Me the Song" was recorded in May of 1977 and the first 1,000 copies were sold out with another several hundred reordered. "I Have Something to Sing About" was recorded in May of 1978 and several hundred copies of that album have been sold.

With five years of experience and effort behind them, the group is looking forward to continuing in the gospel music field. They are in the process of incorporating to provide a better method of handling funds and paying expenses.

For the past couple of years they have had a van for their travel which provides them with room for their musical instruments and sound equipment and a chance to stretch and relax. For the first three years they traveled in a car and pulled a trailer for their equipment.

Even the most disinterested listener to the group would find difficulty in not drawing some inspiration from them, and that is a tribute to their enthusiasm and spirit.

The Bible encourages us to "make a joyful noise unto the Lord". "The King's Men" do so in fine fashion.

Minimum Wage Is Now $3.10

Federal minimum wage increased to $3.10 an hour on January 1. The fair labor standards act (FLSA) sets overtime pay and child labor standards in addition to the minimum wage rate.

The wage and hour division, a part of the department's employment standards administration, is responsible for administering and enforcing the act.

In addition to providing information about the minimum wage increase, the poster notes changes in the percentages of tip credit which can be applied toward the minimum wage for tipped employees. That percentage was changed from 45 to 60 per cent, also effective January 1.

Federal law requires that a poster containing information regarding these new provisions be displayed in a prominent and accessible place by employers, employment agencies and labor organizations covered by the FLSA so that workers can readily see it.

Single copies of the poster can be obtained free of charge from any local office of the wage and hour division listed in most telephone directories under U.S. Department of Labor.

Roger Ward In Winter Shows Hall Of Fame

Seventy years ago, the Red River valley winter shows got its start. The same holds true for one of this year's winter shows hall of fame inductees, Roger Ward. He was born in 1910 in North Dakota and moved to St. Vincent in 1920.

He married a daughter of Swedish immigrants in 1934. She was active in 4-H work, as was Roger, and they continued to serve as 4-H leaders for many years. All four of their children received the 4-H Key award, for their outstanding projects in hogs and sheep. They showed Yorkshire hogs and Hampshire sleep at county and state fairs, and also at the Red River valley winter shows (RRVWS).

Ward has also been active in community and area-wide organizations, including the Joe River farmer's club, in which he served as president for many years. He has also served as a school board member, and as the St. Vincent township supervisor for nine years, as chairman of the Kittson county school reorganization committee, president of the St. Vincent Elevator company and member of the board for 41 years. Ward is active in many other public service organizations, and has a keen interest in water management.

He has been a sustaining member of the RRVWS since its inception, active in the fund drive for a new building for livestock.

The hall of fame inductee and his wife, Brita, raised four children, all having college degrees, including three having master's degrees. Three of the children now own and live on farms, and one is a faculty member of the University of Minnesota, Waseca. They have seven grandchildren.

Ward comments about education in the valley, "Our great nation gave Brita and I over fifty years of precious higher education through the extension division, soils and water service, University of Minnesota and colleges of our state, the Minnesota state fair, county fairs and the Red River valley winter shows. Our state and the Red river valley cannot be surpassed as a place in which to live a rich and full life."

Jury, Geatz Are All-State Picks

Lincoln high school hockey coach Wendell Grand received word today (Monday) that two Prowlers — goalie Bill Jury and defenseman Dave Geatz — have been named to the 1979-80 WCCO radio all-state hockey team of the year.

They'll attend an awards banquet Saturday at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel where they'll receive their all-state certificates.

Jury and Geatz were both three-year starters for the Prowlers. The two seniors are the first Thief River Falls hockey players to receive all-state recognition since 1973-74 when Tony Dorn was given all-state status by WCCO radio, the Minneapolis Tribune and the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

EGF Faces Hill-Murray Thursday

Good luck wishes go out this week to coach Tony Palmiscno and his East Grand Forks Green Wave, the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament champions, as they compete in the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament beginning Thursday at the St. Paul Civic Center.

East Grand Forks played three excellent hockey games to win the Section 8 title — the first ever for the Green Wave — and junior goalie Mark Pagnac starred in all three as he held off Warroad 4-3 in double overtime, Crookston 8-4 and Roseau 4-3 in Saturday's championship game. If there were a Section 8 tournament MVP award it would go to Pagnac hands down.

The Green Wave draws No. 1 rated St. Paul Hill-Murray Thursday afternoon as a first round state tournament opponent and Pagnac is the key to East Grand Forks' success. A strong game by the netminder will keep the Green Wave in the game. If he falters the unbeaten Pioneers will run up a big score.

Lake of the Woods Impressive

Congratulations are in order for Region 8A champion Lake of the Woods and its fine runner-up finish in the 1980 Minnesota Class A state high school basketball tournament completed Saturday at the St. Paul Civic Center.

The Bears were impressive in all three state tournament games as they edged Pine City 54-53 in overtime and knocked off Kenyon 49-43 before losing their championship game bid to Bird Island-Lake Lillian 78-74 in double overtime.

Lake of the Woods came ever so close to giving Region 8 its first state basketball tournament title since Bemidji won it with a 38-29 victory over Hopkins in 1948. It was the first championship game appearance by a Region 8 team since 1961 when Bemidji dropped a 51-50 decision to Duluth Central.

Bemidji, you might argue, won a state title in 1974, but it was a Class AA crown as a representative out of the old Region B alignment that put the Lumberjacks in with the Iron Range and Duluth schools. Bemidji knocked off Richfield of the mighty Lake Conference 52-50 in the Class AA championship game that year.

The 1974 tournament also marked the appearance of two Northwest Athletic Conference teams at the state meet, with Thief River Falls winning the Region 8 crown that year. But the Prowlers lost to Waseca 60-53 in the first round of the Class A tournament and fell to Simley 70-55 in the 8:30 a.m. consolation round game the next morning.

Teams throughout Region 8A can enjoy the success that Lake of the Woods had at the state meet. Northwestern Minnesota basketball used to be the butt of jokes every year at tournament time by the metropolitan area press who seemed to take great joy in publicizing the unsuccessful state tournament entries from Region 8 who lost 13 straight state tournament games from 1972 to 1978.

In 1971 East Grand Forks made a strong state tournament showing for Region 8 with a third place finish at Williams Arena on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis. The Green Wave opened the tournament with a 63-49 win over Albany, lost to Melrose 54-53 in the semifinals but bounced back to defeat Renville 80-77 in the third place game.

But then came that long string of state tournament losses for Region 8 teams that included Littlefork-Big Falls in 1972; Mahnomen, 1973; Thief River Falls, 1974; Mahnomen, 1975; Mahnomen, 1976; and Twin Valley, 1977.

The losing streak reached 13 games when McIntosh-Winger lost to Howard Lake-Waverly 67-60 in the first round of the 1978 state tournament. But the Scots played a strong game that day and they bounced back to knock off Orr 49-47 in colsolation round play and appeared in the consolation championship game where they lost to Glencoe 82-50.

Warren made a solid state tournament appearance a year ago when the Ponies opened with a 39-35 victory over Breckenridge before losing a 50-33 semifinal game decision to Randy Breuer and Lake City 50-33. Glencoe took the third place trophy away from Warren 57-49.

In addition to Bemidji's title in 1948, other Region 8 representatives winning state tournament titles include Thief River Falls in 1938, Bemidji 1936, Thief River Falls 1932 and Fosston 1913. Incidently, Thief River Falls defeated Minneapolis North 31-29 for that 1938 state championship. That was the last time a Minneapolis North team played for the state title until Saturday when the Polars defeated St. Cloud Tech — the Region 8AA entry 60-53.

Miscellaneous

+ Kim Brekke, a senior on the strong Warren girls high school basketball team, became a member of the 1,000-point club this winter.

+ Fifteen juveniles, ranging in age from 13-15 were apprehended in Fergus Falls and charged in connection with a break-in at Beltrami Beverage. The youths, all from the Twin Cities area, were in Fergus Falls for a youth hockey tournament. Officer LeRoy Anderson of the Fergus Falls police department said that nearly all of the $300 worth of T-shirts, windbreakers, beef sausage sticks, pop and beer that was taken in the break-in has been recovered.

East Grand Forks Wins Section 8 Trophy

Air of invincibility has finally been let out of the Roseau balloon. The perennial hockey power in northwestern Minnesota, Roseau had not lost to a Section 8 opponent in three years before dropping a 5-4 decision to Bemidji back in December. And Friday night the Ram's three-year reign as Section 8 champions came to an end when they were dethroned by first-time winner East Grand Forks 4-3 before a jammed-packed Thief River Falls sports arena crowd.

It was only the fourth championship game appearance for the upstart Green Wave, fourth place finishers in the regular season Section 8 point standings. But the title wasn't a total surprise to first-year head coach Tony Palmiscno.

"To be honest, the first day of practice I was amazed at our skating. The talent was there. It was just a matter of getting it out of them."

The Green Wave used that talent Friday night to out-play the Rams, who were going for their 22nd title in 26 championship game appearances. The only time the strong-skating Green Wave faltered was at the end when a 4-1 lead shrank to 4-3 in the final minutes of the third period.

"We wanted to play our game — skate hard, move the puck and play enough defense. We did that for 42 minutes," explained Palmiscno. "We got a little excited at the end of the game, but the kids have never been in this position before."

Roseau coach Gary Hokanson admitted the Rams couldn't handle the Green Wave buzz saw. "Their style of play wasn't what we're used to, and it has a way of intimidating us. Their style of helter-skelter hockey has an effect on young defensemen. We got burned on a couple of mistakes, but give their forechecking credit for those."

Dan Gasperlin opened the scoring for East Grand Forks at 8:32 of the first period when he was left alone near the corner of the goal mouth and he slapped the puck under the leg of Roseau goalie Mark Tangen.

One of those defensive mistakes Hokanson mentioned cost the Rams dearly when Tom Mishler made it 2-0 on a shorthanded goal at 10:33 of the first period. East Grand Forks had iced the puck out of its own end and Roseau was lackadaisical in playing it behind the Rams' net. Tim Mishler checked the Rams' Jim Pederson off the puck and put it in front where brother Tom was all alone.

Left without defensive protection, Tangen had to face three quick shots at the start of the second period and Gasperlin took the second rebound that came straight out front off the goalie's pads and put it back in at 1:05 for a stunning 3-0 lead.

Roseau's Billy Yon caught the upper corner with a power play shot from the face-off circle to the left of East Grand Forks goalie Mark Pagnac at 8:49 for a 3-1 game.

That all-important first goal of the third period was scored by East Grand Forks' Jeff Strandell who took a centering pass from behind the Roseau net from brother Kary and scored in quick fashion for a 4-1 bulge at 3:12.

"At the beginning of the third period I thought we were really putting the pressure on," mentioned Palmasicno. "Then we seemed to get a little excited."

It was the Rams who made it exciting at the end as Steve Huglen scored on a slap shot from the point at 11:07 and Yon sent a strong backhand shot past Pagnac into the upper corner at 13:53 to slice the lead to 4-3.

Roseau pulled Tangen in favor of an extra attacker with 19 seconds left, but Pagnac completed a sensational game with a couple of saves in the final moments to preserve the victory.

"He (Pagnac) was definitely the sparkplug for them," acknowledged Hokanson. "He played well."

Palmiscno was even more impressed by the play of his junior netminder. "Mark Pagnac definitely has the promise to be an excellent goaltender. He has a future in hockey," he said. "He's had his ups and downs, but overall he's been excellent."

East Grand Forks will take a 16-7 record into this week's Minnesota state high school hockey tournament at the St. Paul Civic Center thwere the Green Wave will meet Section 3 winner St. Paul Hill-Murray Thursday afternoon.

Roseau finished 14-8-1. "I guess we can't complain," said Hokanson. "People had written us off at the beginning of the season, but we made it this far."

Nordics Win District 32 Basketball Tournament

Marshall County Central jumped out to a 6-0 lead and never trailed Friday as the Nordics defeated Karlstad 56-43 in the District 32 girls high school basketball tournament championship game played at Roseau.

The victory will send the Nordics into the 1980 Region 8A tournament Thursday at Crookston. Marshall County Central will play District 29 winner Cass Lake in the 7 p.m. tournament opener. Defending champion Fertile-Beltrami and unbeaten Warren clash in the 8:45 doubleheader nightcamp. Consolation and championship games will be played Friday.

Friday's District 32 title game featured a shoot-out between Jill Johnson of Marshall County Central, who finished with 22 points, and Vicki Helling to Karlstad, who scored 23. But Helling was the only Karlstad scorer in double figures while Johnson had plenty of offensive support from Sue Olson and Rosalyn Knutson with 11 points apiece and Lisa Busch with 10.

However, winning coach Tom Mjelde gave credit to the Nordics' defense. "I think our defense won it for us," explained Mjelde. "We really played good defense."

Marshall County Central led 13-10 at the end of the first quarter and stretched that to 30-19 by halftime. Karlstad never got closer than seven points after intermission, trailing 47-35 at the end of the third quarter.

The Nordics, now 19-2, shot 32 per cent from the field (21-for-65) and made 14 of 28 free throws. The Rabbits shot 31 per cent (17-for-54) and made nine of 16 free throws.

Fisher 48

Judy Kiesow made two free throws with 27 seconds remaining Thursday to give Goodridge a 50-46 cushion and the Huskies held on for a 50-48 District 31 semifinal victory over Fisher.

It was the second straight two-point tournament win for the Huskies who edged East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 49-47 earlier in the week.

"We played a really well-rounded game," pointed out Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff. "Things went our way."

But not at the start. Goodridge shots weren't dropping in the first quarter when the Huskies found themselves facing a 16-5 deficit. They trailed 24-18 at halftime and were still behind 39-38 at the start of the fourth quarter.

Mary Jo Kiesow led the Huskies with a 16-point, 13-rebound performance while Peggy Poppenhagen scored 12 points and was instrumental in the Huskies' strong defensive game. "We depend on Peggy an awful lot on defense," noted Saurdiff. "She doesn't get all the glory, but she really plays well for us."

Goodridge won it at the free throw line by making 14 of 26 gift tosses. Fisher out-scored Goodridge by a single basket from the field, but went 10-for-17 at the line.

Sue Olson scored 18 points and Rosalyn Knutson added 16 Thursday to lead Marshall County Central past Roseau 51-39 in District 32 semifinal play.

The host Rams out-shot the Nordics from the field, but Marshall County Central capitalized on a big edge at the free throw line for the victory, making 17 of 28 free throws compared to the Rams' 1-for-8 effort.

"We won it at the free throw line, no doubt about it," acknowledged winning coach Tom Mjelde who said his team did a good job drawing the fouls. "We were taking the ball to the basket," he explained. "We've won games before at the free throw line and we did it again this time."

Olson led the Marshall County Central free throw shooters with an 8-for-8 performance at the line.

The Nordics led at the quarter stops 8-4, 27-16 and 35-28.

Plummer 41

Warren shook loose from an upset bid by Plummer in the final ten minutes Thursday for a 57-41 District 31 semifinal win.

The underdog Cardinals trailed just 34-32 with two minutes left in the third quarter when top performer Diane Fisher was assessed her fourth personal foul on a charging call. She went to the bench and Warren scored six straight points for a 40-32 lead at the final quarter break.

"The roof fell in right there," pointed out Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "We had the momentum until then."

Fisher finished the game, scoring 26 points, but because of her foul problems had trouble on defense. After holding the Ponies' Kim Brekke to seven points in the first half, Fisher had to back off at the end and Brekke finished with 25 points. Jill and Jody Carlson had 12 points apiece for Warren.

The Ponies shot an impressive 51 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 24 of 47 shots. The Cardinals shot 36 per cent, making 15 of 42 attempts. From the free throw line Warren was 9-for-21 and Plummer was 11-for-15.

The Rabbits jumped out to a 17-8 first quarter lead, went into halftime with a 29-12 cushion and led 47-28 after three quarters.

Kelly Clearly led the Karlstad offensive assault with 20 points, but she was just one of five players in double figures for the Rabbits who made 21 of 41 field goal attempts and sank 28 of 37 free throws. Name Rosters For Football All-Star Game

Seventy-one players have been selected for the first Metro vs Out-State Minnesota high school all-star football game scheduled for Saturday, July 26, at Parade Stadium in downtown Minneapolis.

A 10-man committee of high school coaches from throughout the state selected the players from among 371 nominees. Although a coach could nominate two os his senior players, only one could be chosen for the game.

The teams appear to be "relatively even" in ability, according to a committee member. He predicted a competitive game and said the teams may be more closely matched than squads which have played in recent games.

Thirty-six players have been selected for the Out-State team, while 35 have been chosen for the Metro team. One more player will be added to the Metro roster.

Each team will have two quarterbacks; five running backs; three offensive ends, tackles and guards; two centers; three defensive ends and tackles; two noseguards; four linebackers; and six defensive backs. The positions of some players are expected to change after practice begins.

Players on the Metro all-stars are from the seven-county Twin Cities area. The Out-State all-stars are from other parts of Minnesota.

Tim LaVoy of Mahnomen and Ron Sannes of Fertile-Beltrami will be area representatives playing for the Out-State squad.

Human Growth Fundation and the Minnesota high school football coaches association co-sponsor the game. Proceeds go to the foundation, a non-profit organization concerned with the physical growth process in children. The foundation funds medical research and informational programs to help children affected by significant growth failure.

ROSEAU GOALIE Mark Tangen lifted his stick a split second too late as the puck — shot by East Grand Forks' Tom Mishler — hit the back of the netting in the first period of Friday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Mishler's goal, a short-handed job at 10:33, gave the Green Wave a 2-0 lead they never relinquished in winning their first-ever Section 8 title with a 4-3 victory over the three-time defending champion Rams.

Otters Take Swimming Title

Fergus Falls successfully defended its team title in the 1980 Section 3 swimming and diving championships Friday and Saturday at Bemidji State University.

The Otters' depth made them the only entry in the 13-team meet to score points in all 11 events as they finished with 278 points, followed by Bemidji 211, Brainerd 175, Alexandria 133, Fosston 96, Thief River Falls 77, Park Rapids 50, Staples 49, Detroit Lakes 44, Melrose 35, Little Falls 21, Moorhead 18 and Sauk Center 2.

Top two finishers in each of the swimming events, along with the top four divers, qualified for this week's Minnesota state high school swimming meet, scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday in the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Thief River Falls failed to advance any swimmer to the state meet, but coach John Kopari was not disappointed with the Prowlers' efforts.

"I was very pleased with the performances," said Kopari. "Every kid swam their best times ever."

There were four Thief River Falls top six finishes in Saturday's finals. Friday prelims narrowed the field down to 12 swimmers in each event, with the top six swimming in Saturday's finals and the others competing in the consolation finals.

Top Thief River Falls finishes were fourths by Jon Pinkerton in the 50-yard freestyle and by the 200-yard medley relay of Dan Schoonhoven, Steve Poissant, Keith Grochow and Pinkerton.

Dennis Booth of the Prowlers placed fifth in the 200-yard freestyle and finished sixth in the 500-yard freestyle.

The medley relay outfit was expected to be Thief River Falls' best bet for a state meet entry. "They met their goal (time)," noted Kopari. "It just wasn't good enough."

In the consolation finals the Prowlers earned points when Schoonhoven placed seventh in the 100-yard butterfly and tenth in the 100-yard backstroke; Poissant was seventh in the 100-yard breaststroke; Nate Gjovik was ninth in the 100-yard freestyle; and Grochow was ninth in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Thief River Falls' 400-yard freestyle relay team of Gjovik, Mark Isaacson, Booth and Pinkerton made the finals and were headed for a third place medal-winning finish when they were disqualified for a false start.

"It was a good meet for us," mentioned Kopari. "Our kids performed well. Our team, I think, more consistently swam faster than their seed time than any other team."

Bemidji's Gary Mullranin, whose Lumberjacks were unbeaten in dual meet competition this winter, was named Section 3 coach of the year at the meet.

Wolf Management Plan Is Proposed

A proposed management plan that would return jurisdiction over Minnesota timber wolves to the state has been sent to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service by the Department of Natural Resources.

The plan calls for a closely regulated trapping season, open only to experienced outdoorsmen, and for taking of wolves preying on livestock by predator controllers certified by the DNR.

For management purposes the plan divides the state into five zones. In zone 1, comprised of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area wilderness and adjacent areas, no taking of wolves would be allowed.

In the other zones the plan establishes optimum wolf populations based on habitat and other factors, and sets regulations designed to achieve those densities.

One of the key points in the proposed plan is to promote logging practices and other forest management measures aimed at improving habitat for deer — the primary prey of the timber wolf.

Other points in the plan include continued wolf research, adequate law enforcement and the creation of a citizens advisory committee.

DNR officials said they could not predict how the plan will be received by the federal government or how long it will take to have the proposal approved or rejected.

They said the plan, if approved, will implement the objectives of a cooperative agreement between the DNR and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that was finalized in December, 1979.

Since December, 1972, the federal government has exercised sole jurisdiction over timber wolves under the terms of the endangered species act.

Prior to that time, jurisdiction in Minnesota was in the hands of the DNR.

New Signs Will Be Used By Minnesota DNR

Minnesota outdoor users will soon be seeing an updated set of signs used to identify sites and facilities operated by the Department of Natural Resources.

"Every sign the department uses has been analyzed," said DNR commissioner Joseph Alexander, "and the total number of signs has been reduced by 50 per cent."

He said the objectives of the new sign system were to establish a state-wide DNR identity, to produce signs easily understood and recognized by the public, employ cost saving production methods and establish continuity of design, fabrication and placement.

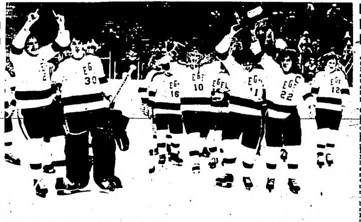
Girls Will Be Honored During MSHSL Program

Ten years of growth in girls athletics — 1970-1980 — has produced a statewide athletic program for young women in Minnesota which is unparalleled in our athletic history.

It is time to celebrate, according to Larry Larson, MSHSL director of information and publication, and to share with our communities a visual picture of the exciting opportunities now available through our school-sponsored athletic programs for girls. And a special program to display the girls athletic program will be held during the finals of the MSHSL state girls basketball tournament Saturday, March 22. During the halftime of the championship game for each class, the reigning state champions in girls athletics for the past twelve months will be introduced: 1978-79 basketball, track and field, golf, softball; 1979-80 tennis, cross country, volleyball, swimming, skiing and gymnastics. The Class A girls sports will be featured on Saturday afternoon and the Class AA sports on Saturday evening.

During the halftime, the champions will march onto the floor to be introduced.

It is exciting to contemplate the visual impact of these young women as they represent nearly 5,000 high school teams in ten interscholastic sports as well as the commitment and good faith efforts of Minnesota schools to the development of the girls athletic program.



CELEBRATING THEIR first-ever Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship, members of the East Grand Forks Green Wave paraded around the Thief River Falls sports arena with the championship trophy Friday after beating defending champion Roseau 4-3 in the 1980 title game. The Green Wave will play in the 1980 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament this week in the St. Paul Civic Center.

NWF Produces Publications For Youngsters

There are a lot of young environmentalists out there, the National Wildlife Federation's 1979 "best sellers" list reveals, and they're learning at an early age about such conservation issues as geothermal energy, pesticides and air pollution.

During 1979 the NWF offered 129 educational publications — most of them free of charge — and all but one of the most-asked-for publications were reprints from the federation's monthly publication for children, Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. NWF, the nation's largest non-profit conservation organization, received requests for a total of 482,784 publications in 1979 — more than twice the number requested in 1978.

Number one on last year's best sellers list, with 85,214 requests was "The Best Present of All," and number two was "A Place for the Children," with 81,465 requests. Both these publications are fables concerning the good King Oliver who seeks to ensure that the children living in his kingdom will grow up in a safe, warm and beautiful place.

"The Best Present of All" emphasizes the importance of geothermal and solar energy, and "A Place for the Children" teaches youngsters what happens to the environment when land use planning is ignored. Both these fables were written by Oliver Houck, NWF's vice president for conservation and education.

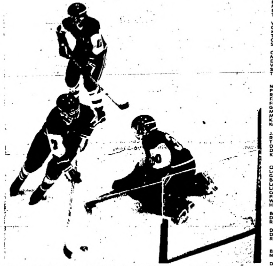
"What Do You Know About the Big Dipper?" was third on the best seller list with 22,371 requests. This illustrated pamphlet contains information for amateur stargazers on how to find the Big Dipper and several other constellations.

The fourth most popular publication (21,465 requests) was "Birdwatching," a 16-page booklet written by famed ornithologist Roger Tory Peterson, who introduces children to the fine art of birding.

Number one on the 1978 best seller list, "Invite Wildlife to Your Backyard," dropped to number five in '79, although there were even more requests (20,623) for it last year than in '78. This popular reprint from National Wildlife magazine explains how to turn a backyard, schoolyard, or community area into an inviting habitat for wildlife. More than 1,600 national wildlife backyard habitats have been certified across the country, in Puerto Rico, and in three Canadian provinces under the NWF program.

NWF distributed more than 1.8 million publications last year, including many to older environmentally - concerned citizens. Many of these publications were sent to schools and clubs.

Most NWF publications are available free of charge for the first copy with additional copies 5 to 30 cents each. A free listing of all publications offered can be obtained by writing Education Catalog, National Wildlife Federaton, 1412 16th Street, NW, Washington, DC 20036.



AFTER A SAVE by Roseau goalie Mark Tangen, Roseau's Billy Yon cleared the puck behind the net Friday during the Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Rams' three year championship reign ended with a 4-3 loss to the Green Wave.

Ducks Unlimited Raises Over $20 Million In '79

Although Ducks Unlimited president S. Preston Williams has announced that DU broke all annual records by generating over $20 million through its fund-raising efforts in 1979, the private international conservation organization feels much more money is needed to face habitat challenges during the 1980s which affect the future of North American waterfowl.

"I've come to expect certain knee-jerk responses when discussing the kind of money we're now raising," said Williams. "Tell someone that DU passed the $100 million milestone in its 43-year history during the fall of 1979, and that person is apt to wonder how much more money it's going to take to help provide for the future of North America's wild ducks, geese and swans. The fact that much more money is needed in Canada, where most of the birds are produced, can best be proven by the amount of federal dollars pumped into the resource each year right here in the U.S."

Williams explained that the U.S. government annually spends some $100 million on waterfowl conservation in this country, $20 million of which is used principally for the acquisition of wetland breeding grounds that provide for only 20 per cent of North America's waterfowl production. "If all of us were to be guided by this expenditure as a business rule of thumb," said Williams, "there should be $70 million available annually for wetland restoration programs on the Canadian breeding grounds where 70 per cent of North America's waterfowl production occurs."

According to Ducks Unlimited executive vice president Dale E. Whitesell, waterfowl conservation funds of this magnitude are not likely to be available in Canada for some time. "In 1979," said Whitesell, "there was a total of $16 million spent in Canada on all phases of waterfowl management. Fifteen and a half million dollars of that was Ducks Unlimited money, and that sum is a far cry from the $70 million needed to help stabilize the loss of critical Canadian wetland breeding habitat.

"If you think I'm implying that Ducks Unlimited will try to raise enough money to send $70 million to Canada in one year at some point during the 1980s, you're right. If we don't, who do you figure, will? Federal habitat funds in this country can't, by law, be spent outside the U.S. And I can't recall any other private-sector conservation organization lately who has offered to help us get the Canadian job done. So, the challenge isn't difficult to understand. Someone, some outfit, must see to it that habitat funds are put to work where it counts."

Whitesell pointed out that Ducks Unlimited's 1980 fund-raising goal stands at more than $24 million, but that the organization's volunteers are aware of the $70 million annual total to Canada which eventually must be raised. "The nationwide momentum and enthusiasm is there to do it," said Whitesell.

The so-called taste of fruits and wine is really a smell or aroma. You can test this by holding your nose when you take a bite of your favorite fruit. You'll find you don't taste anything until you breathe again.

Snowmobiling Is Largest Winter Sport

According to the national highway traffic safety administration, snowmobiling is the nation's largest winter sport.

The national figures are 14.2 million riders compared to 12.4 million downhill skiers.

Minnesota is in the "big three." The state has 270,000 registered snowmobiles, Wisconsin, 260,000, and Michigan, the leader, 413,000. Those combined make up 60 per cent of the estimated $.6 million snowmobiles nationally.

There were 82 confirmed snowmobile-related deaths in 1969-70 when national records were first started. By 1974-75 the number had climbed to 170. The numbers in 1975-76 and 1976-77 were 121 and 98. In 1977-78 the figure went up to 144.

Minnesota has recorded several snowmobile-related deaths this month including that of Twin Cities restaurateur Eddie Webster who drowned in northern Minnesota after breaking through thin ice while on a snowmobile.

According to the safety training section of the Department of Natural Resources, the number of deaths has shown a downward trend since the 1972-73 winter season. That year there were 32 deaths. In subsequent seasons the totals were: 1973-74 — 28; 1974-75 — 23; 1975-76 — 26; 1976-77 — 13; 1977-78 — 8. Figures for 1978-79 are not available but reportedly 93 per cent of the deaths in a preliminary report were attributed to snowmobile crashes with automobiles.

At the hearing the Agency will, through written or oral testimony, or both, and the introduction of exhibits, explain the proposed amendments (when used in this Notice the term "proposed amendments" refers to both the above-captioned proposed amendments and proposed repeal) and the Agency's reasons for proposing the amendments. After the Agency has introduced its exhibits in support of the proposed amendments and all the witnesses for the Agency have presented their oral or written comments, interested persons will be given an opportunity to ask questions of the Agency. Questioners will be asked to identify the issues and the facts that are of concern. All interested or affected persons will be given an opportunity to participate and to make oral presentations or submit written comments. In addition, written materials may be submitted by mail to Mr. Allan Klein, Hearing Examiner, Office of Hearing Examiners, 1745 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55104, (612) 296-8104, at any time before the record closes. The record will remain open for five working days after the actual hearing ends, or for a longer period not to exceed twenty calendar days if ordered by the Hearing Examiner.

In the interests of economy and efficiency, and helpfulness, the Agency hereby requests that any person who has any objection to any part of the proposed amendments submit a statement of such objection to the Agency (Attention: Mr. John McGuire) and to the Hearing Examiner as soon as possible and prior to March 31, 1980. Such statement should:

(1) state concisely and with particularity each portion of the proposed amendments to which objection is taken;
(2) state the basis for such objection; and
(3) state the objector's proposed modification, the reason such modification is sought, and the scientific or other basis for the proposed modification.

To the extent possible, the Agency will respond at the hearing to each such objection to the proposed amendments. Failure to submit such objections will not prohibit any person from submitting written or oral statements or comments.

PLEASE BE ADVISED THAT THE PROPOSED AMENDMENTS ARE SUBJECT TO CHANGE AS A RESULT OF THE RULE HEARING PROCESS.

For example, changes may be made in specific proposed water quality standards or in methods of sampling and determining compliance. Any changes made could make the rules more stringent or less stringent. The Agency urges those who are interested to any extent in the substance of the proposed amendments, including those who support the amendments as proposed, to participate in the rule hearing process.

Notice is hereby given that 25 days prior to the hearing, a Statement of Need and Reasonableness will be available for review at the Agency and at the Office of Hearing Examiners. This Statement of Need and Reasonableness will include a summary of all of the evidence which will be presented by the Agency at the hearing justifying both the need for and the reasonableness of the proposed amendments. Copies of the Statement of Need and Reasonableness may be obtained from the Office of Hearing Examiners at a minimal charge.

The Statement of Need and Reasonableness will summarize the Agency's reasons for the proposed amendments, identify manuals and reports and other documents relied upon by the Agency, and list those persons, including experts, who will present written or oral comments and information at the hearing on behalf of the Agency. In addition to the Office of Hearing Examiners, copies of the Statement of Need and Reasonableness are available from Mr. McGuire.

Copies of the proposed amendments are now available and one free copy may be obtained by contacting Mr. John McGuire, Division of Water Quality, 1935 West County Road B-2 Roseville, Minnesota 55113 (Phone (612) 296-7242). Additional copies will be available at the hearing at each location.

The Agency has proposed amendments to the following water quality rules:

a. WPC 14 Criteria for the Classification of the Intrastate Waters of the State and the Establishment of Standards of Quality and Purity
b. WPC 15 Criteria for the Classification of the Interstate Waters of the State and the Establishment of Standards of Quality and Purity
c. WPC 24 Classifications of Intrastate Waters of Minnesota
d. WPC 25 Classifications of Interstate Waters of Minnesota

The proposed amendments to Minn. Rules WPC 14 and 15, if adopted, would:

(1) modify the water quality standards for fecal coliform organisms and ammonia;
(2) modify and clarify the water quality standards for dissolved oxygen;
(3) add water quality standards for chlorine;
(4) modify the effluent limitation for fecal coliform organisms and total suspended solids;
(5) establish a new class of waters to be known as limited resource value waters and establish water quality standards and effluent limitations for such waters;
(6) eliminate the common level of treatment requirement of (c) (10) in WPC 14 and 15 which applied for all dischargers in the same reach; and
(7) amend other provisions of the rules for purposes of clarification, consistency and administration, and to conform the rules to the most recent available scientific information.

The proposed amendments to Minn. Rules WPC 24 and 25 would add a class of limited resource value waters and provide a list of waters so classified. In addition, proposed amendments to Minn. Rule WPC 25 would change the designated classification of certain portions of the Minnesota River and the Mississippi River.

Finally, the Agency is proposing to repeal the following rules:

a. WPC 2 Classification and Standards for the Mississippi River and Tributaries from the Upper Lock and Dam at St. Anthony Falls to the Outfall of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Sanitary District Sewage Treatment Plant.
b. WPC 3 Classification and Standards for the Mississippi River and Tributaries from the Outfall of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Sanitary District Sewage Treatment Plant to Lock and Dam No. 2 near Hastings.
c. WPC 5 Classification and Standards for the Minnesota River and Tributary Waters from Carver Rapids to the Outlet of Reilly Creek and Grass Lake, Below Shakopee, zone 36-22.4.
d. WPC 6 Classification and Standards for the Minnesota River and Tributary Waters from the Outlet of Reilly (Turrell) Creek and Grass Lake Below Shakopee to the Junction with the Mississippi River at Fort Snelling, Zone 22.4-0.
e. WPC 7 Classification and Standards for Reilly (Terrell) Creek, Bluff Creek, the Chaska Creeks, Spring Creek, Carver Creek and Sand Creek and Tributary Waters.
f. WPC 8 Classification and Standards for Eagle Creek and Purgatory Creek and Tributary Waters.
g. WPC 9 Classification and Standards for Nine Mile Creek and the Credit River and Tributary Waters.
h. WPC 10 Classification and Establishment of Standards of Water Quality and Purity for the Red River of the North, the Otter Tail River from Fergus Falls to the Mouth, and the Red Lake River from Crookston to the Mouth.
i. WPC 11 Classification and Standards of Water Quality and Purity for the Rainy River from the Outlet of Rainy Lake at Ranier to the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company Dam in International Falls.
j. WPC 12 Classification and Standards of Water Quality and Purity for the Rainy River from the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company Dam in International Falls to the Canadian National Railway Bridge in Baudette.
k. WPC 13 Classification and Standards of Water Quality and Purity for the Rainy River from the Canadian National Railway Bridge in Baudette to Lake of the Woods.
l. WPC 16 Classification and Establishment of Standards of Water Quality and Purity for Anderson Creek, Big Silver Creek, the Blackhoof River, Canutrup Creek (and Mary Brook), Clear Creek, Deer Creek, the Little Net River, the Net River, North Ford Creek, Skunk Creek, Stateline Creek and Stony Brook, Carlton and Pine Counties.
m. WPC 17 Classification and Establishment of Standards of Water Quality and Purity for the Nemidji River System, Carlton and Pine Counties (Except Waters Included in WPC 16.)
n. WPC 18 Effluent Standards for Disposal Systems Discharging to the Mississippi River from the Outfall of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Sanitary District Sewage Treatment Plant to Lock and Dam No. 2 Near Hastings.
o. WPC 19 Effluent Standards for Disposal Systems Discharging to the Minnesota River from above Chaska to the Junction with the Mississippi River at Fort Snelling.
p. WPC 20 Effluent Standards for Disposal Systems Discharging to the Minnesota River from Mankato to Chaska.
q. WPC 21 Effluent Standards for Disposal Systems Discharging to the Mississippi River from the Junction of the Rum River to the Outfall of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Sanitary District Sewage Treatment Plant, and from Lock and Dam No. 2 Near Hastings, to the Junction with the Chippewa River, and to the St. Croix River from Taylors Falls to the Junction with the Mississippi River.
r. WPC 23 Standards of Quality and Purity for Effluents Discharged to Intrastate Waters.
s. WPC 26 Effluent Standards for Disposal Systems Discharging to Lake Superior, Lake of the Woods and Fall Lake.
t. WPC 29 Effluent Standards for Disposal Systems Discharging to that Portion of the Mississippi River from the Blandin Dam in the City of Grand Rapids to the Mouth of the Rum River and, from the Mouth of the Chippewa River to the Iowa Border, the Red Cedar River from Austin to the Minnesota-Iowa Border, the Minnesota River from the Mouth of the Pomme De Terre River and including Marsh Lake to Mankato, and the Blue Earth River from the Mouth of Elm Creek to the Junction with the Minnesota River in Mankato.
u. WPC 31 Effluent Standards for Disposal Systems Discharging to the Roseau River from its Source to the Canadian Border, the North Fork of the Yellow Medicine River, the West Fork of the Lac Qui Parle River, the Blue Earth River from the Iowa Border to the Mouth of Elm Creek, the Little Rock River, the West Fork of the Little Sioux River, the Rock River, the West Fork of the Des Moines River from its Source to the Minnesota-Iowa Border, the Red Cedar River from its Source to Austin, Bear Creek, the Upper Iowa River, Pine Creek, and the Root River.
v. WPC 32 Effluent Standards for Disposal Systems Discharging to Crooked Creek from its Source to its Mouth.

These proposed amendments would require the Metropolitan Waste Control Commission, which services over 80 metro area communities, and most of the over 200 outstate communities to incur additional capital expenditures and operating and maintenance expenses to meet the new standards in the operation of their sewage treatment plants. The impact on each community will have to be determined individually, and some communities will actually realize a savings, but the Agency estimates that the total cost to all local public bodies in the state to implement the proposed amendments will be approximately 150 million dollars. These expenses will be incurred in a period extending as long as ten years after the amendments are adopted and no major expenses are likely within the first couple of years after adoption. Under present law 90 per cent or more of the capital expenditures will be eligible for state and federal funding.

The Agency's authority to promulgate the proposed amendments is contained in Minn. Stat. §115.03 and §115.44 (1978).

Notice: Any person may request notification of the date on which the Hearing Examiner's Report will be available, after which date the Agency may not take any final action on the rules for a period of five working days. Any person may request notification of the date on which the hearing record has been submitted (or resubmitted) to the Attorney General by the Agency. If you desire to be so notified, you may so indicate at the hearing. After the hearing, you may request notification by sending a written request to the Hearing Examiner (in the case of the Hearing Examiner's Report), or to the Agency (in the case of the Agency's submission or resubmission to the Attorney General).

PLEASE BE ADVISED that Minn. Stat. ch. 10A (1978) requires each lobbyist to register with the Ethical Practices Board within five days after he-she commences lobbying. Lobbying includes attempting to influence rulemaking by communicating or urging others to communicate with public officials. A lobbyist is generally any individual who spends more than $250.00 per year for lobbying or any individual who is engaged for pay or authorized to spend money by another individual or association and who spends more than $250.00 per year or five hours per month lobbying. The statute in question provides certain exceptions. HYDRO-AXE ROTARY CUTTER has been mowing its way through about 350 acres of brush at Agassiz national wildlife refuge east of Holt this winter. About a dozen small blocks of brush area where growth was too thick for much wildlife use were selected for cutting. Spring burns are projected for some of the areas where appropriate after the work done this winter and another 350 acres cleared last year. Purpose of the brush cutting and spring burn will be to encourage new growth which is attractive cover for small wildlife species and a vital food source for deer and moose. The Hydro-Axe is capable of clearing approximately an acre an hour, leaving shredded wood fiber and splintered stumps which should contribute to a successful controlled burn. Additional photos are inside today's issue. Big game survey was recently held on Agassiz refuge and the surrounding state wildlife management areas of Elm Lake and Eckvoll. The count showed 1,500 deer — a slight decline from 1,700 tallied last year — and 290 moose. Both deer and moose are reported to be in good condition as a result of a mild winter.

Farm-City Week To Begin Monday

Series of meetings, seminars, tours and the annual farmer-merchant mixer will highlight Farm-City Week in Thief River Falls March 17-24, according to Dwight Tangquist, chairman of the agribusiness committee of the chamber of commerce.

These sessions are being held in cooperation with the county extension office, USDA offices, the chamber's agribusiness committee and other sponsoring groups. They are all open to the farming and business communities, except in one instance, where preregistration is necessary.

Highlighting the week-long programming will be talks on energy, inflation, an open house with USDA, and the annual farmer-merchant mixer. Last year the mixer attracted 740 farmers and businessmen. These festivities will start at 6:30 p.m. on March 24 at the American Legion club. Two special farm tours for businessmen have also been arranged for March 20.

Leading off the week will be a program on "Landscaping for Energy Conservation" at 7:30 p.m., Monday in the public library meeting room. Bill Sliney, area extension agent from Bemidji state university, will be the main speaker.

On Tuesday the area sheep producers association will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room, with Dr. Robert Jordan, University of Minnesota extension livestock specialist, as the principal speaker. All area sheepmen are invited to attend.

"Farming with Inflation" is the subject of Wednesday's day-long session from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Best Western Inn. Pre-registration is required for this program, which will be an informal seminar to assist farmers in planning or analysis of their farm credit program. Those who plan to attend must contact the county extension office at 681-2116 or one of the sponsoring lenders: Northern Found in the search were approximately three-quarters of a pound of marijuana and various items for packaging and use as well as money and marijuana seeds.

Information leading to securing the warrant was obtained by police who made a traffic stop Friday evening.

Land Annexation Brings Opposing City Reactions

Dominating last evening's Thief River Falls city council meeting were various issues that brought debate between council members and members of the audience who appeared before the council.

One area of major concern involved the annexation of 67.9 acres of land at the intersection of highway one west and 59 north of Thief River Falls. Recommendation brought before council members by Jack Quinlivan, city planner, and representatives of the planning commission was to object to the annexation. It was noted that any form of land use could result if the land was annexed.

Alderman Bill Penning introduced the resolution to accept the annexation, "to do what's in our power to annex that portion of the city," he added. The resolution died with no second following alderman Penning's motion.

Alderman Dr. Don Goodrich introduced the resolution for the city attorney, Robert Wurst, to represent the city at a meeting with the planning commission to oppose the annexation. No second followed from the resolution and it too died.

Following this, Mayor Bob Carlson vacated his chair to turn the matter over to the acting Mayor, alderman Ambrose Wysoski. Mayor Carlson then seconded alderman Goodrich's resolution. A roll call vote resulted in three "no" votes to the resolution not to annex, by alderman Ole Engelstad, alderman Penning, and alderman Clayton Restad, and two "yes" votes from Mayor Carlson and alderman Goodrich. Alderman Milan Borsheim, alderman Wysoski and alderman J. J. Womack, abstained.

Final conclusion of the issue, according to Wurst, was that "a three to two vote resulted not to affirmatively oppose the issue."

Hearing date to further discuss the issue was set for March 19 at 8:30 a.m. in which it will be stated by the city attorney to the state municipal board that the city of Thief River Falls will not take a position at the hearing.

Second item of major concern to council members and the general public was the deterioration of mail service to and from Thief River Falls noted since February. Letters have presently been received from Rep. Arlan Stangeland, and Sen. David Durenberger concerning the deterioration of the service. The major services provided now are special delivery items and priority mail only. This action may be an attempt to eliminate air taxi service completely, according to Wurst. Council members invite the public to respond to the air taxi service in Thief River Falls.

In further discussion, Jim Holmes, lawyer from Holmes and Graven in Minneapolis appeared before council members to discuss revenue bonds for the Thief River Center association (Red Owl facility to be located on highway 59 south near K-Mart).

Resolution for the bonds now stands at $500,000 from the previous resolution which

Folkedahl-Hams Vows Exchanged At St. Hilaire

Miss Deborah Folkedahl, daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Folkedahl of Thief River Falls, and Leon Hams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hams, Red Lake Falls, exchanged marriage vows recently at a three o'clock ceremony at the Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire.

Rev. Lloyd Heroff officiated at the double ring, candlelight ceremony. At the organ was Marisa Johnson, a friend of the bride. She played the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Craig Folkedahl. During the ceremony, the bride's brothers: Craig, Jonathon, Mark and Bruce Folkedahl, sang "Lord, Give Them This Day," "God, Woman and a Man," and "Gift of Love." After the sermonette, Jonathon Folkedahl sang, "Summer of Roses;" and prior to the benediction, Craig Folkedahl sang, "The Lord's Prayer." Acoloytes were the bride's nephews: Scott Reay and Brendan Wilde.

Baskets of fern, accented with red carnations, graced the altar.

The bride was attired in a gown of white qiana knit, styled with lantern sleeves and a chapel-length train. Venice lace traced the slit neckline and flowed down over the fitted bodice. A matching lace headpiece held her fingertip veil of bridal illusion, edged with Venice lace. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis, accented with holly and greenery.

Meribeth Reay of Thief River Falls attended her sister as matron of honor. Other attendants were Dian Wilde, Red Lake Falls, sister of the bride; and Teresa Wilde, Red Lake Falls, and Staci Reay, Thief River Falls, nieces of the bride. Their identical attire included red velvet straight skirts with front slits, matching velvet vests with shawl collars, and white satin blouses with long full sleeves and small stand-up collars. They carried white fur muffs featuring red carnations and holly.

Wearing similar attire was the flower girl Sarah Hams, Barnesville, a niece of the groom. The rings were carried by Jonathon Hams, Thief River Falls, a nephew of the groom. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a black tuxedo with a white pleated shirt and a red carnation boutonniere with holly.

Renee Henney of Thief River Falls was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the groom as best man was Michael Swendra, Red Lake Falls, a friend. Groomsmen were Terry Hams of Grand Forks, Steven Hams, Red Lake Falls, brothers of the groom; and Richard Swendra, Red Lake Falls, a friend. The ushers were Mitchell Hams, Thief River Falls, a brother of the groom; and Brian Wilde, Red Lake Falls, a nephew of the bride. The wedding programs were distributed by Scott Hams and Jarrod Wilde of Red Lake Falls, brother of the groom, and newphew of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Folkedahl selected a teal blue knitted velvet vest and a floor-length skirt complemented by a blue satin blouse and a white gardenia corsage. Mrs. Hams was attired in a red floor-length A-line skirt, white blouse and a black velvet jacket. Her corsage was also a white gardenia.

A reception for 200 guests followed in the church parlors. Host and hostess were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mark and Diane Folkedahl of Grand Forks. Liza Hams, Red Lake Falls, sister of the groom, presided at the guest book as Penny Myers, Thief River Falls, and Vicki Cuno, Savage, friends of the bride, served the punch. The bride's nephew and nieces: Brett Reay, Megan and Maia Wilde, distributed the rice packets.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Donald Rupprecht. The cake, supported by pillars, featured a bouquet of miniature red and white carnations and holly on the top tier, a miniature bride and groom, on the middle tier, and a fountain with green water, on the bottom tier. On either side of the cake were heart-shaped cakes, connected by stairways with mini bridesmaids in red velvet leading to the cake with the bride's name, and mini groomsmen in black tuxedos leading to the cake with the groom's name.

Klosterman is a first year student at Northland Community college and Blazek is enrolled at the Area Vocational Technical Institute. They were accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Klosterman, Kurt's mother, and Mrs. Harold Blazek, Harold's wife.

The introduction was made by scholarship chairman Mrs. Barbara Restad, who was assisted in making the selection by Mrs. Senora Skay.

During the business meeting, the unit voted to sponsor a student from the Grygla high school to attend Girls State this year. The unit also voted to send $50 to the Veterans hospital at Fargo to be used for entertainment and lunch for the veterans.

Several reports were given. Membership chairman Mrs. Avis Odegaard reported that the unit now has 596 members. She urged those who had not paid their membership dues to do so at once. President Marilyn Winters gave the report for the Americanism chairman Mrs. Constance Driscoll, who was unable to attend the meeting. She stated that United States flags had been presented recently to Art Heinze, district commissioner of Voyageur Trails district of Boy Scouts of America for scout pack 199, sponsored by St. John Lutheran church, Thief River Falls; and to David Fournier of Falls bakery to replace the flag flown daily at the bakery.

Information was given on the Blood bank drive set for March 20, from 1:00 to 7:00 p.m., at Northwestern hospital. The unit offered to furnish lunch and workers. Volunteers, donating their work, cookies or bars were asked to call Octavia Jorgenson, 681-2498.

Members were asked to submit prayers for the Auxiliary Prayer book. Prayers may be left at the Legion club room or with Constance Driscoll. Communications included a thank-you note from the Veterans hospital at Fargo for the articles sent for the veterans.

Members were also reminded of the American Legion birthday party membership dinner, March 15, open to all paid-up members of the post and unit. It was also noted that April 26th has been set for the luncheon for Ninth District President Mrs. JoAnne Reeve.

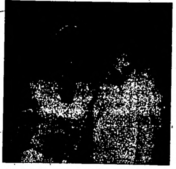
Nancy Smeby And Perry Hubbard Wed In Mpls.



Mr. and Mrs. Perry J. Hubbard are at home in Minneapolis at 1510-33rd Avenue northeast, following an exchange of marriage vows at the Waite Park Wesleyan church in Minneapolis and a wedding trip to Vermont.

The bride is the former Nancy R. Smeby, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Smeby of Grygla. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Hubbard of Kenosha, Wis.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Rev. Don Kinde and Rev. Charles Johnson, Elaine Rausch, a friend of the couple, was the organist. Vocalists were Dan Hubbard, a brother of the groom, who sang, "God, Woman and a Man" as the bride and her attendants walked to the altar; the groom's parents, who sang, "Lean On Me," during the ceremony; and Shari Andres, friend and bridesmaid, who, as the couple lit the unity candle, sang "Walking in Your World," a song written by the groom.

Forming the chancel setting, on either side of the altar, were three lanterns, decorated with holly and wedding doves, a gift from Paul Todd, a friend.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white satin gown with Chantilly lace enhancing the bodice and shepherdess sleeves. Creating back interest was a cathedral length train. Her veil of bridal illusion, edged with Chantilly lace, was held by a corresponding headpiece. She carried a nosegay of white roses, carnations and babies' breath, center with a light blue rose. Her flowers, like all the flowers at the wedding, were made by the groom's mother.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Linda Deel, Minneapolis, a friend of the bride. Other attendants were Pam Mostrom, Grygla and JoAnn Semby, sisters of the bride; Ilene Smeby, sister-in-law of the bride, and Shari Andros, a friend of the couple. Their identical gowns of winter blue qiana were styled in bloused fashion with short sleeves and ruffled collars trimmed with white lace. In their hair, they wore a cluster of babies' breath. They carried bouquets of roses, carnations, daisies and babies' breath in white and shades of blue.

Doug Johnson, Monticello, a cousin of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Tim and Dan Hubbard, Kenosha, Wis., and Paul Hubbard, Minneapolis, brothers of the groom, and Tim Kinley, Minneapolis, a friend of the groom. Serving as ushers were Jim Smeby, Fertile, and Paul Semby, Thief River Falls, brothers of the bride. All wore light blue tuxedos with white carnation boutonnieres. The groom's all-white attire was accented with a blue carnation boutonniere, accented with babies' breath.

The mother of the bride wore a rose-colored, floor-length gown with long, sheer sleeves. The groom's mother was attired in a long-sleeved navy blue gown with light blue collar and cuffs. Complementing the front of the gown were light blue buttons from the V-neckline to the hem. Their identical corsages were of white, blue and rose colored roses.

Honor guests at the wedding were Bert Sundberg, Kenosha, Wis., grandfather of the groom, and Marlene Gustafson, Minneapolis, the bride's personal attendant.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception and program for 225 guests in the church fellowship hall. Host and hostess were Dennis and Kitty Sundberg, uncle and aunt of the groom. Denise Davey and Annette Peterson, friends of the bride, registered the guests as Terry and RoseAnn Watt, friends of the couple, ladled the punch. Gift bearers were Sandra and Sonie Walquist, friends of the couple, and Lisa and Larry Sundberg, cousins of the groom.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with blue daisies and holly. Holly with red berries also accented the three white roses that topped the cake, which was cut and served by Jane Hubbard, sister-in-law of the groom, and Carolyn Urman, a friend of the bride. Pouring coffee were Marion Ostby and Nancy Teigland, aunts of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Grygla high school and is employed as secretary for United Asphalt at Fridley. The groom is a graduate of Bradford high school, Kenosha, Wis., and is minister of music and outreach at Waite Park Wesleyan church.

Contributions To IRA Made Until April 15

Eligible wokers have until April 15 to make their 1979 contributions to their individual retirement savings arrangements (IRA's); however, if they file their 1979 income tax returns after April 15 on an extension, they have until the date that they file their returns to make their contributions. Since penalties are assessed for excessive contributions, this period for making contributions allows taxpayers to closely calculate the amount of the contribution, and still be able to deduct it from their 1979 taxable income, the IRS explains.

IRA's are taxpayer-initiated retirement plans set up by workers not covered by qualified pension or retirement plans where they are employed. IRA's also are available to non-working spouses of eligible workers.

Many banks, insurance companies, credit unions, and other financial institutions can provide additional information on setting up and maintaining IRAs. In addition, the IRS has a free booklet, IRS Publication 590, "Tax Information on Individual Retirement Arrangements," which can be ordered by mail using the order form in the tax package.

Land O' Lakes Notes 64 Per Cent Sales Rise

Land O'Lakes president Ralph Hofstad reported an increase of 64 per cent in the cooperative's sales in 1979. The rise was to $2.4 billion from $1.5 billion in 1978.

In his message to membership at the 59th annual meeting of the farm supply and food marketing cooperative, Hofstad said, "The significant surge in sales is attributed in large part to the first full year of operation of the newly formed beef division. We were hopeful of generating margins of approximately $2 per head in the first year of operation, but it now appears the figure will approximate $4 a head at the time the patronage is distributed next June."

He noted that in 1979, Land O'Lakes returned over $16 million in cash to its members as well as revolving one full year of equities. The Land O'Lakes president called the full year revolvement of equity "a goal cooperatives strive for but are rarely able to achieve."

Hofstad announced the consolidation of Dawson Mills with Land O'Lakes effective March 1, 1980. Dawson Mills, headquartered in Dawson, is engaged in processing and marketing oilseed products, including soy protein, meals and oils. This is an example, Hofstad said, of Land O'Lakes opening its marketing umbrella still wider.

He cited a cooperative venture among Land O'Lakes and several other North American and European cooperatives to form InTrade, Inc., and through it purchase a controlling position in the A.C. Toepfer company, the world's fifth largest international grain trading organization. Hofstad observed that in the years ahead through this association, "We can more effectively reach out past our shores to sell our agricultural products in the international markets."

The Land O'Lakes chief executive officer outlined eight priorities for 1980 and the decade ahead for an audience of over 3,000 upper midwest farmer-owners and managers of member cooperatives at the Radisson hotel in Minneapolis. He enumerated them as: strengthen dairy by expanding cheese and whey product marketing; increase new food product introductions; and expand livestock and crop production programs, placing emphasis in those areas where production and marketing can be coordinated.

Also, continue leadership role in providing energy for agriculture; emphasize people needs in management to assure efficiency of operations throughout the cooperative system; continue the momentum Land O'Lakes now has going in the beef business and expand the boxed beef operation; explore market entry opportunities in pork; and strengthen Land O'Lakes planning capabilities to enhance our competitive position.

The Land O'Lakes president said the cooperative is committed to exit the '80s stronger than it entered. To do this, he explained, six items need serious attention: (1) Avoid excessive duplication of facilities and services; (2) avoid marketing efforts that are not based on sound marketing principles; (3) acquire international trading capabilities; (4) understand and fully evaluate the impact of substitutes and imitations in the market; (5) closely observe and study nutritional and health trends; and (6) encourage commitment to the cooperative system.

Calling attention to what he termed "the significant issues of the '80s affecting cooperatives and farmers," Hofstad cited the changing structure of agriculture, responses to world hunger and malnutrition, energy costs and development of alternative fuels, inflation, availability of capital, impact of government regulations, changing transportation systems and undue influence of labor unions.

The Land O'Lakes president pledged that Land O'Lakes' objectives for the '80s are "to be on the farm meeting our farmer-members' needs and in the market finding how and where we can maximize the returns for the products produced on the farm."

Quarterly Fee For 'U'M Daily Is Supported

Quarterly fee Twin Cities campus students pay for the Minnesota Daily should remain mandatory, a University of Minnesota student fees committee said.

The full committee overturned a subcommittee recommendation that students who do not wish to pay for the Daily be refunded a portion of their student services fee.

The committee recommendation will now be considered by its parent group, the Twin Cities student assembly. Recommendations from both groups and from the university administration will be considered by the board of regents in April.

Funding for the Daily has been the subject of debate since the publication last spring of a humor issue that critics considered anti-religious, defamatory and obscene.

Kim Reynolds, a member of the fees committee, said any change in Daily funding could open a Pandora's box. "We must look at the long term implications. Someone might object to funding for international student programs because of the international situation or for the student unions because of the speakers or movies they schedule," she said.

The committee recommended that the board of student publications quarterly fee be increased to $2.01. Board president Jim Clark said that $1.85 would be for the Daily, 10 cents for an alternative publication, and the remainder for the board and for an annual literary magazine.

In addition to the board, 22 other campus organizations receive funds through the student services fee.

Drees Selected To "Who's Who"

Holli Drees, St. Hilaire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Drees is among 34 students from the University of Minnesota technical college, Crookston (UMC) who have been selected as being among the country's most outstanding campus leaders and will have their names listed in the 1979-80 edition of "Who's Who among students in American junior colleges."

A campus nominating committee submitted names of students, and 34 were selected based on academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

They join an elite group of students selected from more than 700 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Soo Locks Of St. Lawrence Open March 24

David L. Printy, Minnesota chommissioner of Economic development, recently called upon Maj. Gen. Richard L. Harris of the U.S. corps of Engineers to open the Soo locks of the St. Lawrence seaway on March 24 when the seaway east of the locks opens to shipping.

"Opening of the locks would make possible an expenditious movement of the tremendous backlog of grain now stored in Duluth and in country elevators throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas," Printy told Harris, adding that he would greatly appreciate his understanding and cooperation in the matter.

If the opening of the Soo locks does not coincide with the opening of the rest of the sea route, incoming ships would be delayed for several days at considerable expense to their owners. Because of exceptionally fair weather and the glut of grain now stored in Duluth and elsewhere, farm groups, shippers and government officials prevailed upon the St Lawrence Seaway development corporation to open the waterway on March 24

Corps of engineers has the authority to open the Soo locks under extraordinary circumstances such as these, according to David Helberg, director of the Seaway Port authority of Duluth. Both the seaway and the locks are customarily opened to traffic on April 1

Storage problems threaten to become overwhelming with 60 per cent more grain on hand now than in 1979. Duluth and Superior port officials report. Much of the surplus is said to stem from the grain millers' strike that stopped shipments for 12 weeks last fall.

Rural Areas Eligible For Public Funds

Application for federal funds under a program to provide public transportation services for non-urban Minnesota residents must be made to the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) by April 1, according to commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Such public transportation services — usually provided by Bus, mini-bus, van, or taxi — include fixed route-fixed schedule services, route deviation or demand-responsive (dial-a-ride) systems, he said.

Applications from rural areas for these federal funds have been accepted since last November. A rural area is defined as one that has a population of less than 50,000 people, Braun said.

Minnesota's share of the initial allocation will be about $1.6 million for the first year of the program, he said. Unused funds will be carried forward after the first year. Nationwide the new program provides $75 million.

Monday used for 80 per cent of capital costs and-or for 50 per cent of net operating costs.

This program is funded under Section 18 (Public Transportation Financial Assistance program) of the Urban Mass Transportation act of 1964, as amended.

For further information and applications, contact Al Vogel, Office of Transit Administration, 416 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155. Phone (612) 296-0372.

Assistance To Businesses Is Announced

Creation of a small business assistance center within the Minnesota department of economic development was announced recently by the Minnesota governor's office.

A cooperative effort between government, the private sector and education, the center will provide a broad range of services available at a central location to small business. Program will also include the establishment of small business councils on a local level statewide at chambers of commerce.

Gov. Al Quie pointed out that through the small business center, business owners will be able to receive counseling in many areas. They include licenses, permits, government procurement and set aside programs, promotions and advertising, merchandising, inventory and control, purchasing, financial analysis, records and credit collection, personnel, office and plant management, engineering and research, foreign trade and market research.

According to Commissioner David Printy, Dee Kauth of the department of economic development will coordinate the small business assistance center activities. Larry Binger, consultant and director of the small business assistance program for the St. Paul area chamber of commerce, has been retained on a part-time basis by the Minnesota association of commerce and industry in cooperation with the department of economic development to build resource capabilities at local chambers of commerce.

"All it takes to get started is a phone call to Dee Kauth in St. Paul," said the governor.

The small business center will match people's needs to the available resources. Kauth will help people deal with business questions by providing answers directly, referring people to experts and sending consultants to personally advise when necessary. She will use the resources of local chambers of commerce, federal programs, the five state chapters of the service corps of retired executives and the active corps of executives (SCORE-ACE) and their satellite operations, the small business development centers at nine of the state's colleges and universities and technical assistance expertise in the department.

Kauth's number is (612) 296-5011. Her address is Minnesota Department of Economic Development, 480 Cedar St., St. Paul, MN 55101.

Four Additional Measles Cases Are Confirmed

There are still confirmed cases of measles being reported in Marshall county. In the past week four new cases of measles have developed in children under three years of age, according to the Marshall-Kittson county nursing service.

Measles is a serious illness and can be prevented. Complications can be severe enough to result in permanent damage and even death, states Viola L. Rud, director of the service.

Parents should check their children's records to make certain they are protected. Anyone under 23 years of age never having had the vaccine should be immunized. Any child receiving the vaccine before 12 months of age should be re-immunized. If your child has already been exposed to measles consult your family physician.

Average Weekly Earnings Drop In January

Real gross average weekly earnings of full and part-time workers on production or nonsupervisory jobs in the private nonfarm sector of the economy decreased 1.1 per cent from December to January after allowance for the usual seasonal variation, the U.S. department of labor's bureau of labor statistics reported.

A 0.3 per cent increase in average hourly earnings was offset by a 1.4 per cent increase in the consumer price index for urban wage earners and clerical workers (CPI-W). Average weekly hours were unchanged.

Real earnings — or earnings in constant dollars — are calculated by adjusting earnings in current dollars for changes in the CPI-W.

Over the year, real average weekly earnings were down 6.1 per cent. A 7.4 per cent increase in average hourly earnings was offset by a 0.3 per cent decrease in average weekly hours and by a 14 per cent increase in the CPI-W. (Before adjustment for the CPI-W and seasonal change, average weekly earnings were $224.99 in January compared with $210.14 a year earlier).

Real spendable earnings — average weekly earnings reduced by social security and federal income taxes applicable to a married worker with three dependents who earned the average amount and then deflated by the CPI-W — decreased 1.1 per cent from December, seasonally adjusted. Over the year, real spendable earnings were down 6.9 per cent.

The hourly earnings index in dollars of constant power decreased 1.2 per cent from December to January. Compared with a year ago, the index was down 5.5 per cent. The index excludes the effects of overtime in manufacturing and of interindustry shifts, such as the shift of workers between high-wage and low-wage industries.

International Falls, Roseau Maps Published

Bedrock geologic maps of the Roseau and International Falls area have been published by the Minnesota geological survey at the University of Minnesota, according to survey director Matt Walton.

The maps portray, in color, the consolidated rock formations, faults and other structures identified by the survey.

The Roseau map is based almost entirely on data from scattered drill holes and the interpretation of magnetic and gravity maps, Walton said.

Natural exposures of bedrock are more abundant in the International Falls area, but there is less information on drilling available in the area. As a result, much of the work on the maps of the area was based on magnetic data acquired by the survey group.

Copies of the maps may be obtained from the Minnesota Geological survey, 1633 Eustis Street, St. Paul, MN 55108, for $9 each. Payment should accompany all orders and include 60 cents postage. Minnesota residents must include four per cent sales tax.

I-R Convention Endorses And Elects Monday

Stroble, Ina Thorsgard, Phil Nelson and Jerry Wedul. Alternates to the state convention are Skogerboe, Forsberg, Ina Thorsgard, Dr. Berg, Jerry Wedul, Jon Metusalem and Dr. E. O. Thorsgard.

Resolutions committee included David Olin, chairman, Elaine McFarland, Norma Johnson and Jerry Wedul.

Many resolutions were adopted in general areas of education, constitutional amendments, military, agriculture, economy and government at all levels.

Among those approved were for adoption of constitutional amendments of initiative and referendum, spending limit on state government, 60 per cent vote of both houses to raise taxes and bipartisan reapportionment commission — all of which are Gov. Al Quie's proposals.

It was resolved that all new programs mandated by the state for schools should be 100 per cent funded by the state and that state funding for schools should be increased enough to keep up with inflation. A resolution approving legislation to limit class size in kindergarten through third grade to 15 students per one classroom teacher — also Gov. Quie's proposal — was defeated.

The county group asked reinstatement of a presidential primary, that the legal drinking age be raised from 19 to 21, that stiffer penalties for those who furnish alcohol or controlled substances illegally be supported and that any forms of gun control be opposed.

A resolution calling for the legislature to provide money or credits for farmer owned and operated alcohol plants for gasohol use was defeated, but resolutions calling for establishment of utilities corridors for use by all utilities be established and that farmers be allowed to operate as part of the free enterprise system were approved.

Registration for the draft was supported for all males commencing at age 20 and a resolution adopted calling for a strong reserve and national guard force in the interest of the country's security.

Support was also given to improvement of highways 32 and 59 north of highway 2 to the status of 10-ton roads and for the postal service to return air taxi and other airmail service which was recently discontinued to Thief River Falls.

Views On Dental Health®

TOOTH FOOD

The first thing to teach your children about preventive tooth care is that good eating habits are important. Foods that keep the whole body healthy will also keep teeth, gums and jawbones in good condition. Milk, cheese, meat, eggs, vegetables, fruits, whole grain breads and cereals are excellent for healthy teeth and gums.

If your child eats between meals, remember that snacks should be low in sugar. In-between-meal treats such as candy, cookies, ice cream, sugared chewing gum and sweet drinks may play havoc with a child's teeth. Bacteria which are normally present in the mouth combine with sugar to form acids - acids which attack tooth enamel. Eventually, it causes cavities.

When sweets are eaten between meals there is more apt to be a chance for cavities to develop, since the child will probably not brush right after - before acids have a chance to form.

Some toothworthy snacks for children are: apples, oranges, bananas, plums, peaches, fruit juices, milk and cheese. The greater distance between sweet junk foods and teeth, the better.

73 Participate In Foods Show

Everything from Chinese cuisine to microwave sandwiches was featured at the annual 4-H Favorite Foods show conducted March 8 at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls. Seventy-three foods project members participated in the event by either preparing a favorite recipe, giving an informal demonstration, or displaying an original recipe. Ethnic foods were popular this year, especially with City View 4-H members who selected foods as a club project. They prepared meals from Mexico, Italy, China, and Sweden. In addition to preparing the foods, 4-H members also showed table settings and centerpieces appropriate for the foods.

Favorite Foods show is a non-competitive event which gives foods project members an opportunity to show the public and each other what they've learned in their project work.

A cookbook of all the recipes displayed at the show will be available at the extension office this spring.

Kylo Hams Named All-Stater

Glen Peters, Lincoln high school basketball coach, announced Tuesday that he has been notified that Kyle Hams of the Prowlers was named to the 1979-80 WCCO radio all-state high school basketball team of the year.

A three-year starter at guard for the Prowlers, Hams averaged 16.8 points and 7.4 assists per game this winter in leading Thief River Falls to a 13-6 season record and a share of the Northwest Athletic Conference title.

On Monday it was announced that Thief River Falls' Billy Jury and Dave Geatz were named to the WCCO all-state hockey team of the year.

The addition of Hams, Jury and Geatz increases the list of Lincoln high school all-state players to 42 over the past 49 years, including 19 hockey players, 11 basketball players, 10 football players and two baseball players.

Thief River Falls hockey all-staters include defenseman Bob Baker, 1945; defenseman Jim Doyle, 1945; forward Wes Hovie, 1945; forward Jack Erickson, 1951 and 1952; forward Marv Jorde, 1954; defenseman Mike McMahnomen, 1954; goalie Jack Hoppe, 1954; center Joe Poole, 1954 and 1955; center Jack Poole, 1956; wing Glenn Carlson, 1956; defenseman Duane Glass, 1956; center Dale Wennberg, 1959; defenseman Archie Schneider, 1960; forward Kent LeMoine, 1967; defenseman Tony Dorn, 1974; goalie Bill Jury, 1980; and defenseman Dave Geatz, 1980.

Through the 1959-60 season, Thief River Falls all-state hockey selections were made at the state tournament, LeMoine, like Jury and Geatz, were WCCO radio selections while Dorn was tabbed by WCCO, the Minneapolis Tribune and St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Lincoln basketball all-staters include guard John Chommie, 1932; forward Wendell Kielty, 1932; guard Roy Lee, 1938; center Loren Stadum, 1938 and 1939; Bob Brodin, 1967; center Sheldon Joppru, 1969; guard Duane Dicken, 1974; center Wayne Peterson, 1975; guard Steve Enderlein, 1979; and guard Kyle Hams, 1980.

Those early basketball selections were picked at the state tournament. Starting with Brodin in 1967 the Prowlers were WCCO all-state choices.

Prowlers given all-state status on the football field include offensive back Wes Hovie, 1945; offensive back Jack Erickson, 1951; quarterback Sid Vraa, 1954; offensive back Paul Klungness, 1962; end Sheldon Joppru, 1968; offensive lineman Wayne Olson, 1969; lineman Merv Eriksson, 1970; offensive back-linebacker Rob Swenson, 1971; offensive back-defensive back Kent Smith, 1972; lineman Tony Dorn, 1973.

Minneapolis Tribune's Ted Peterson named the Thief River Falls football all-starters until Olson landed a spot on the WCCO team in 1969. Eriksson was another WCCO pick; Swenson was both WCCO and St. Paul Pioneer Press; Smith and Dorn made all three honor squads.

In baseball the Prowlers had state tournament all-state choices in first basemen Glenn Carlson, 1955; and rightfielder Gene Weckwerth, 1959.

Mark Storhaug Named All-American

Bemidji coach Lee Albrecht was named NAIA coach of the year. Storhaug gained All-American honors a year ago with a sixth place finish in the 1,650-yard freestyle, and again swan a leg on a fourth place 800-yard freestyle relay team.

MARSHALL COUNTY CENTRAL girls high school basketball team won the District 32 tournament title last week and will compete Thursday and Friday in the 1980 Region 8A tournament at Crookston. The Nordics will face District 29 winner Cass Lake Thursday at 7 p.m. in the tournament opener. Members of the Newfolden squad include, front left and right, student managers Charlie Reisen and Karen Krohn; middle row left to right, Lisa Johnson, Dorene Larson, Brenda Dahl, Charmaine Broderson, Kelly Olson and Debbie Peterson; back row left to right, assistant coach Mark Jorgenson, Ann Hanson, Tami Wilcox, Rosalyn Knutson, Lisa Busch, Nancy Hanson, Sue Olson, Jill Johnson, Denise Olson, Valarie Stokke, student manager Karen Kjensrud and head coach Tom Mjelde.

MCC Girls Play Cass Lake In Region 8A Opener Thursday

An 8:45 p.m. meeting between three-time defending champion Fertile-Beltrami of District 30 and unbeaten Warren of District 31 will highlight Thursday's first round games in the 1980 girls Region 8A high school basketball tournament in the Crookston Central gym.

Tournament opener at 7 o'clock that night will match District 29 winner Cass Lake against District 32 champion Marshall County Central.

Consolation and championship games will be played Friday at 7 and 8:45 p.m., respectively.

The Falcons and Ponies are the headliners, but the Nordics, according to Marshall County Central head coach Tom Mjelde, don't have to take a back seat to any of the tournament teams.

"I think our team is capable of playing with either one of them," said Mjelde, looking toward a possible championship game appearance against the Fertile-Beltrami vs. Warren winner. Mjelde is quick to point out, however, that the Nordics will have their hands full against Cass Lake, a surprise entry out of District 29 where they were seeded fifth but defeated Blackduck 35-30 for the title. "I look for a real tough game Thursday," warned Mjelde. "I heard Cass Lake is playing real good ball right now."

Marshall County Central will carry a 19-2 record into the tournament.

"At the beginning of the season I thought we'd have a chance to be where we are now," mentioned Mjelde. "I had hoped to be here, and it turned out that way."

Offensive balance and defensive pressure have been the keys to the Nordics' success this winter, according to Mjelde. "Our strong point is our press," he said. "I think we play really tough defense. We've won some games strictly because of our defense. They really hustle."

While Marshall County Central switches from full court zone presses to half court pressure and finally back into a zone on defense, the Nordics' offensive blanace features four potential double figure scorers in 5-8 senior center Rosalyn Knutson, 5-7 junior forward Lisa Busch, 5-9 senior forward Tammy Wilcox and 5-7 sophomore guard Jill Johnson.

"We have four girls who can score in any game from anywhere," noted Mjelde.

The fifth starter — 5-7 freshman guard Sue Olson — is the Nordics' leader on defense and the only Marshall County Central player named to the 1979-80 All-District 32 honor squad.

Top reserves include 5-7 Ann Hanson, 5-6 Val Stokke and 5-6 Lisa Johnson — all seniors.

The Nordics, who beat Karlstad 56-43 for the District 32 tournament title last week, enter the Region 8A event with an eight-game winning streak. Marshall County Central has not lost since a 44-39 defeat at the hands of Hallock back on Jan. 31. The Nordics' only other loss was a 50-37 decision at Plummer that ended a season-opening seven game winning streak.

In Class AA girls basketball tournament action this week, North Half winner Detroit Lakes will play host to South Half titlist Little Falls Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Region 8AA championship game. The Lakers are 19-2 for the year and the Flyers are 20-1.

Final NWAC Basketball Statistics Are Listed

Teams at opposite ends of the spectrum — Thief River Falls with a 13-5 overall record and Bemidji with a 5-13 mark — were co-champions this winter and a player who appeared in just two conference games — Lonnie Meade of Fergus Falls — finished with his name atop the scoring charts, according to final year-end Northwest Athletic Conference high school basketball statistics supplied by NWAC publicist Sam Mostacelli of Crookston.

Bemidji actually finished with a conference-best 4-2 NWAC record while Thief River Falls and preseason favorite Crookston checked in at 4-3. But the league title is based upon a point system that makes home-and-home games between conference rivals worth one point apiece and doubles their worth if they meet just once during the year. Thus, the defending champion Lumberjacks and the Prowlers shared the 1979-80 NWAC pennant with five points apiece.

Meade missed half of the Otters' NWAC schedule because of an ankle injury, but finished with a conference-best 20.0 scoring average. Rob Egersdorf of Bemidji averaged 18.8 points in six NWAC games, Tim Knotek of Crookston 17.3 in seven; and Kyle h Hams of Thief River Falls 16.1 in seven.

Knotek's 17.3 average was best in all games, with Hams averaging 16.7, Meade 16.1 and Egersdorf 15.5.

In other statistical categories:

+ Fergus Falls teammates Knute Rotto (16-for-24) and Paul Bakken (21-for-37) were the top NWAC field goal shooters with 66.7 and 56.8 per cent figures, respectively. Overall it was Thief River Falls teammates Greg Miller (68-for-117) and Hams (125-for-240) ranking 1-2 with 58.1 and 50.2 per cent figures, respectively.

+ Egersdorf led the NWAC in free throw percentage by making 23 of 28 attempts for 82.1 per cent. Hams and teammate Mark Schmitke shared the second spot with Bakken at 75 per cent as all three made 15 of 20 shots. Schmitke was the overall leader as he made 34 of 44 free throws for 77.3 per cent. Hams ranked second with 51 of 68 for 75 per cent.

+ Meade also had his name atop the NWAC rebounding charts with an average of 12.5 caroms per game. Knotek averaged 10.3. In all games it was Meade with a 10.3 average, Knotek 9.3, Kyle Roelofs of Crookston 8.0 and Todd Young of Thief River Falls 7.8.

+ Hams led the NWAC with 7.8 assists per game, followed by Todd Selk of East Grand Forks 4.8 and Jerome Simmons of Crookston 4.6. Hams was also the overall leader with an average of 7.3 assists per game. Selk averaged 5.2.

+ Fergus Falls led the NWAC in three team categories as the Otters shot 48 per cent from the field, 66 per cent from the free throw line and averaged 36.2 rebounds per game. Crookston averaged 16.4 assists per game. Thief River Falls and Crookston were the overall leaders as the Prowlers shot 48 per cent from the field and 64 per cent from the free throw line while the Pirates averaged 33.1 rebounds and 15.8 assists per game.

Lykken Wins National Title

Tom Lykken of Thief River Falls put his name in the record books as the national amateur champion over the weekend with a top finish in the first annual national field archery association (NFAA) national indoor championships at Omaha, Neb.

Lykken, a member of the Thief River Falls archery club and recognized as one of the top amateur archers in the nation, completed the two 300-round days of competition with a perfect 600 score.

Some 525 archers from 38 states and England participated in the Saturday and Sunday event, the first official NFAA indoor championships.

Winner of five Minnesota state titles over the past three years, Lykken was a runner-up finisher last summer in the national amateur freestyle unlimited division field round competition.

State Hockey Meet Starts On Thursday

Biggest high school hockey tournament in the nation unfolds for a thirty-sixth year Thursday when the annual Minnesota State High School League state hockey tournament is held before virtual sell-out crowds at the St. Paul Civic Center arena.

A new state champion is certain as two-time defending titlist Edina East failed to qualify through section tournament action. Three schools from last year's field of eight will be on hand, though. One of them, Hill-Murray, is the only undefeated team among this year's entries with a 25-0 record. The Pioneers, yet to win a state title, have been in the tournament the past five years. The two other entrants back are perennial entry Grand Rapids and Irondale, who qualified for the first time last year.

The other entrants include Hopkins Lindbergh, South St. Paul, Minneapolis Southwest, East Grand Forks and Bloomington Jefferson, making its first ever state tournament appearance. South St. Paul has been to the event many times — 20 — and so has Minneapolis Southwest — 15. Hopkins Lindbergh was entered one previous time — 1975 — as was East Grand Forks — 1971.

Grand Rapids, the veteran entry, is entered for a seventh consecutive year and eighth time over the past nine years. During that period of time, the Indians have won two state titles (1975 and 1976). The only other team in this year's field who has captured a state championship is Minneapolis Southwest, who won in 1970.

With a seating capacity of 16,118 and standing room only crowds expected for the championship series of the three-day affair, last year's record-setting attendance mark of 100,902 could be eclipsed. The largest crowd ever to witness a hockey game in Minnesota — 19,145 — watched last year's opening session.

First round pairings on Thursday beginning at 12:35 p.m. find South St. Paul (18-4-2) meeting Minneapolis Southwest (20-4), followed by Hill-Murray (25-0) against East Grand Forks (16-7). The evening session, which starts at 7:05, will put Bloomington Jefferson (20-1-2) against Irondale (21-4), followed by the clash between Grand Rapids (18-5) and Hopkins Lindbergh (17-6).

Semifinal action is set for 7:05 p.m. Friday, with the championship game scheduled for 7:35 p.m. Saturday. First round consolation games will start Friday at 12:35 p.m. The consolation title will be decided Saturday at 12:35 p.m.

FUND-RAISING efforts for the installation of an artificial ice plant in the old arena received a big boost Friday between periods of the Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena when eight $500 donations were presented to the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA). Les Sabo, representing TRFAHA, accepted the checks. Making the donations were, left to right, Thief River Falls mayor Bob Carlson, who made a personal donation; Bob Kosel, representing First Northwestern State Bank; Milt Relerson, First Federal Savings & Loan Association; Dwight Tanquist, Lions; Sabo; Gene Belto, Northern State Bank; Rick Parkhouse, Pepsi-Cola; Jim Clauson, Coca-Cola; and Larry Belmont, Rotary. The money will be added to the $4,500 already received from the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club and the $2,000 received from the Huck Olson memorial fund. Additional donations for the $35,000 project can be left at TG Sporting Goods where a progress will be kept.

Big T Hockey Showdown Is March 17, 18

Annual Big T Showdown hockey skills contest for youngsters ages 7 to 14 will be held March 17 and 18 in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Contestants, who compete only against others their own age, are tested for skating, shooting and stickhandling skills:

+ Skating skill — contestants have 45 seconds to skate around two pylons placed 45 feet apart as many times as possible in a figure-eight fashion.

+ Shooting skill — contestants get ten shots at a net with the center blocked out — five forehand and five backhand — from distances varying with contestants' ages.

+ Stickhandling skills — contestants have 40 seconds to skate as far as possible around a 15-foot radius circle while dribbling a puck between pylons placed on the perimeter of the circle.

First round of the Big T Showdown will be held from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. Mon., March 17. Finals will be held from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m. Tues., March 18.

Contestants must supply their own hockey stick.

Applications for the Big T Showdown, co-sponsored by Thomas Motors, Inc., and the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association, are available from the office secretaries in the Thief River Falls schools.

Invite Schools To Participate In Heart Jump

Chuck DeCorsey, health coordinator and varsity baseball coach at Richfield senior high school, has been named "Minnesota jump-rope-a-thon for heart" chairman, according to Corby Newman, president of the Minnesota association for health, physical education and recreation (MAHPER).

The event, according to DeCorsey, will be held in schools across the state the week of March 24-29, and consists of teams of six jumping rope for a maximum period of three hours. Students will obtain sponsors to pledge money per team minute, the benefits donated to the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate.

"The jump-rope-a-thon will focus attention on the value of life-long physical activity to maintain good health," DeCorsey said. "In addition, it will raise funds to fight against heart disease, the state's number one killer."

For information on how your school can participate, contact the Heart association at 835-3300 or call toll free at 1-800-862-6044.

The American heart association, Minnesota affiliate, is a statewide health agency and is part of the American heart association which is represented by 55 affiliates in all states and territories of the U.S. It is the only statewide voluntary health agency dedicated to the reduction of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel diseases.

MSHSL Board Approves New Hockey Plan

Board of director of the MSHSL approved the hockey section alignment committee's report at their February 7, 1980 meeting.

The report considered making only minor changes to the current high school hockey section alignment in order that the number of high schools sponsoring hockey in Section 1 be reduced to 20.

This was accomplished by transferring the three Bloomington high schools: Jefferson, Kennedy and Lincoln, from Section 1 to Section 5, and by transferring Prior Lake, Farmington, and Lakeville high schools from Section 1 to Section 4.

Parade of events appealing to outdoor people reaches a climax this month. First there is national wildlife week observed from March 16 through March 22.

The 48th annual Northwest sports show takes place at the Minneapolis auditorium March 28 through April 6. This is the oldest sports show in the United States.

March 20 is the first day of spring. And finally, the Minnesota waterfowl association will hold its second annual awards banquet in Bloomington March 22.

Wildlife Week

Theme for wildlife week this year is "save a place for wildlife" and spotlights habitat protection. Nine-year-old Neil Syltie from Fargo, N.D. won the National Wildlife Federation poster contest with a scene entitled "animals need homes too."

Lake City Sportsmen's club is the state organization winning the 1979 service award presented each year by the National Wildlife federation. Back in 1957 the Minnesota Outdoors television program won the state award. Among those signing the plaque was Walt Disney. The sign-off for our program was "the outdoors is the only temple God built with his own hands."

Robert Redford, the film star, has been appointed honorary chairman of this year's observation. The first national wildlife week was proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt back in 1938.

Sports Show

This fine event gets underway on March 28 and runs through April 6. All major manufacturers of fishing equipment will be represnted in addition to the 1980 line of marine products, including fishing boats, runabouts, motors, trailers and marine accessories. There will be over 250 booths of vacation and travel exhibits representing 15 states, four Canadian provinces and the Northwest Territory.

Many people plan their vacations on this show.

The stage show will feature Bob Munden, Guiness record holder for the fastest gun draw. In addition there will be Victor the wrestling bear, log rolling demonstrations and the first annual Minnesota waterfowl association duck calling contest.

Awards Banquet

Minnesota waterfowl association will hold its second annual awards banquet on Sat., March 22, at the Decathalon club, 7800 Cedar Avenue, in Bloomington. Special guests will include Richard Plasschaert, federal duck stamp winner; James Meger, 1980 state duck stamp winner; Bill Holman, winner of the Robert J. Lick scholarship; Carl Madsen of Fergus Falls; and Ben Rezac of Lonsdale.

Record Burbot

Don Wendt of Rapids Tackle at Grand Rapids is excited about a state record burbot (eelpout) caught in Deer Lake in Itasca county. The fish weighed 14-pounds, one-ounce and was caught by Leonard Lundeen of Duluth in February.

Musky Lakes Are Publicized

Wisconsin is the capital of musky country, and Wisconsin Muskellunge Waters helps the fisherman locate the musky producing lakes.

This revised and updated publication includes large two-color maps detailing the location of the musky lakes and surrounding roads and highways. An index for the lakes is keyed to the maps and tabulate size, depth, access and most important the muskellunge class (A-B-C) of the lake.

This 48-page book can be obtained by mail by sending $7 per copy to Wisconsin Muskellunge Waters, Stock Number 4829795 M, P.O. Box 5096, Madison, WI 53705.

Special features of the new edition include sections on muskellunge management, a brief history of Wisconsin stocking programs and new rearing methods.

Special Wolf Reward Fund Is Initiated

A federal law enforcement official said today that a special Minnesota wolf action fund initiated by the North American wildlife park foundation may help deter illegal killing of wolves. Reward money from the fund will be offered to tipsters who provide specific information about wolf violations, according to the foundation.

Robert Hodgins, special agent-in-charge of law enforcement in the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's north central region, said offers of reward money for facts about wildlife violations frequently help law enforcement officials obtain information that might otherwise be withheld.

The North American wildlife park foundation, Battle Ground, Indiana, announced in the December edition of its newsletter, The Predator, that the Foundation will offer up to $500 reward "for information leading to the conviction of a person or persons who have killed or possess an illegally killed wild wolf in Minnesota, Michigan or Wisconsin, in violation of the endangered species act and-or state regulations which may also apply."

The announcement by the foundation said money collected from donations to its restricted rewards and legal fund will be used "only for payment of reward — upon verification of information leading to the conviction of person(s) who have illegally killed wolves — and for legal actions which may be taken on behalf of the wolf in this region."

Hodgins pointed out that while the government is not initiating, contributing to or managing the special wolf fund, which accrues through citizen contributions to the foundation, the program will likely prove helpful to law enforcement officials investigating illegal wolf kills.

"Our agents can use all the help they can get in obtaining information about violations," he said. "This special wolf fund is a thoughtful program. I expect that it will ultimately serve as a deterrent by exposing those who tinker with wildlife laws and commit wolf violations."

"We encourage people who have information to call our office at any time, or they may call the nearest federal or state wildlife enforcement official to report violations," he said. "We'll do the investigative work; all the caller has to do is give us the information and we will take it from there."

Telephone number of the Fish and Wildlife Service regional law enforcement office is 612-725-3530.

Hodgins said persons interested in the foundation should write to North American Wildlife Park Foundation, Battle Ground, Indiana 47920.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

I mentioned in starting these articles, that the first accounts through the Alta ski area would have to be on the basis of previous experience and correspondence. This was necessary to have the articles seasonal.

We have returned from a wonderful ski trip, and will tell of our special experiences at Alta and the rest of the articles will be this year's personal experience.

We left Roseau February 8. We had a comfortable bed in the back of the station wagon, and we both sleep well with the car running. We drove 860 miles and were ready to ski Red lodge. The next morning the day was lovely, and the snow perfect. Jewell skied it from the top and I skied 17,000 feet of vertical.

That evening we drove about 160 miles to Bozeman, pitched our tent and got about 10 hours sleep; the temperature was about six degrees above zero. Big Sky was fine with good weather, as was Grand Targhee in the Teton mountains. The next day the weather and snow were perfect at Sun Valley. I was particularly proud of Jewell, who went to that magnificent scene on the top of Baldy mountain, and skied down 3,400 feet of vertical to its base. We stayed in the elegant main lodge.

Back at Jackson Hole we were reminded that weather can be a problem. It was snowing and the upper runs were in heavy clouds. Beaver mountain was fine, but that night it snowed about 12 inches of heavy wet snow, known in ski parlance as "Sierra Cement".

The next morning I was the first person up the upper chair at Ogden Snow basin. The clouds were so thick you could not see the next chair on the lift. I started down, and in those clouds there followed a series, on the steep slopes, of violent headfirst tumbles. I would bury myself right up to my heels. When I got up I had more snow under my glasses than on top. I was not hurt, but my pride and dignity were considerably damaged. A skier develops this philosophy about falls: "they do not hurt, but they are upsetting".

Things were fine at Powder mountain and Snowbird, but there was heavy wet snow in the morning at Alta. We had that flat light when you cannot see the bumps and you could not keep your glasses and goggles clear. Skiing was an adventure in the unknown, but at Alta even this is wonderful.

We are told in scripture to always qualify our plans by the words, "God willing". The skier must never forget this.

Man Charged With Setting Bear Trap

A Brooklyn Park man pled guilty in Duluth court to "setting a dangerous device" —namely a 50 pound trap with teeth studed jaws having a spread of 20 inches.

The man was arrested by state conservation officers late last fall following the complaint of a hunter who narrowly missed losing his hand when it was caught in the trap. The hunter, Leonard Suonvieri of Bovey, had tripped on the trap's chain which anchored it to a large tree. When he reached down to see what he had stumbled over the trap was sprung.

Officers said some pine needles caught between the jaws apparently prevented the trap from snapping completely closed. They said the device is the largest manufactured trap in the world and is capable of nearly severing a man's leg.

It is no longer legal to produce or use such traps in Minnesota but it is not illegal to sell them. Some are purchased as curiosities or to decorate the walls of rustic cabins.

Pleading guilty to the criminal charge was Robert G. Leaman, 29, who had concealed the trap in the middle of a well used trail a few miles north of Floodwood and spread honey to attract bear. Conservation officers found the discarded honey jars and traced them to a store near Leaman's residence.

Conservation officers Doug Erickson, Floodwood and Tom Fink, Osseo, investigated the case. Erickson said he interviewed eight people who had walked down the trail after the trap was set late in October but miraculously failed to step on the trap's trigger. He said the trail was the only one into the wooded area, and in addition was posted with "For Sale" signs to attract possible buyers to a piece of land being offered on the market.

Fink questioned Leaman, who finally admitted he had bought and set the trap.

Old hands at the DNR's enforcement division said they could not remember the last time a violation of this kind had been detected.

It is a criminal offense, punishable by a maximum fine of $500 and six months in jail.

Leaman is awaiting sentencing.

Spring Beaver Season Opened By State DNR

A beaver trapping season will be held in northern Minnesota this spring according to officials of the Department of Natural Resources.

The season opened March 1 and will close April 30. The open zone is that part of the state lying north of the following described line: beginning on state trunk Hwy. 210 on the western border of the state, then along S.T.H. 210 to S.T.H. 29, then along S.T.H. 29 to U.S. Hwy. 71, then along U.S. Hwy. 71 to U.S. Hwy. 2; then along U.S. Hwy. 2 to the eastern border of the state.

An April season for parts of the state south of the open zone is under consideration and yet to be announced.

Trapping in state-owned game refuges and wildlife management areas will require a permit from a state game manager. Permits are not required on the Elm Lake, Eckvoll and East Park wildlife management areas in Marshall county or on the Twin Lakes, Skull Lake, Beaches Lake and Caribou wildlife management areas in Kittson county. Permits will also be required to trap within the Tamarac and Agassiz national wildlife refuges. Federal waterfowl production areas and statutory game refuges in the open zone will be open to trapping without permit. State parks, however, are closed to trappers.

Beaver traps may be tended between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. and there is no limit on the number that may be taken during the season.

Trappers are reminded that persons 16 years of age and over must have a 1980 small game hunting license in addition to the 1980 beaver trapping license. Trappers under 16 years of age need only a valid beaver trapping license. Trappers are reminded to keep their licenses because they will be valid till February 28, 1981 and there may be additional seasons opened before that time.

Officials cautioned beaver trappers that there are many rules and regulations governing trapping and that they should become familiar with them before setting their traps. Trappers should refer to the 1979 small game hunting and trapping synopsis for these regulations.

If we put all the people on earth together and weighed them and did the same with all the insects, the insects would weigh 12 times more than the humans, reports the National Wildlife Federation.

MSBA Objects To Proposed Legislation

Legislative proposals which are working their way through the Minnesota legislature may bring additional employee strikes to Minnesota's 437 public school districts, according to the Minnesota school boards association (MSBA).

Over 170 teacher strikes have been recorded across the nation since schools opened last fall, the MSBA said. Under Minnesota's present public employee collective bargaining procedures only one strike has occurred in Minnesota during this same period of time.

Proposed amendments to the 1971 public employee labor relations act (PELRA) would give teachers and other school district employees the legal, unlimited right to strike. Teacher strikes are currently legal in Minnesota only if the school board rejects submitting to binding arbitration. Since PELRA was enacted nine years ago, Minnesota has faced just 14 teacher work stoppages.

"To allow the unlimited right to strike," according to MSBA executive secretary W. A. Wettergren, "would create an imbalance in the negotiations process which will greatly favor the employee groups and very possibly will lead to an increase in the number of days students will not be in the classroom due to teacher strikes."

Wettergren added that, "MSBA is concerned about a reduction in student-teacher contact days and the quality and the image of public education provided to Minnesota's public school students if the number of strikes increases."

According to Wettergren, teacher organization claims that negotiations have lagged behind other years are false. "By March 1, 380 of our 437 public school districts have reached an agreement. Two years ago, the number that had reached agreement was 363."

Wettergren concluded by adding that "the MSBA and locally elected school board members stand ready to defend the rights of Minnesota's citizens and public school students in each local school district to a quality education."

ROTARY BLADE inside a heavy steel housing does the cutting of small trees and brush when the Hydro-Axe rotary cutter is in operation. The unit is being used at Agassiz national wildlife refuge this winter to clear about 350 acres of willow, aspen and other heavy growth to open up areas for wildlife and stimulate new growth for wildlife food and cover.

CLEANING BRUSH from the rotary unit is one of the necessary tasks of the operator of the Hydro-Axe unit which is clearing brushy areas at Agassiz national wildlife refuge east of Holt. The rotary cutter on the front of the machine can be hydraulically raised and lowered to allow the cutting of three to four-inch trees to nearly ground level.

Here's where I am, God

Know why there are so many public phones in airports? Everybody has to let someone know where he is . . .

Yes, we are dependent on one another for all kinds of support: "Please pick me up" or "I'll meet you in an hour" or "I'm finished here and moving on" or "What are my new instructions?"

One of the truths our churches stress is that we are dependent on God for support. We need a quality of support that is far above that which we have come to expect from one another.

Next Sunday when you see people on their way to church remember why there are so many phones in airports. Millions of us pray to God . . . to let Him know just where we are . . . to ask His support in fulfilling our present mission . . . or discovering our next.

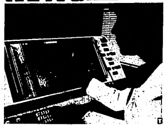
NEWS IN PICTURES



1980 will mark the beginning of a new era in communications. This year, ABC, NBC and PBS will broadcast about 20 hours of prime-time TV shows each week in "closed captions." Closed captions are written translations of the audio portion of a television program. The captions (subtitles) are transmitted electronically through a portion of the television picture that does not carry video material. To see the captions, viewers must use a special decoding device which will be sold by Sears, Roebuck and Co. The National Captioning Institute (NCI) is the nonprofit organization that is captioning programs for ABC, NBC, PBS and other interested program producers. Here, a captioner at NCI demonstrates the caption editing console. The console was developed by PBS engineers under a contract with the former Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Little-Known Tea Facts

TEA
THE GREATEST OUT-SELLER!

Tea outsold coffee in the U.S. throughout most of the 19th century.

Few people realize that the plant family of regular teas contain about 200 species or that there is a large variety of herb teas.

The three basic kinds of regular tea we buy today—black, green and oolong—do not correspond to botanical varieties of the tea plant but are "created" by processing methods used on tea leaves—leaves usually picked from the tips of the branch.

These leaves contain a number of enzymes that cause them to ferment when they are crushed and exposed to air. The amount of fermentation and exposure to the air that is allowed then determines the kind of tea that's produced.

Kinds of herb teas, on the other hand, depend on the plants, flowers, aromatics and spices used to make them. Sweet Orange Spice, for instance, a blend from Magic Mountain Herb Tea Co., is made from wood betony, an herb; sweet orange peel, an aromatic; dandelion, an herb; and clove, a spice.

Whatever the blend, herb teas offer the triple advantages of being caffeine free and are relatively inexpensive, which in addition to the fact that they offer an alternative to coffee and the regular brands of tea, partially accounts for their growing popularity.

Sportsmanship Suffers

It seems like the enthusiasm which heightens at tournament time and brings out the best efforts in the players also brings out the worst behavior in the fans. For some unknown reason, the people in the stands seem to feel that the players on their team owe them a victory, and not to provide it is a personal affront.

Last year Thief River Falls took no little pride in winning the regional sportsmanship trophy, awarded on the basis of school spirit and efforts by players, students and adult fans to be good hosts and welcome guests at games home and away. The award was deservedly earned.

This year the Lincoln high school athletic department undertook to build on that pride and reputation for sportsmanship and common courtesy. The athletes responded to the challenge, the cheerleaders made a conscious effort to welcome visiting teams with a "Good Luck" banner and the coaching staffs cooperated in the effort. Perhaps the school will win the award again.

But if any of the people who make the decision on which school gets the award were sitting near us during the Thief River Falls-Roseau hockey game last Tuesday evening, we are sure a knot of leather-lunged, foul-mouthed smart-alecks probably blew it for the rest of the school. The stream of shouted obscenities from these Lincoln students took the lustre off an otherwise sparkling game.

In our opinion, good sports fans should be expected to fully support their teams, but they should also be able to appreciate fine play by the opponents and to accept the fact that only one team can win while the other must lose. They should also recognize that officials often have a different view of a play and that without them competitive sports could not function without chaos.

We were disappointed — no, we were angered — by the mindless and offensive spoutings of the students we mention above. We recognized many of them and we strongly suspect that they would have been much quieter if not bolstered by the shared stupidity of the group. It is doubly disheartening to understand that adults at the games resort to the same sort of player and official abuse.

We admire high school athletes who work hard at sports they enjoy and who often develop beyond what their natural ability should be. They are deserving of positive support. But they owe nothing to the fans except their best efforts, and it is rare in a high school contest when that best effort is not put forth.

One of our readers provided us with a poem the other day which couldn't have arrived at a more appropriate time. Like many exceptional writings, its author is unknown. But any parent — or brother or sister or aunt or uncle or friend — of a high school athlete should take to heart the message presented in:

He Is Only A Boy!

Please don't curse the boy down
there,
He is my son, you see;
He's only just a boy, you know,
And means a lot to me.

I did not raise my son, sports fan,
For you to call him names;
He may not be a super star
But it's a high school game.

Please don't curse the boys down
there,
They do the best they can;
They never tried to lose a game,
They're boys. . .and you're a man.

The game belongs to them, you see,
And you are just a guest;
They do not need a fan like you,
They need the very best.

If you have nothing nice to say
Please leave the boys alone,
And if you can't enjoy the game
Why don't you stay at home?

So please don't curse those boys down there,
Each one's his parents' son;
And win, or lose or tie, you see,
To us they're "NUMBER ONE"!!

The 15-Cent Lobbyist

Any citizen can have input into pending legislation by the simple act of writing a letter to his or her elected representatives at the state or national level. Senators and Representatives at all levels of government are interested in the opinions of their constituents and want information which will help them decide how to vote.

If you have a desire to become one of the 15-cent lobbyists by sending a letter to your elected officials, here are some suggestions from a book by George Alderson and Everett Sentman entitled "How You Can Influence Congress":

1. Make it a page or less, covering only one subject, written in your own words and including thoughts of your own.
2. When your letter concerns a bill already being considered, refer to the bill by its number and name if you know it.
3. Tell the legislator exactly what you want him or her to do, and give your reasons for adopting this position.
4. Ask the legislator to tell you his position on the matter: "Will you support this bill?" or "Will you oppose this bill?"
5. Show your awareness of the legislator's past actions. If possible, cite an instance of his or her recent voting on related issues.
6. Don't mention your membership in a citizens' organization. The individual citizen's letter is more influential than the letter obviously inspired by an organization.
7. Don't send in a form letter or pre-printed postcard unless you absolutely can't take the time to write your own letter. A form letter has one-tenth the impact of the one you write.
8. Don't repeat slogans or phrases from a newsletter or form letter. Your own words will make the crucial difference.
9. When the legislator replies, write a follow-up letter to reemphasize your position and give your reaction to the legislator's answer.
10. If you don't know the names of your state or national representatives or senators call the information desk of your local public library.

Incredible Hulks

An editorial in the Detroit News followed under a picture of rows of junked B-52 bombers stored at Davis-Monthan air force base in Arizona. "Believe it or not," the editorial stated, "each hulk counts as one 'strategic delivery' vehicle under SALT II."

Then the editorial continued:

"These airplanes can't fly. Their engines are gone and their wheels are either missing or retracted. Flaps hang loose, suggesting there isn't anything left of the hydraulic system capable of raising them. Nevertheless, Air Force spokesmen, both at the Pentagon and Strategic Air Command (SAC) headquarters, tell us that these rotting wrecks are counted as usable, atom-bomb carriers in the strategic arms limitation treaty.

"SAC says there are 'approximately' 350 B-52s in operational condition. An additional 214 are 'mothballed' in Arizona and all of these are 'counters' under SALT II. Of the 214 in Arizona, 37 are classified as 'hulks' that will never fly again. That leaves 177 in 'stored' status.

"How flyable are those 177? Obviously, they can't be put in the air during the 30 minutes it takes to send a 'first strike' missile from the Soviet Union to an American target. It would take longer than that to clean them of bats and rattlesnakes — literally.

"True, some of the planes might be made usable sometime in the next fiscal year. The vintage B-52, however, which first saw service in 1955, has been much changed over the years and there are no spare parts for the older models.

"Under SALT II, America is limited to 2,250 strategic bombers. At best, the country has 350 in usable condition.

"Since the Soviet Union and the United States agreed to equivalent numbers of strategic delivery systems, it can be safely assumed that each hulk in the Arizona desert is balanced off with an operational missile launcher somewhere in the Soviet Union, or will be by the mid-1980s.

"Which raises a question about the U.S. SALT negotiators: Do they smile so much out of blissful ignorance or do they go to work drunk?"

Borrowed Nonsense:

After two weeks as a maid in the fashionable home, the new immigrant was confronted by the lady of the house. "Lena," she said, "I can write my name in the dust on the piano! What do you say about that?"

"Oh, my," Lena replied "It must be yust vunderful to have an education!"

Overheard in a Minneapolis restaurant: "The girl I was out with last night was so good looking that when I took her home in a taxi I could hardly keep my eyes on the meter!"

John Belushi leads the destruction wrought upon the annual homecoming parade by fellow members of the "animal house" fraternity, in this scene from "National Lampoon's Animal House," Universal's smash hit comedy which opens Wed., Mar. 12 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

STAYING IN TOUCH!

Arlan Stangeland

Reducing the high rate of interest on loans and mortgages is the ultimate goal of legislation which I introduced late last week.

People all over the nation, particularly those who farm, own their own business or are trying to buy a house, are being devastated by record high levels of interest manipulated by the Federal Reserve Board in the name of curbing inflation. The fact is, however, that since the Federal government has tried to control inflation by controlling the availability of lending money, inflation has skyrocketed to over 18 per cent and the prime rate of interest has climbed to 17¼ per cent. People are encouraged, instead of discouraged, to practice a "buy now instead of later" philosophy. All this does is encourage greater inflation and further lessen the value of the dollar.

The bill I introduced is intended to establish that it is the sense of Congress that the Federal Reserve Board reexamine its monetary supply, particularly how this effects the prime interest rates available to small businesses, including farmers, and individuals such as home buyers. In addition, it seeks a rollback in interest rates to reasonable levels. I believe this would allow small borrowers to obtain money needed for investment and expansion of their businesses.

Farmers and small businesses have to borrow money to be able to survive. For example, the farmer must borrow so he can purchase seed, fertilizer and fuel in the spring. Once the crops are harvested in the fall, the loan will be repayed but, as the interest rate increases, farmers and other businesses which need a lot of money to operate are faced with reduced profits.

The prime interest rate, currently listed at 17¼ when this column was written, is the highest level in history and economists predict it could rise as high as 18 to 20 per cent.

The biggest economic problem we face today is demonstrating to the economic policy makers of the current Administration and to Congress that the people are not to blame for the state of the economy and that the taxpayers of America should not be forced to suffer because of government's inability to get its own house in order.

Inflation is caused, according to most economists, by excessive and uncontrolled Federal spending and not by the desires of consumers to buy now instead of later because they feel prices or interest rates will rise. The nation's budget increases annually and we are continually faced with budget deficits amounting to billions of dollars. If we continue year after year to allow the Administration to practice deficit spending, our national debt will soon reach one trillion dollars. This is the real cause of inflation.

The cost of paying the interest on the national debt is close to $60 billion annually with no end in sight and, if this interest could be reduced by balancing the budget, Americans could be assured their tax dollars were being used for worthwhile and productive purposes.

Government economic policies established by this Administration and the Federal Reserve Board are punishing the consumers and taxpayers of this country. They are trying to make the average citizen feel guilty for spending and borrowing by raising interest rates and lessening the amount of money banks have available. I do not agree with this unfortunate attitude and feel my resolution is needed to help bring our economic problems under control.

IMPROVE WEED CONTROL ON SMALL FARMS

Small farm operators can improve weed control in field crops and reduce their spring work load by tooling up to incorporate preplant herbicides, according to Dr. Ron Doersch, University of Wisconsin weed specialist.

Dr. Doersch, who recently authored a paper entitled, "Weed Control and the Small Farm Operator," says farmers with a few hundred acres—small by today's standards—can probably benefit the most from herbicide incorporation.

"Since scheduling is so important on intensively farmed land," Dr. Doersch explains, "a small farm operator can usually save time, labor and fuel by simply spraying his herbicides while preparing a seedbed. The technique also assures the farmer that he's getting his money's worth from his herbicide dollars. He knows the herbicide is in the top three inches of soil—where it belongs—catching the weed seeds as they germinate."

Herbicide incorporation, a well-accepted practice on large cash grain operations throughout the nation's Corn Belt, has been met with limited enthusiasm on smaller farms. Many small farm operators are not equipped to incorporate herbicides, Dr. Doersch observes, and they tend to rely on surface-applied preemergence herbicides.

"But surface-applied herbicides can cause problems on farms of all sizes," Dr. Doersch says. "If it doesn't rain shortly after application, the farmer will be losing money because he is not getting the full benefit of the herbicide. He'll probably need to cultivate or follow up with a post-emergence herbicide to control the escaping weeds."

INCORPORATED HERBICIDES WEEDS

Surface-applied herbicides require rainfall to carry them into the soil.

"Many farmers don't have time for early cultivation," he adds, "especially if they have hay to cut or soybeans to plant. Small farmers also tend to have off-farm jobs to supplement their income. They must be very concerned with how they manage their time."

Dr. Doersch notes that some herbicides, such as Sutan+, Eradicane, Vernam and Treflan, must be incorporated. Conversely, some troublesome weeds such as nutsedge and johnsongrass are better controlled by incorporated herbicides. "On some farms," he says, "learning to incorporate may become a matter of survival."

USEFUL SUGGESTIONS FOR

A Big Crowd Means More Bidders and More Bidders Mean Better Prices For Your Property.

You Only Have One Chance

Bear in mind that all your goods are going to be sold in ONE DAY, and on that day depends whether you make or lose perhaps several hundred dollars. A few dollars' expense is absolutely nothing at all compared with the importance of advertising your Sale RIGHT.

You Cannot Take Chances Scrimping on Your Advertising
WE ARRANGE FOR ADVERTISING AUCTIONS. —

GET READY BEFORE SALE DAY
The importance of getting ready before sale day cannot be emphasized too much. Do this before sale day.

Helpful Sale Suggestions:

YOUR CATTLE
Should be carefully groomed. Number or tag every head. Have breeding and registry information on hand.

HOGS AND SHEEP
Should be graded if of different classes, not too many in a pen. All their surroundings clean and neat. Advertise average weights when practical.

FARM EQUIPMENT
Should all be clean, in good repair and so arranged that each piece can be seen by the bidders and the auctioneer can see his audience at all times.

LAND
Give complete legal description of land and buildings. Be exact when describing terms.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS
Should be clean, in good condition and neatly arranged.

GRAIN AND FEED
Be accurate as to quantities for sale.

MISCELLANEOUS ARTICLES
Should not be left in the corners of the yard, barn or house, or under piles of rubbish. If they are worth selling at all, clean them up, get them ready and get every cent possible out of them.

DO JUST AS YOU ADVERTISE
Nothing can be more important. A suspicion of side-bidding will kill a sale, no matter how big the crowd. Make it an open sale and take your chances. If you want to advertise everything sold "as is," let us know.

BE SURE AND HAVE A LUNCH
Some auctioneers refuse to cry a sale without it. A full stomach makes a good bidder. Don't omit the hot coffee.

THE AUCTIONEERS
Get good auctioneers — the best to be had — those who are honest and reliable and whose statements can be relied upon. They must be men familiar with everything you may have to sell and be able to see and explain good points to bidders. Many reliable auctioneers are available in our area.

Reasons Why Our Bank Should Clerk Your Sale:

1. We guarantee collection of receivables.
2. We can arrange for the auctioneer(s) and reserve the sale date.
3. We can arrange all advertising and settle with advertisers.
4. We make prompt settlement with records in duplicate for income tax use.
5. We offer low cost service which means MORE CASH for you!
6. We mail auction bills to over 200 banks and businesses in the area.

"The Chrysler Guarantees Are Here!"
Not At Ford. Not At GM.

1. The only 30-day/1,000 mile money-back guarantee. Buy one of our new 1980 cars or trucks. Drive it up to 30 days or 1,000 miles, whichever comes first. If you're not completely satisfied, you'll get your money back. But not the finance and insurance charges. All you do is bring your vehicle back to your dealer in good condition without metal damage. When he receives clear title, he returns your money. Refund on traded vehicle may be lower than the trade-in allowance.

2. The first guarantee of no-cost scheduled maintenance. When you buy or lease a new 1980 car or truck, we'll provide oil changes, oil filters and other scheduled maintenance required for each vehicle. For 2 years or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first. For 1 year or 12,000 miles on our imports. At no charge.

3. The first guarantee of no-cost motor club membership with emergency road service. The New Chrysler Corporation provides a two year membership in the Amoco Motor Club at no cost when you buy or lease a new 1980 car or truck. Benefits include emergency road service, emergency towing, car theft reward. And a lot more, subject to the conditions of membership.

And a $50 test drive offer to prove our confidence in Chrysler Engineering. Test drive one of our new 1980 cars or Ram Tough trucks. Buy or lease one of ours or any qualifying new car or truck from one of our competitors within thirty days. Then return the test drive certificate with proof of purchase or lease. And the fifty dollars is yours.

These New Chrysler Corporation commitments apply to new 1980 vehicles for personal use only. Your participating Dodge dealer will provide all the details.

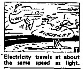
Information About Electricity From Experts

SPEED OF LIGHT



Electricity travels at about the same speed as light.

Electricity is delivered at nearly the speed of light—186,000 miles a second—equivalent to traveling 7.5 times around the earth in a second. Therefore, says the Edison Electric Institute, the association of America's investor-owned electric utility companies, electricity is used at almost the same instant it is produced.

SHOULD PACKAGING BE DURABLE OR DEGRADABLE?

A popular concept in some circles is that anything which biodegrades is good for the environment and anything which does not is bad.

The flaw in the concept, aimed mostly at items littered, is that nothing which degrades actually "goes away," not in weeks or ever. Natural food products, for example, merely revert to some other form in the ecological cycle. If beverage containers, for example, were made to degrade, they would only break down into smaller pieces over a period of time. But no cans or bottles ever return to their original raw material state. The number of pieces to be picked up would simply multiply.

Beverages, of course, represent only a small percentage of all packaging. The same packaging materials are used to make containers for both short and long shelf-life products. Therefore, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to set a particular time for a given container to begin to "fall apart."

A degradable container would have limited recycling potential because of the problem of arresting the degradation process. Recycling of plastic beverage bottles, for example, is growing as the bottle's popularity increases, according to The Plastic Bottle Institute.

Packages are made durable to protect perishable goods. It doesn't make sense for the package to be perishable, too. Contamination of ground water from landfill decay is caused by perishable materials. This is a problem in many areas of the country, according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. And 60 percent of U.S. drinking water today comes from ground water. Materials like glass, plastic, rocks and chunks of concrete are inert; they do not decay.

Doesn't it make more sense to package foods and beverages safely and healthfully, and to stamp out littering?

Spirited COOKING

Festive Midwinter Party Fare

When the weather outside is frightful, your home could be delightful if you invite good friends over to share with you a warming cup of Hot Rum and Cider Punch made with Puerto Rican gold Rum. Accompanied by cheese and followed by a delicious, steaming bowl of homemade Chili Con Carne, it can help round off the sharp edge of any chilly evening.

Baby, it's cold outside and an impromptu party can be the best way to light up your home, and your life.

HOT RUM AND CIDER PUNCH

1 quart apple cider
2 tablespoons maple syrup
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
4 oz. lemon juice
1 quart gold Puerto Rican rum
Lemon slices, cloves, cinnamon sticks

Heat the cider and stir in syrup and granulated sugar. Add lemon juice and rum; garnish with lemon slices stuck with cloves. Place a cinnamon stick "stirrer" in each punch cup. Serves 12 with seconds.

CHEESE BALL SPREAD

1 Gouda Cheese (about 10 oz.)
1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup walnuts or pecans, finely chopped
Puerto Rican rum
Tabasco

Use a sharp paring knife to make scalloped edge around the top of a 10-oz. Gouda cheese. Scoop out cheese, leaving a 1/2-inch shell. Grate or chop cheese. Use an electric mixer to cream 1/4 cup butter. Beat in cheese, nuts and enough rum to make spreadable mixture. Add Tabasco to taste. Spoon cheese spread into shell, cover and chill.

CHILI CON CARNE

2 pounds chopped beef
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups chopped onion
1 green pepper, chopped
1 can (2 lbs., 3 oz.) tomatoes
1 cup hot water
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
1/4 teaspoon cayenne
1 bay leaf, crumbled
1/2 teaspoon crushed cumin seed
2-3 tablespoons chili powder
2 cans (1 lb. ea.) kidney beans

Brown the meat in a large heavy skillet, breaking it up with a fork as it cooks. Add butter, onion, green pepper and garlic. Cook until soft. Add tomatoes, hot water and seasonings. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer until it thickens or about two hours. Add more hot water, if necessary. Stir in the beans and heat through. Serves 8-10.

Farm-City Week To Begin Today

"Landscaping for Energy Conservation", a program to be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the meeting room of the Thief River Falls regional library, will be the first event of Farm-City Week in this community. Concluding event will be the annual farmer-merchant mixer next Monday, March 24, at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion club rooms.

Tonight's meeting will be conducted by Bill Sliney, area extension agent from Bemidji state university.

Dr. Robert Jordan of the University of Minnesota will conduct a meeting for sheep producers Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room and all area sheep growers are invited to attend.

On Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. a program on "Farming with Inflation" will be presented at the Best Western inn. Pre-registration is required and participants should contact the county extension office at 681-2116 or the sponsoring lenders: Northern state bank, First Northwestern state bank or Production Credit association.

On Thursday noon-time tours will be made to the Mehrkens grain farm southwest of the city and the Hanson Heritage dairy farm northeast of Thief River Falls. Special buses will leave the chamber of commerce office at 12:30 p.m. and a light lunch will be available at the office from 11:30 a.m. until the buses leave. Cost of the lunch will be $1 and all businessmen are encouraged to take one of the tours.

Friday at 1:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room a program will be presented by county agent Deb Matero on "Energy as It Relates to Home and Family". This program is designed primarily for women and will deal with ways of conserving energy in the home and other energy-saving techniques.

On Monday, March 24, all USDA offices will sponsor an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. at the public library meeting room. The session will provide a forum for explanation of the resources conservation act and the public will have opportunity to comment on it.

"Ninety per cent of all people who live to age 72 will need blood or blood products during their life, but only about three per cent of the people in this area donate it," states Harry Solberg, president of Northern Blood bank, Inc., of Thief River Falls.

"And the biggest reason people don't donate is because no one has asked them," he continued. "Well, we are asking them now as part of the change-over of our blood bank from affiliation with Minneapolis war memorial blood bank to United Blood services of the Upper Midwest."

United Blood services will hold a blood drawing drive Thursday from 1 to 7 p.m. at the CNC unit of Northwestern hospital services. It will be one of several held each year in this area to assist the organization in maintaining a supply of blood for its affiliated hospitals.

Calls are being made by Northern Blood bank members to schedule about 90 donors during the six-hour collection period. Persons not contacted but who would like to donate blood may call Barb Weleski at 681-4240 to schedule an appointment time. Walk-in donors will also be accepted but may have to wait for an opening among the scheduled donors, local blood bank officials said.

Under the newly-adopted program, there will be several blood drawing clinics conducted by United Blood services each year rather than the regular blood drawing by technicians at the blood bank laboratory at Northwestern hospital.

Necessary blood supplies for the hospital will be provided by United Blood organization's facilities at Fargo, N.D.

Grain Dryer Fire Is Largest Loss For Bray Mutual

One hundred and nine losses totalling $91,570 were paid by the Bray Mutual Fire Insurance company during 1979, according to the annual report prepared by officers of the company for presentation at the annual meeting of members held Wednesday at Goodridge.

Alfred Longren of Thief River Falls was reelected as a director of the company. Officers include Chester Solberg, Goodridge, president; Verner Arveson, Oklee, vice president; Edgar Naplin, Red Lake Falls, secretary; and Wilbur Hallstrom, Red Lake Falls, treasurer. The company was organized in 1893.

Largest loss of the year was a fire which caused $18,000 damage to a grain dryer at the Douglas Barth farm. Second largest loss paid was $8,193 due to a fire damaging barn and equipment at the Kenneth Swanson farm and third largest was a loss of $8,065 paid for a grain dryer at the Marian Vraa farm.

Six losses were paid for grain dryer fires, indicative of the wet sunflower harvest in the area last fall. Major dwelling fire loss was $4,147 damage to building and contents at the Diane Wilde home.

Other losses above $1,000 included $2,500 for a pole barn at the Charles Swanson farm; $2,151 for damage to a D-7 Caterpillar tractor owned by Mitchell Marquis; $2,657 for damage to a combine at Steiger farms; $3,000 damage to the Hulda Wold dwelling; $1,690 to granary, hogs and equipment at the Verner Arveson farm; $1,490 for the Gerald Sjulestad dwelling and contents; $1,500 for the loss of a tractor by Floyd M. Major lightning loss paid was $1,018 for two cows and an electric fencer lost at the Ronald Howard farm and $1,000 for household goods lost at the Hanson Heritage farm. There were 30 lightning losses including 11 head of livestock, a number of television sets and miscellaneous other items.

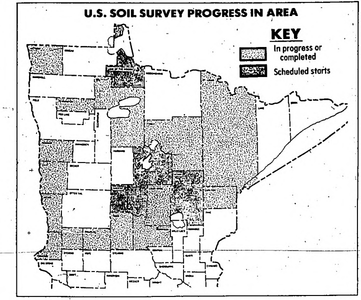
Largest loss in the other lines was $1,351 paid to Leander Berberich for vandalism to a combine, followed by $1,065 paid to Barbara Lendobeja for smoke damage to a dwelling and $900 to Lester Vag for four hogs electrocuted and one cow drowned.

The loss listing showed a dozen head of livestock drowned, two killed by vehicles, sheep and a calf killed by dogs, tools and other items stolen and several cases of smoke damage.

During 1979 the company had receipts of $211,796 including $114,432 in premiums for 1979 and expenses of $174,985, including the $91,570 in claims and $47,509 in reinsurance premiums. At the end of the year the company had 1,964 policies in force covering property valued at $71,940,280.

U.S. SOIL SURVEY PROGRESS IN AREA



Soil Survey Crew Expects To Finish Work This Year

With the onset of milder weather, the Pennington county soil survey crew will be setting out for what will be their last field season here. Approximately 70,000 acres remain to be mapped, primarily in Goodridge, Reiner, Highlanding and Star townships.

Soil scientist Dan Hanson will soon be leaving for Bemidji to work on Beltrami county's soil survey, leaving soil scientists Rod Heschke, Mike Oja and Jim Schulzetenberg to complete the mapping.

According to survey leader Heschke, the soil mapping should easily be completed by October. Heschke added that the published report and maps will probably be available in May of 1983. When the mapping in Pennington county is completed, the crew will remain in Thief River Falls, but will be mapping the soils east of Grygla in the northwestern part of Beltrami county.

Interest in soil survey in Minnesota, especially in northern Minnesota, has been increasing. Beltrami county is being staffed and Lake of the Woods county is scheduled to be staffed in 1981. In addition, Aitkin, Cass and Wadena counties have signed soil survey agreements in the past two and a half months.

"People are now beginning to realize the value of their soils as a resource," Heschke said, "and want to find out as much as they can about them in order to manage them effectively and economically."

A further incentive for counties to have their soils mapped is the cost-share program presently available where the local, state and federal government each contribute approximately one-third the cost of the survey. With the current cost of soil survey at $1 per acre, the local share would be 33 and one-third cents per acre.

"With land costs and management costs continually on the rise, this is a small price to pay for the information received," Schulzetenberg said. "Fertilizer and herbicide recommendations are now based on several factors, some of which are soil texture, organic matter content and pH. Knowledge of the soil conditions on one's farm can prevent a costly miscalculation, such as applying too much chemical or not enough. Using the soils information in this manner alone could save the user the cost of the survey in one season."

Other soil properties such as natural fertility, drainage and water holding capacity can be of value to farmers wishing to expand their operations by either purchasing, renting or clearing land, according to Oja. He added that knowledge

Minn. Winters Enjoyable To Student From Brazil

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

So far, Antonio Figueiredo, 15, exchange student from Belem, Brazil, enjoys our Minnesota winters (even with six inches of new snow?). But his feelings could possibly change if he had to make his home here, he said.

Antonio arrived in Thief River Falls January 25 with no picture of who his American family was to be and little knowledge of what Minnesota or his new home would be like. The thing he did know was that his American mother's last name was Pollick.

After being here for approximately two months, Antonio has come to know and grow close to his American mother, Alyce Pollick, and his American sister, Kirsten, who just turned 14. Through letters and telephone calls he keeps in close contact with his family in Brazil, which includes his brother Frederico, 2; his sister, Lilia Lena, 17; and his mother and stepfather.

"I'll have to wait a while to call them again," he said smiling. "It's expensive. I usually talk for half an hour."

Belem, the city where Antonio lives, has a population of approximately 600,000, he said. The city is located in northern Brazil and near the equator where there are no winters. Year-round temperatures average from 80 to 100 degrees, Antonio said. In southern Brazil people have winters — and some snow — something Antonio had never seen before coming to the United States. And, although he would like to try skiing (which is one reason he wanted to come to Minnesota) he hasn't had the chance, but is determined he will ski down the Bemidji slopes before traveling back to Brazil.

His plane trip to the United States took him to Miami., FL; Chicago, IL; Minneapolis, Brainerd and finally to Thief River Falls. There were 22 exchange students along with him on the plane to Miami, he said, but they were sent to different areas after that.

Although exchange students do not get to directly select where they wish to go, they may state on their applications where they "prefer" to go.

Antonio desired Minnesota for the snow and skiing, because he wanted to learn to speak better English, and because he knew other exchange students who had been to the United States before who had liked it here.

"I wanted to travel to a new country," he said. "I wanted to try something new."

Students selected as exchange students have to be good students in school, Antonio said. Each particular area has a representative that works with the students before they are sent to another country.

"There are lots and lots of papers to fill out," he said. "Your papers are sent to the United States (if that's where a student has been selected to go) and when they come back you find out if you're approved or not."

Schools are somewhat different in Brazil than in the United States, according to Antonio. School days begin at 7 a.m. and continue until about 1 p.m.

"After that, we usually go to eat, so we're not really free until about 2:30," he said.

There is a 10-minute break during the period from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. where students can get something to eat or do what they want for 10 minutes, he said. School begins the QUESTION: My medical doctor told me not to do any exercise of any kind because it can cause aggravation of my low back condition. What should I do?

ANSWER: In an acute stage it is reasonable to assume exercise may aggravate a low back condition. If there is any deterioration or osteoarthritis present chances are it has advanced because of lack of exercise. The nutrients get into disc spaces through a process called imbibition, this is motion. If there is stiffness or fixation, the nutrients do not diffuse through and the disc thins out. By range of motion exercises, you work the nutrients in.
QUESTION: I am a stomach sleeper. Is this bad for me?
ANSWER: Sleeping on one's stomach causes jamming in the neck or cervical spine as one tends to turn the head to one side. If this is done for a long period of time, such problems are bound to come about. It is advised to sleep on your back or your side with a small pillow to support the neck and not the entire head.

Energy Saving Is Focus For MN. Plan

Home energy conservation will be a major focus of the 1980 Minnesota housing finance agency (MHFA) home improvement loan program for low and moderate income families, Governor Al Quie said today.

"Energy conservation must be a key element of any successful energy program," the governor said. "And one of the first places we should encourage reduced energy consumption is in the home."

The governor met today with MFGA officials, lenders and mayors of communities who are participating in the MHFA program to initiate the 1980 MHFA loan year.

"This year Minnesota will have the largest program of this type in the nation," Quie said. "Forty-five million dollars will be available to eligible families for home improvement loans.

"With this loan money, homeowners will be able to make energy conservation improvements including new furnaces, storm windows, roof repairs, insulation and other energy improvements," he said. "By weatherizing their homes these families will benefit with lower fuel bills and the total energy consumption for the state will decrease. In addition we will be able to reduce the amount of state money needed to help those families who also qualify for fuel assistance money."

Under the MHFA 1980 program, the governor said, an estimated 8,000 loans will be made to homeowners. Since the MHFA program began in 1975, lenders across the state have assisted in lending more than $177 million in loans to 24,000 homeowners. In addition to the energy improvements, the loans may be used for new wiring, plumbing, remodeling and a variety of other home improvements.

"Our program stands out among other states because Minnesota has provided funds to reduce the interest rates," the governor said. The 1979 Legislature acting upon the governor's recommendation appropriated $7.66 million for the 1980-81 biennium for this program. This appropriation allows interest rates to be set by a formula that takes into account each household's income. Under the program interest rates range from 1 to 8 per cent.

"The success of this program to date has been largely dependent upon the role of the private lending institutions. This year we have 291 participating lenders," the Governor said. "The large number of lenders we have in our program shows they support this project that has helped revitalize and renew urban, suburban and rural cities throughout our state. The contributions of these cities' mayors and civic leaders also assisted in making our loan program a success."

In a letter to participating lenders, Quie also asked for their help in publicizing the MHFA loan program and in providing finance information for energy conservation home improvements through the Area Vocational Technical Institutes' consumer energy classes.

To be eligible for the MHFA loan program, applicants must have a household adjusted annual income of not more than $16,000. This means a two-person household may typically have an annual gross income up to $17,500 and a four member family may have an annual gross income of $18,500. This income limits vary based on family size and special expenses.

The maximum MHFA loan for a one-family dwelling unit is $15,000. For multiple housing with two to six units, the maximum loan is $7,500 per unit with a cap of $37,500. Housing units of more than six units are not eligible under this program. The maximum term of the loans is 15 years for both single and multi-family units.

For information about where to apply for the loans, interested persons may call the MHFA at 296-7615.

Stangeland In Favor Of Ag Loan Programs

Speaking in support of legislation to extend and increase certain agricultural loan programs, Congressman Arlan Stangeland said there is a lot of work to be done regarding farm programs and that he is convinced the administration was "not sincere" in its promises.

"Increasing costs and lower net farm income point out clearly the current financial situation facing farmers and the critical and immediate need for Congress to pass this legislation. I do not believe this is the answer to the problems farmers face, but it is an interim measure which will keep many farmers from being forced from their farms until Congress can address the problem of low commodity prices for farmers," Stangeland said.

Prior to the grain embargo, the U.S. department of agriculture estimated net farm income for 1980 to be 20 per cent below the net farm income of 1979. In addition to this reduction, farmers are expected to face increased production costs. Tractors are expected to increase in cost by 14 per cent in 1980, fuel by 35 per cent, pesticides by as much as 20 per cent, fertilizers by 18 per cent and interest rates by as much as 15 per cent.

"This legislation extends the economic emergency loan program in the Farmers Home administration from May 15, 1980, to Sept. 30, 1981, and increases the amount of funds available in the program from $4 billion to $6 billion. The bill also contains provisions which will tighten the administration of the program and make it more workable," Rep. Stangeland said.

"In addition, it amends the farm storage facility loan program of the commodity credit corporation to modify restriction on such loans so as to enable the program to be more effective in meeting the demand for farm storage. The demand for storage has been increased due to the long-term producer reserve program and the grain embargo recently imposed on shipments to the Soviet Union.

"I support this legislation," Stangeland said, "but there is a lot of work to be done regarding farm programs. Following the administration's decision of February 29 not to have a paid diversion program for grains, it seems clear to me that the administration was not sincere in its promise to share the burden of the grain embargo. Congress must move immediately to assure that what the administration promised is in fact delivered."

The bill passed overwhelmingly by a vote of 392 to 22.

FEATURING PORTRAYALS of musical panoramas from the Bible, the Trinity college "Winds and Voices" will present a special concert at the Evangelical Free church in Thief River Falls on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. "Winds and Voices" is a unique concept of program ministry, presenting a balance of vocal and instrumental music by 45 selected outstanding students of the college. MELODEE RUPPRECHT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rupprecht, Thief River Falls, was among 63 St. Luke's hospital school of nursing freshman students who received their caps in traditional ceremonies recently in Duluth. This event marked the end of a six-month pre-clinical training. Caps were presented to the women and pins to the men in the class.

61st Birthday Noted By Legion Post In TRF

Ecklund-Holmstrom American Legion Post 117 of Thief River Falls celebrated its 61st birthday with a dinner Saturday evening in the Legion club rooms.

Maynard Wedul was master of ceremonies for the program, opening with the Pledge of Allegiance, while the opening prayer was given by Paul Cuppett, commander of the sons of the American Legion.

Special music was furnished by Jane Mackenroth and Paul Mortenson singing vocal solos, accompanied by Jody Bergerson. Welcomes were given by Ike Hoglin, post commander, and Marllyn Winters, unit president.

Wedul introduced all the past commanders and past unit presidents. Special guests were World War I veterans. Guest speaker was Vern (Sargo) Carstensen, Minnesota department commander from Mankato. Carstensen spoke on the armed forces situation today, programs of the American Legion and auxiliary and why all available Legionnaires and auxiliary members are needed.

29-Day Month Affects Data On Dairying

Minnesota milk production was up three per cent from a year ago. Milk per cow was up 20 pounds and 5,000 more milk cows were in herds than in February of 1979.

The extra day in February had quite an effect on these comparisons. Adjusting February of 1980 to 28 days, would adjust milk per cow to 888 pounds, down 12 pounds from a year earlier. Total milk production would adjust to 755 million pounds, down one per cent in a non-leap year comparison.

United States February milk production totaled 9.92 billion pounds, six per cent above February of 1979. Accumulated production for January-February 1980 was 20.2 billion pounds, four per cent above the corresponding period a year earlier and five per cent above two years ago. The extra day in February of 1980 increases monthly production per cow by 3.6 per cent. February milk production, using milk per cow for 28 days, is nearly three per cent above February of 1979.

Why will the 1980 census ask how many bedrooms are in a home: Because the answer, combined with the number of occupants and the home's value, indicate overcrowding, housing quality, and help forecast potential school enrollment.

Donald Larson Has High Yield Of Sunflowers

Donald Larson of Thief River Falls was among three northern sunflower growers with yields of more than 2,800 pounds per acre who were officially recognized as winners of the 1979 sunflower masters award.

The yield contest, sponsored by Northrup King Co., drew more than 320 entries from the Dakotas and Minnesota. Sunflower seminar and awards banquet were held at the Holiday Inn, Fargo, to honor contest participants and announce the award-winning yield results.

First place winner was Vincent Zacharias of Kathryn, N.D., who harvested 2,888 pounds per acre from his irrigated sunflower field.

Second place was awarded to Doyle Vollrath of St. Thomas, N.D., for his yield of 2,875 pounds per acre.

Third place went to Larson with a yield of 2,840 pounds per acre.

The three winners were honored with plaques and each awarded an expense paid trip for two to Las Vegas.

Zacharias planted at 23,500 seeds per acre on May 24 and harvested on October 4. Vollrath planted his field on May 19 at 21,000 seeds per acre and the field was harvested on October 17.

Larson reported that weather conditions for his 80-acre entry were ideal. "We were able to get an early start planting. That helped our yields," he said. "We got excellent standability even at high populations and in spite of some really heavy winds that hit the field," he added.

Larson planted his sunflowers at a rate of 26,000 seeds per acre on May 21 and harvested on October 20.

In addition to the three top winners, more than 300 other sunflower grower-participants were honored at the banquet. Eighty-two growers received personalized leather attache cases for achieving yields of 2,000 pounds per acre or more.

Other area growers and their yields included the following: Goodridge — Gordon Henrickson, 2,075; Red Lake Falls — Jorgen Knutson, 2,120 and Donald Laursen, 2,720; Thief River Falls — Clyde Christensen, 2,450; Curtis Christensen, 2,050; Kenton Christensen, 2,150; Gene Henrickson, 2,050; Ken and Maynard Mehrkens, 2,418; and Joe Ose, 2,371.

Winters Are Enjoyable For Brazil Student

middle of February and runs until July, and then begins again on August 1 and continues until November, he said.

Students cannot choose the subjects they want to take in high school like they can here. Subjects required in Brazil include Portuguese and another foreign language, history, physical education, geography, biology, physics, chemistry, literature, and civics, which looks at the government in Brazil. A religion is also required at certain schools, with the major religion in Brazil being Catholic, he said.

Most of the people in Brazil don't know how to speak English. Antonio took an English course for two years, meeting for one hour each day.

"It wasn't hard to learn to speak English," he said. "Learning Portuguese is a little harder, especially the grammar part of it.

"I'm really having a hard time in my composition class," he admitted, staring at his small stack of books and papers in front of him. "I've never had American history before either, and that's kind of hard. But English is more complicated yet."

But the teachers and students have been helpful to him, he said. One of his future English projects is a research report which involves much reading, studying and writing.

"This will help me out," he said, as he took a thick sample report from beneath his books.

Even though Antonio is 15 and is a junior at Lincoln high school, his American sister Kirsten, 14, is in eighth grade. Antonio's younger brother in Brazil, who is only two, began school this year (similar to an American day care center). Children begin kindergarten when they are four, he said.

Students attend school until eighth grade in Brazil taking regular subjects, and then spend the next three years of school preparing for a university, Antonio stated.

"Most people go to universities after they're done with high school. If they don't, they probably won't get a good job," he said.

Students are not permitted to leave the school building while school is in session, Antonio said. "If you're absent, you have to prove you were sick. This is the only excuse that is accepted."

In Brazil, after a day of school, students enjoy tennis, basketball, swimming or other sports. Antonio enjoys table tennis, swimming and collecting stamps.

Both the metric system and the U.S. system of measurement are taught in schools, Antonio said. "But if you asked a person in Brazil his height, one out of 100 would answer by using feet and inches," he said.

Type of currency used in Brazil is a cruzeiro (43 of them would equal an American dollar). Antonio has noticed that food is more expensive here — especially the seafood, which is fresh in Belem, since the city is located along a river.

There are certain foods that Antonio has come to dislike since his stay here, he said.

"I don't like gravy. I know the people here (U.S.) do. And so many foods here are frozen. I don't like frozen vegetables or cooked carrots," he added, wrinkling his nose.

He does, however, like fresh blueberry muffins and the strawberries he sampled in Miami on his trip to the United States, he said.

Although Antonio did not explain a great deal about the type of government in Brazil, he did state that the president of Brazil is not elected directly by the people. Each state elects one person as a candidate for president, and all the people represented from each state are then put together and the president of Brazil is chosen to serve a four-year term.

Antonio has noticed and enjoyed a special trait in both countries, he said, and that is the freedom to express one's own ideas — most of the time. He explained this with his statement, "Of course, if you say something bad to your parents, you have to put up with the consequences."

Antonio admitted there are some lonely times while he is away from his home and family in Brazil. "But it's what I wanted to do," he said. In July he will be traveling back to his home country where he will begin preparing for a university. Although he hasn't decided yet exactly what he would like to do, he enjoys mathematics and physics, and would maybe like to become a civil engineer, he said.

As for now, he will continue studying to complete his junior year at school here. And composition and American history will remain a portion of his schedule until the end of the year.

Gathering his books together, he zipped up his ski jacket, slipped on his mittens, and before leaving, asked with a smile, "Do you know where I can get some note cards?"

Blood Services To Draw Blood Here Thursday

because they don't understand how important it is," Solberg added. "Doctors use blood for only one reason — to sustain life. Without blood, the life of the patient would be endangered, so the giving of blood is truly an important life-saving act."

Donating blood is a safe, simple and almost painless process which takes 30 to 40 minutes, including registration, sample drawing and a few minutes for a cup of coffee or juice following the donation.

To fully meet the requests of physicians in the communities it serves, United Blood services must have blood of every type available at all times. There is no substitute for blood and the human body is still the only source for producing it.

"If you believe that the immediate need for blood is remote," Solberg added, "consider that each day more than 24,000 units of blood are transfused in the United States. That totals over eight million units a year and the number is increasing rapidly. Most healthy persons between the ages of 17 and 66 are generally accepted as blood donors and every volunteer donor helps meet a vital need in the community."

As the blood is drawn it flows through a tube into a plastic bag containing a solution which preserves it for 21 days. A few segments of the tube are removed from the bag to determine blood type and to test for diseases which might be transmitted to receiving patients. Testing requires several hours for each unit of blood. Because of the time needed to test and prepare the blood, there must always be a supply available. A patient who needs blood cannot wait.

Once the necessary tests have been performed, some of the blood is stored as whole blood. Other units of blood are divided into red blood cells, platelets, plasma and antihemophilic factor.

By dividing a blood unit into its components, as many as four patients can benefit from one unit of blood. The red blood cells might be used for a surgery patient. The antihemophilic factor is needed for victims of hemophilia (a bleeding disease) and plasma is used to treat burn patients and accident victims with acute blood loss. Platelets are frequently needed by leukemia patients.

Units of whole blood, as well as units of individual components are stored until they are needed. An inventory control technician supervises the storage of the blood and records hospital blood orders. A daily check is made of the blood inventory to assure proper utilization and keep expirations at a minimum. A hospital service representative delivers the blood as needed. This system assures hospital patients total blood service 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Expect Demand For Farm Loans To Be Strong This Spring

Demand for loans by farmers in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and northwestern Wisconsin remained farily strong in early January, according to the January issue of "Agricultural Credit Conditions," published by the federal reserve bank of Minneapolis. Lending at the 121 banks responding to the survey will probably expand in the next few months, but not because of the recent embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union.

Reporting before the grain embargo, many bankers said the demand for loans in their areas was unusually heavy as 1980 began. The number of requests for new short-term loans was greater than usual at nearly one-third of the banks. This is a somewhat smaller share than the share that reported or expected very strong demand in the survey three months earlier. But it is twice as big as the share that reported January's demand as unusually weak. More than 40 per cent of the bankers said requests to refinance old loans were greater than usual in January too, a slight increase since October.

The bank's report said heavy demand for loans seems mainly to be due to the large inventories farmers had built up by the end of 1979. As expected last October, the Duluth grain shipper's strike ended too late to move all the grain to market before winter closed the waterways. This left many farmers with big stocks of grain and without living and operating funds — thus the heavy borrowing at rural banks. Some farmers probably also were borrowing on large stocks held off the market intentionally in hopes that the very low prices for their crops — especially corn — would rise soon.

Commodity prices, according to the Minneapolis bank, may also help explain why the demand for loans in early January was not quite as strong as bankers expected last October. Between this and the last survey, the prices of wheat and livestock reached surprisingly high levels, so farmers able to sell these products were more likely to repay their loans than renew them.

A closer look at survey data supports this analysis. Minnesota farmers, for example, are heavily dependent on the Duluth shipping port and are big producers of the low-priced corn, while Montana farmers specialize more in the high-priced wheat and livestock. As the analysis suggests, farmers in Minnesota have had a much greater need to borrow: In January, short-term loan demand was reported stronger than usual by 53 per cent of Minnesota's rural bankers and only three per cent of Montana's. Loan demand was actually reported weaker than usual by 32 per cent of the bankers in Montana but only six per cent of those in Minnesota.

Loan demand at rural banks surveyed remained stronger than usual despite a sharp rise in the price farmers had to pay to borrow. Largely because of rising interest rates in national money markets, the reported rate on short-term ag loans shot up from 11.8 to 13.6 per cent in the three months between surveys.

Nearly 80 per cent of the bankers reporting in early January said the rates on these loans were trending upward, but they didn't think that would dampen the demand soon. They expected farmers to keep requesting loans at the recent strong pace for the next three months. The federal reserve bank does not anticipate that the grain embargo will change that outlook as the government followed the embargo with plans to support grain prices, and prices have since climbed — most above preembargo levels.

The bank does anticipate that the supply of money to lend and hence the number of farmers able to get loans will expand in the first half of the year. This is because of a federal law that has suspended state usury laws on ag loans of $25,000 or more from January through June of 1980. The cost of funds to financial firms has reached very high levels, and this law was intended to keep funds flowing locally by letting financial firms charge a more profitable interest rate than state laws allow.

Farmers in Wisconsin and the Dakotas should benefit most from the new federal law. These states have had the lowest ceilings on interest rates and the lowest of lending for bankers, these artifically low rates have kept some farmers from getting loans. Presumably, with state ceilings lifted, rates in Wisconsin and the Dakotas will rise to levels much closer to those already established by farmers and bankers in Minnesota and Montana. With lending more profitable, more farmers in the low-ceiling states will find more funds available to them.

Industrial Bond Use Increases 58.5 Per Cent

State auditor Arne Carlson has announced that the use of industrial revenue bonds has been increasing since 1971 at a compounded rate of growth of 58.5 per cent. In a special report to the governor and the state legislature, Carlson noted that the use of industrial revenue bonds has increased from $20.3 million in 1971 to a total authorized indebtedness of $2.4 billion by 1979.

Carlson also noted that $671,965,635 was authorized in 1979 as compared to $555,317,000 in 1978. In addition, the report shows $1.74 billion authorized through the end of calendar year 1978, and $1.17 billion, or 67 percent, issued at the end of that period.

Carlson stated that he is concerned that there is no mechanism for collecting data from local units relative to the issued, paid and outstanding industrial revenue bonds, nor the viability of the issuers of such debt. There is known to be at least five instances of financial difficulty or default.

"It is apparent that there is going to be a need for better monitoring and I regard the legislation introduced by Senator David Schaaf as vital because it will allow the state to do a much better job of examining the application and costs of revenue bonds," said Carlson.

Industrial revenue bond financing is a method of providing a private corporation's need for capital through the issuance of tax exempt municipal bonds under the community's name, but without the full faith and credit of the municipality.

Seek Opinions On Change In Milk Order

Dairy farmers and others interested have until March 19 to comment on a U.S. department of agriculture proposal to continue the suspension of certain partial payments under the Upper Midwest federal milk marketing order.

Herbert L. Forest, dairy official with the USDA's agricultural marketing service, said the proposal would continue the suspension through April 1981. It has been in effect since November 1976, he said, and will expire at the end of April.

Proposed action, Forest said, would continue to suspend the requirement that handlers make a partial payment to producers by the 25th day of the month for milk delivered during the first 15 days of the month. Proposed suspension would continue to be limited only to producers who don't have their payments collected by a cooperative. Final payment for the month is still due by the 18th day of the following month.

Upper Midwest order, with the partial payment provisions, went into effect following a 1976 merger and expansion of four midwestern orders. Many of the producers under the new order, particularly those in Wisconsin, were accustomed to receiving their payments 15 days apart and objected to the new payment dates, Forest said.

The new extension was requested by Falls Dairy company and Clover Leaf Creamery company, which are handlers regulated under the Upper Midwest order.

Notice of the proposed suspension was scheduled to be published in the March 4 Federal Register. Any comments should be sent to the Hearing Clerk, rm. 1077-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, where they will be available for public inspection.

Tax Break Is Incentive To Hire Veterans

A new federal program to give tax breaks to employers is expected to provide additional job opportunity for thousands of Minnesota Vietnam-era veterans and veterans of all other periods who have received rehabilitation training for service-connected disabilities.

Program is sponsored by the department of labor and the internal revenue service and is supported by the Veterans administration through its regional offices, according to Morris Nooner, Jr., director of the VA center at Fort Snelling.

Program offers employers a "targeted jobs" tax credit for hiring individuals from seven groups the government is seeking to help, Nooner explained. The credit can amount to 50 per cent of the first $6,000 in qualified wages paid employees during their first year on the job and 25 per cent of the first $6,000 paid the second year.

Eligibles sought by the VA include economically disadvantaged Vietnam-era veterans under age 35 at the time of hiring and service-disabled veterans who have completed or are receiving VA rehabilitation training.

Tax credit is based generally on wages paid to qualified employees first hired after Sept. 26, 1978, and earned between Jan. 1, 1979, and Dec. 31, 1980. Nooner said that applicants who qualify for the tax credit program are given a voucher that explains to prospective employers the individual's eligibility for certification if hired before a certain date. To receive certification, the employer completes the declaration on the voucher and returns it to the local department of Labor Jobs service office.

Individuals who believe they can qualify for the program are urged to contact local state employment offices. Veterans may also receive assistance from VA regional offices in determining eligibility. The VA official said that regional office staffs are working with on-the-job training and apprenticeship employers as potential program users.

Planetarium At MSU Shows Moon Rocks

Moon rocks and soil samples taken back to earth by Apollo 15, 16 and 17 will be on display at the Moorhead state university planetarium this spring along with video-shows and educational displays on lunar explorations.

Apollo package is being sent to Moorhead state by the national aeronautics and space administration and will remain there through mid-May.

University will present two shows a week exhibiting the moon rocks and detailing Apollo missions. One show, aimed at adults, is scheduled at 7 p.m. Tuesdays from March 18 to May 13. The other show, for young people, will run at 2 p.m. Sundays from March 16 to May 11 except on Easter Sunday.

Lunar artifacts are encased in a clear lucite disk about the size of a football and include three rock fragments and three different soil samples from the moon's surface.

Special showings for school and civic groups can be arranged by calling the MSU planetarium at 236-3982.

Lunar samples will also be in display before each of the planetarium's regular spring programs. Showing now through March 30 is "Springtime of the Universe" and from April 10 to June 1, "The Last Question." For more information, contact the planetarium.

Fossell And Michal Enlist In Air Force

David L. Michal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd L. Michal of Roseau, and Brian D. Fossell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Fossell of Brooks, entered the United States air force delayed enlistment program on March 10, according to Master Sergeant Roger A. Fortin, air force recruiter in Grand Forks, ND.

Airman Michal selected the electronics area for job training and Airman Fossell selected the aerospace medical specialist area.

Both will attend a six-week basic military training course at Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas. Michal will begin on April 3 and Fossell on July 3.

Plan Two-Part MSU Workshop On Sexuality

A two-part Moorhead state university nursing workshop on "Human Sexuality" will meet March 21-22 and April 25-26 at the Detroit Lakes AVTI.

Two-credit workshop, aimed at nurses but open to other health and social service professionals, will explore how sexuality affects relationships between people. Course will look at sex roles, social attitudes towards sex and the physiology and psychology of sexual responses.

"Human Sexuality" will meet from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 21 and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 22 in the southeast multipurpose room of the Detroit Lakes AVTI. Second part of the workshop is scheduled from 6:30 to 9 p.m. April 25 and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 26.

Course instructors are Bev Wesley, an assistant professor of sociology who's been teaching courses on human sexuality at MSU for the past four years; and Dr. Leonard Levine from the Fargo clinic, who has extensive experience in sex counseling and working with spinal-cord injured patients.

To preregister, contact the Moorhead state nursing department at 236-2693. Cost for the 26-hour course is $25.30 a person.

$20,000 Fine Issued To MN, Meat Exporter

Vice-president of Weinstein International corporation, an import-export brokerage firm at 5738 Olson Memorial highway, Minneapolis, has been fined $20,000 for a meat inspection act violation.

Weinstein was fined by U.S. district judge Edward J. Dewitt in the St. Paul, U.S. District court after pleading guilty to selling and attempting to distribute in commerce — with intent to defraud — approximately 17,800 pounds of adulterated beef.

The beef, which originated in Australia, had been refused entry into the United States because it contained "pathological lesions." Weinstein shipped the adulterated meat to a buyer in Curacao, Netherlands Antilles, using an altered U.S. Department of agriculture document that falsely stated the meat had been refused U.S. entry because of "processing defects — bones." The forgery was discovered when Curacao and USDA officials compared documents.

The federal meat inspection act, administered by USDA's food safety and quality service, requires that meat and meat products sold in interstate and foreign commerce be wholesome, unadulterated and properly labeled.

Headlight Use Required For Foggy Weather

Mild Minnesota winter has presented several different kinds of problems for motorists, according to public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

One of them, experienced during early spring, is overcast and fog during daylight hours.

State patrol chief Roger Ledding reminds motorists that state law requires motorists to turn on headlights if visibility is less than 500 feet. He adds that the regular headlights must be used when moving. Amber blinkers may be used on vehicles that are stopped. Headlight use is required from sunset to sunrise in the state.

An additional reminder about driving the rest of the winter is that motorists should not assume that clear roads mean good winter conditions. Often in recent months the temperature has hovered near freezing, making early morning or late night driving hazardous due to melting ice or snow that has turned back to ice because of the fluctuating temperature.

There is another problem with mild winters. Motorists think they can drive faster. When bad weather does arrive, it catches people unaware. That is one reason the 55 mile an hour limit is a good system all 12 months of the year, Sopsic said.

Retarded Are Recognized During March

For the people called "mentally retarded," the difference is in the degree and extent of slowness. From 75 to 85 per cent of retarded people are only mildly or moderately retarded and are capable of supporting themselves if they receive adequate education and training. Another 10 per cent can become partially self-supporting and the remainder — perhaps as few as five per cent remain essentially dependent.

Try thinking of retarded people first as people. Like everyone else, they need a good home life, an education, preparation for their life's work, companionship, religious nurture, self-respect or whatever everyone would want for themselves and their children, according to the Pennington county association for retarded citizens.

March is retarded citizens month in Minnesota, a time to be aware of the many efforts to help retarded people enjoy the rights of citizenship and a normal life. Some of the programs offered in communities throughout Minnesota include:

Locally-run programs such as group homes, developmental achievement centers, sheltered workshops and educational programs;

Efforts at the city, county and state level to improve laws affecting retarded people, to secure more funds for programs of all kinds, to remove discrimination and to enhance opportunities;

Educational efforts to help people see retarded people as individuals with personality, ability and potential for growth;

Programs to provide companionship and enjoyment for retarded children and adults, such as camps, Special Olympics, foster grandparents, senior companions, and many one-to-one relationships between volunteers and retarded people; and Programs to prevent retardation by improving the health of pregnant women and small children and by conducting research into the many causes of this problem that affects 6,000,000 Americans.

The people in our community who are members of the association for retarded citizens include parents of retarded people, professionals who provide programs for them and other interested people.

These people are trying to achieve "normalization" for retarded people, which simply means a life as much like everyone's as possible.

Plan Program On Childhood Illness Mar. 27

Dr. Peter Johnson of the Falls clinic will be presenting a talk on childhood illnesses Thursday, March 27 at 8 p.m. at the children and parents learning together center in room 104 of Mark Twain elementary school.

Some of the things he will be talking about are: danger signals to look for in children, when to call the doctor and when not to call and how to treat illnesses at home.

This information presentation will also include time for him to answer questions. The meeting is open to the public; to register call 681-5670.

CPLT is one of 36 pilot programs in early childhood and family education located throughout Minnesota and funded by the state legislature. Program is coordinated by the Minnesota council on quality education. Invited to participate are expectant parents or the parents of a child aged birth to kindergarten and living in the Thief River Falls school district.

Athletics—A Uniting Force

It is interesting at this time of the year to read the newspapers we receive in exchange from many other communities throughout the state. They are generally very generous in the space they devote to athletic teams of one type or another competing in tournament activities.

Two particular cases in point were the Baudette Region — whose Lake of the Woods Bears lost the state boys' Class A basketball championship in double overtime — and the East Grand Forks newspapers, whose Green Wave hockey team won the Section 8 hockey tournament for the first time in history and advanced to state competition.

Looking at these newspapers it becomes apparent very quickly that high school athletics provide a very uniting force in the community. A full house at the Crookston Central gymnasium for the girls' Class A basketball tourney late last week is another example as communities rallied behind the groups of youngsters representing their schools.

There is the human emotion of pride on display here, and pride translated into support and stimulation to do one's best is a worthy emotion. When good teams play well and win the support increases, and if they reach the pinnacle of state tournament participation they find their following united solidly behind them.

We think of this uniting force when people mention to us their belief that there is an over-emphasis on high school athletics. Competition begets a following — an involvement and personal interest which it is impossible to create in any other way. That involvement and interest translate into an allegiance, not only to the sport and the team that plays it but to the school and community that provide it.

Isn't it great that Baudette, for instance, clamped like the rest of us in winter ice and snow and cold, can have an uplifting, positive focus of interest like their high school cagers? We would bet the community morale and attitude is greatly improved and the impact will be felt for some time to come. And shouldn't those same team members, buoyed up by their own efforts and the optimism of their fans, be affected positively by their experience?

On occasions in the past we have had second thoughts about the athletic emphasis on school age youngsters. We have questioned the pressures which are brought to bear and the emphasis placed on winning games. But winning is the object of playing the game, we must admit, and it is difficult to fault that objective. Whatever those second thoughts may have been, they seem to disappear at tournament time.

As a person becomes involved as a sports fan, he or she identifies with the participants in a personal way. The fan rejoices with the team in a game well played and suffers with the team when all does not go well. If the team includes a player who is a son or daughter, brother or sister, nephew or niece, grandson or granddaughter or close friend, the involvement and emotions become especially close.

Not only do such fans form a loyalty that includes support, they form a loyalty that evokes an immediate defense if they feel the team is being wronged. Imagine the contempt for anyone in the Baudette community who would have, for instance, denied use of the school gymnasium for the welcome home celebration after the state tourney. Fans know the effort put forth by the players and coaches and wouldn't tolerate an action to deprive them of the chance to show their appreciation.

Let's take a look a little closer to home. Thief River Falls sports fans have traditionally honored their teams with recognition dinners at the close of the season. This year events were held for fall sports including football, cross country, girls' tennis, girls' swimming and volleyball. The youngsters and coaches received some deserved recognition for the work they had done and the season ended on a high note.

It would presently appear that winter sports at Lincoln will not be afforded this opportunity. Faculty miffed with the school board over an unsettled general teaching contract have decided to do away with all but contracted services. Among the casualties of such a decision are the sports recognition events for hockey, boys' basketball, boys' swimming and girls' basketball.

Deserved recognition for people involved in these sports is thus being denied them and innocent, dedicated young people are being sacrificed on the altar of union pique.

Why should members of an organization which professes professionalism and concern for children take an action obviously directly contrary to that stated position? Only God and the MEA know . . . and we could understand if God might be a little confused by it all.

Depriving athletes and families and coaches of an opportunity for an informal get-together will accomplish nothing toward contract settlement and serves only to deepen animosities which any community can ill afford. The potential uniting force of high school athletics is being struck a low blow by this unnecessary, unwarranted and truly ineffective decision.

Census To Probe

Following editorial is from the Bennett County Booster:

On April 1, Americans will be hit with 90 million forms seeking information about their marriages, divorces, toilets, bedrooms, telephones, kitchens, incomes, mortgages, property values, ancestry and commuting habits.

These and dozens of other subjects are covered in the forthcoming 1980 census, the costliest and some say the most complex census ever undertaken in American history.

Before it is finished, the census will cost more than $1 billion, or more than $4 per person — over four times what it cost in 1970 ($221 million), even though the population has risen by a modest nine per cent.

With several exceptions, the questions have remained generally unchanged over the last two decades. But many questions persist in the census "long form" which critics believe are less than vital.

Among other things, the government wants to know how many bedrooms and bathrooms you have; whether you have air conditioning and if so, how many units; and whether you enter your living quarters through a common hall or directly from the outside.

Also, how many stories are in your building; when was it built; whether you have a telephone; how many automobiles are in your household; what are your real estate taxes; what are your mortgage payments; do you have a second mortgage; what is your income, including wages, salary, interest, dividends or pensions.

Of women, it asks, "How many babies has she ever had, not counting stillbirths?"

Other questions seek to discover how many hours you worked last week, how you got to work, how long it takes you to commute, where you lived five years ago, and what is your race or ancestry.

Anyone who willfully refuses to answer these and other questions is liable for federal prosecution and could risk being fined at least $100.

Most Americans will receive one of two forms. The short form will go to 78 per cent of the population. The long form will be mailed to the remaining 22 per cent.

Census officials said the average American should be able to fill out the five-page short form in 15 minutes and the 20-page long form in 45 minutes.

However, a college-educated reporter for the Washington Post said it took him 75 minutes to finish the lengthier version.

Interesting Opinions:

"We have to develop a technology that fits major ecosystems and uses acceptable crops. Then we have to demonstrate that these new techniques actually work, so that farmers can see the benefits and respond. Meantime, there is a hell of an educational vacuum in the U.S. when high school biology texts devote two paragraphs to agriculture and two chapters to the environment."

—Normal Borlaug, Nobel-laureate agronomist

"Quite soon, the consumer may have to wait or do without some of the good, abundant food that is now taken for granted. Food currently accounts for about 17 per cent of the average American pocketbook. Added regulation could inflate this to 30 per cent over the next decade."

—Craig L. Wiley, California farmer

Borrowed Nonsense:

A telephone repairman's knock was answered with an invitation to "come in." Inside the house the repairman found only a parrot and a German Shepherd dog. As he began to lecture the bird on the danger of inviting an unknown visitor into the house the parrot squawked to the dog, "Sic 'em."

"Don't tell me there's nothing wrong with me," the spinster shouted at the young doctor. "I was in failing health before you were born!"

Legislative Report

Marv Hanson

District 1 State Senator

The full Senate approved a number of bills last week, as we entered the concluding weeks of the 1980 session.

We approved measures ranging from a bill setting a uniform definition of "small business", to legislation helping Minnesota resort owners.

The "small business" legislation will correct considerable confusion regarding eligibility limits for small business assistance programs. Confusion existed because small business had different definitions from program to program. This bill should eliminate those differences and improve the efficiency and impact of small business programs. It defines a "small business" as one with 20 or fewer full-time employees, and with gross sales of $1 million or less. This definition will focus our small business programs on truly small businesses like those we have across our area.

In other action on small business, the Senate employment committee approved a bill creating a small business finance agency. With the prime interest rate at a record 17 per cent, plus, and business loan interest soaring to 20 per cent, the traditional sources of financing for small businesses are drying up. Under the proposed bill, the new small business finance agency would be authorized to issue tax-exempt bonds to finance loans that would help small businesses in expanding or improving their facilities, or complying with pollution control regulations.

A bill establishing uniform standards for highway signs for resort owners gained acceptance this past week also. This measure is the product of months of negotiations involving State Senator Gerald Willet and the U.S. department of transportation.

Currently, the Minnesota resort owners find it almost impossible to direct clients to their businesses because federal law prohibits the placement of signs along many highways. A compromise reached in negotiations with federal officials will, however, allow resorts and campgrounds to erect signs which are uniform in appearance.

The bill approved last week would allow the placement of signs no larger than 1½ feet by six feet; white and blue in color, and within ten miles of the tourist facility. These signs would display the resort or campground name, a directional arrow and the distance of the facility.

The Senate granted final approval to the landowners' bill of rights, which I discussed in a previous report. Basically, the measure requires that landowners be provided a written, understandable explanation of those rights before any sale of land to the state can be completed. With such a statement, landowners should be able to take advantage of all their rights under the law, without being forced to hire an attorney to explain those rights.

If you have any questions concerning these, or any other issues, feel free to write me at 23J Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155 or call (612) 296-4835.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

In regard to the letter of March 3 by Mary Mercel, who states that she is not afraid of Breznev, well I am also an American citizen but I am afraid of Breznev. If I lived in Russia and wrote a letter like Mary Mercel, I would be ready to face the firing squad.

Our president was working to disarm, which would save billions of dollars of taxes, but the world can't disarm because Russia wants war unless they can take over one country at a time with no one trying to stop them. When they took over Afghanistan they killed — the news said — possibly 110,000 innocent people. If Mary knows the answer to our nation's problems then she should let our senators and representatives know. I sure would not trade governments with Russia.

Sincerely,
Olaf Stolaas

Energy Bill Presented As A Compromise

Public utility companies may soon be able to install energy saving equipment in customers' homes and loan customers money for residential conservation improvements.

In a compromise effort which brought conservationists and utility companies to agreement, the Minnesota House energy committee, at a late night meeting on February 28, recommended a bill which would require utilities to make conservation programs available to their customers. Present law doesn't allow utilities to invest in measures to decrease energy demand.

Conservation groups have criticized utilities for their bent to build new power plants and ignore methods to cut energy demand. Rep. Tom Stoa (DFL-Winona) is sponsor of the bill which seems to make both sides happy.

"We want to support this bill," a spokesman for Northern States power company (NSP) of Minneapolis said. Minnesota public interest research group (MPIRG), a student supported, pro-conservation lobbying group, also supports the bill.

State public service commission would decide the kind of programs to come out of the bill if the bill becomes law.

Effect of the proposal on customers' utility bills is unclear. The bill specifically allows utilities to recover costs of conservation programs from customers. However, if programs are successful, said Gary Johnson, attorney for NSP, customers could save money.

Property owners would initiate conservation improvements in their buildings. Landlords might be willing to undertake such improvements as one way to meet conservation requirements in other laws, according to a House research analyst.

It's not clear whether utility conservation programs would place an extra burden on homeowners who make energy saving improvements on their own.

Major compromise in the bill centered on a provision which would tie a utility's participation in energy saving programs to permission to build a new power plant. Originally, the bill would have denied a certificate of need for new plants unless utilities could show that they can't meet the energy demand through conservation improvements. But as it stands now, conservation improvement is just one factor which state agencies must consider when deciding whether a new plant is justifiable.

Applications Open For MSU Summer Study

High school students who are toying with careers in theatre, radio or television can get a taste of the real thing this summer at Moorhead state university.

University's high school summer theatre company will open its 11th season June 9 with a seven-day-a-week, four-week schedule of on campus workshops, rehearsals and productions. Program is open to eighth graders through senior high school students, who must apply by April 30 if they want to be considered for one of the 40 summer company openings.

During the past decade more than 400 junior and senior high school students have become part of the MSU summer company, learning practical skills in stage, broadcasting and film production from a professional staff.

During the month-long schedule, students are immersed in seminars and rehearsals morning, noon and night. They learn, and then do it themselves, staging a full-length play and some experimental theatre for the Fargo-Moorhead public, taking over the campus radio station, taping television commercials and newscasts at the university's television production center and shooting experimental films.

"There's not a program like it in the country," says Ted Larson, an assistant professor of speech and theatre at Moorhead state who runs the summer production company. "We're unique because we not only teach the students, but we let them perform like professionals — in real broadcasts and live threatre."

Students who've undergone apprenticeships in the summer company have come from the five-state Upper Midwest, Canada and even California. One of its graduates has worked in films with French mime Marcel Marceau, others are teaching and many are in radio and television broadcasting now.

"We try to given them a realistic view of what it's like to be in the business," Larson said. "Some learn quickly that they're not cut out for the state. Others catch a spark and dig in for careers."

Students — when not rehearsing — are routed through workshops ranging from make-up, lighting, dance and camera technique to acting and voice. They're also exposed to weekly stage productions by the university's professional summer company, The Straw Hat Players, and tour local broadcasting studios.

During the four weeks, the students can either live in the campus dormitories, or commute from home if they live nearby. Tuition is $120 plus room and board and some scholarships are available.

For applications, contact your high school counselor or drama director, or write: Ted Larson, director, High School Summer Theatre company, Moorhead State University, Moorhead, MN 56560.

Miss Matero will discuss conservation of energy as an alternative all family members can practice. Energy labeling and consumption of energy by major appliances will also be included.

Following the energy program, the Northwestern Cowbelles will provide a beef tea and educational display for the public at 3 p.m. Samples of beef products and beef recipes will be given. Melander Buys Stephen Bldg. Center Complex

Norris Melander, owner-manager of Home Lumber company in Thief River Falls, recently purchased the Stephen building center complex and adjacent land from ElRay Anderson of Stephen.

The property was purchased in January and will open under the new ownership April 1 under the Home Lumber company name with five employees. Melander said the Stephen move is his first expansion but that he hopes to expand into other northwestern Minnesota communities.

A North Dakota native, Melander received his BS degree in accounting from the University of North Dakota in 1954 and in January of 1955 started an accounting firm in Thief River Falls. He sold that firm in 1960 and went to Arizona for two years, returning in 1962 and purchasing Home Lumber company in January of 1963.

The company has since grown to have an office and sales area of 20,000 square feet and a covered storage area of 30,000 square feet, located on five acres of land.

In addition to his lumber business, he serves on the board of directors of Northern state bank, Hydra-Mac, Inc., Best Western Inn and the Northwestern Lumbermen's association.

Flood Outlook Moderate Say Forecasters

Spring flood outlook for the Red River of the north area continues to call for minor to moderate flooding along the Red river and its tributaries, assuming normal conditions through the melt period, according to the U.S. weather service.

Minor flooding is described as rivers being slightly over flood stage with minimal property damage and some public inconvenience. Moderate flooding means some threat would exist to lives and property. Levels approaching record stages and providing substantial threat to lives and property would be classified as major flooding while record water stages and serious threat to lives and property would be classified as severe flooding.

Frost depth of two feet or more will prevent snow melt and spring rain from penetrating into the soil and heavy rains could result in major flooding. Some settling of the snowpack has been noted in recent days and a small amount of additional snow received.

Senior Citizens News

On February 6, the seniors met to take care of our business for the month. The secretary's minutes were read by Ruth Martin and the treasurer's report was read by Lucille Skadsem and both approved as read.

Percy Stokke, our county commissioner, called our president, Nellie Olson and suggested that we spend half of the grant of $400 to pay for transportation and the other half for equipment for the center. We are now paying Art Skadsem a dollar a day for his driving, delivering meals to the shut-ins and picking up seniors for meals. Thank you, Art, for a job well done.

It was decided that we have one fun day a month. The third Wednesday of each month will be our fun day and the other Wednesdays will be work days for crafts, quilting or whatever there is to do.

We also voted to have a representative at the committee on aging which will be held at our center on February 12. Viola Moen offered to attend. The meeting was adjourned.

On March 5 we met at the center. Reports of the last meeting were read by Ruth Martin and Lucille Skadsem.

Mrs. Skadsem reported that a step ladder and a heavy skillet had been purchased for the center and we were to get our electric coffee pot repaired or purchase a new one. The step ladder was necessary to clean our tall windows and will be handy for other chores around the place.

They reported that the first fun day had been a great success and everyone had enjoyed the afternoon very much. First, they had music — accordion, guitar and organ. Then they sang many old time songs and hymns. This was followed by playing games and the telling of Ole and Lena jokes.

New business was a discussion on the planting of our flower beds which was postponed until the month of April.

We decided we needed shelves behind Bertha Tunheim's desk and under the serving counter. We appointed Kenneth Moen, Bertha Tunheim and Art Skadsem to purchase suitable shelves or have someone make the shelves for us.

Meeting was adjourned.

Sports Boosters Drop Meetings

Members of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters club voted Thursday at its regular weekly luncheon meeting to suspend operations until further notice, dependent upon a contract settlement between the teachers and board members of School District 564.

The club, which has supplied thousands of dollars worth of support to Thief River Falls athletic programs over the years, feared the meetings, which feature coaches as the guest speakers, might produce negative responses on both sides, and they did not want to provide an open forum for either the teachers or board members to argue their negotiation points.

"We want to be neutral," explained Jim Mattson, president of the Sports Boosters. "We don't want to add fuel to the fire."

All Sports Boosters financial commitments made for the rest of the 1979-80 school year will be met by the club. However, there will be no action taken on requests made for the 1980-81 school year.

It's an unfortunate, but logical and probably proper move by the Sports Boosters whose 1979-80 membership numbered about 75.

TRF Region 8AA Sportsmanship Finalist

Winner of the first-ever Minnesota State High School League Region 8AA sportsmanship award contest a year ago, Thief River Falls is one of four finalists for the 1979-80 award, it was learned recently.

Thief River Falls, Detroit Lakes, St. Cloud Apollo and Cold Spring-Rocori were named as finalists for this year's sportsmanship award in Region 8AA, a project intended to promote a school-community good sportsmanship program.

In 1978-79 Thief River Falls earned the prized sportsmanship award while competing against Alexandria, Park Rapids, East Grand Forks, Moorhead, Detroit Lakes, Little Falls, Fergus Falls, Sauk Rapids and Brainerd. St. Cloud Apollo did not elect to compete in last year's competition and Cold Spring-Rocori did not participate in the Region 2AA sportsmanship event. Rocori was switched by the MSHSL from Region 2AA to Region 8AA for the 1979-80 school year.

Section 8 Games Draw Record Crowds

Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith, who served as tournament manager for the recently completed 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament played in the Thief River Falls sports arena, said the five-day, seven-game event was a "record-smashing success."

Played her: February 29, March 1, 3, 4, 7, the 1980 Section 8 tournament attracted 11,623 fans. Smith turned over a check for $21,011.50 to Dave Harris of Alexandria, the executive secretary-treasurer of the Region 8AA committee.

The biggest draw was the Fri., March 7, Roseau vs. East Grand Forks championship game which attracted a standing-room only crowd of 3,304 — the largest crowd ever to watch a Section 8 game. The Tues., March 4, Thief River Falls vs. Roseau semifinal game drew 2,933; the Sat., March 1, Roseau vs. Moorhead and Thief River Falls vs. Alexandria quarterfinal session drew 2,035; the Fri., Feb. 29, Crookston vs. Bemidji and East Grand Forks vs. Warroad quarterfinals drew 1,716; and the Mon., March 3, Crookston vs. East Grand Forks semifinal game drew 1,635.

Those figures represented a huge increase over the weather-plagued 1979 Section 8 tournament played at East Grand Forks that drew a total attendance of 6,797 and produced a check of $11,957.00 for the Region 8AA committee.

Host Thief River Falls naturally had the biggest advance ticket sale figures for the 1980 tournament, with 3,849 tickets being sold at the Lincoln gymnasium ticket window, Franklin middle school and through Smith's office. Roseau reported advance sale figures of 1,899 tickets; East Grand Forks 1,697; Crookston 908; Moorhead 122; Warroad 117; Alexandria 54; and Bemidji 21.

Site of the 1981 Section 8 tournament will be selected this spring. Both Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks are expected to make bids for the event, and the Region 8AA committee has requested both communities — if interested — to put together a tournament package and present their bids at a joint meeting of the Region 8A and Region 8AA committees April 23.

"We will definiately make a presentation," promised Smith.

The tournament was first held in the Thief River Falls sports arena in 1971 and stayed here until East Grand Forks hosted the games in 1976 and 1977. The tournament was returned here in 1978, went back to East Grand Forks in 1979 and returned to Thief River Falls this year.

In 1978 there were 9,275 fans attending the Section 8 tournament in the Thief River Falls sports arena, including 3,271, for the Roseau Fergus Falls championship game.

Miscellaneous

+ East Grand Forks hockey coach Tony Palmiscno told Warren Strandell of the East Grand Forks Exponent, "I was disappointed in Roseau's sportsmanship," after his Green Wave defeated the Rams 4-3 in the 1980 Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. "There wasn't a Roseau coach who wished us good luck in the state tournament," continued Palmiscno, "and we saw them a full hour after the game had ended. That upsets me."

+ Park Rapids lost two head basketball coaches following the resignations of boys coach Jim Weinzierl and girls coach Donette Swanson. Swanson cited personal reasons for her decision while Weinzierl told Mike Gravdahl of the Park Rapids Enterprise that he has high blood pressure and felt it best to resign.

+ Nancy Harris, daughter of Dr and Mrs. Robert Harris of Roseau, has been offered a golf scholarship at the University of Minnesota. "This marks the first time a gal from not only our area, but the northern part of the state has been rendered a golf scholarship (at the University of Minnesota)," wrote Bernie Burggraf in the Roseau Times-Region.

Team Falters, Individuals Shine

Record-wise it was a disaster, but individually several members of the Northland community college hockey team enjoyed a great deal of success during the 1979-80 season and in so doing attracted the attention of four-year schools in Minnesota that would like to provide them with an opportunity to continue their hockey careers.

Northland did not win a single game this winter, losing 18 straight Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) starts. But sophomores Scott Bergland, Mike Olson and Steve Geatz of Thief River Falls, along with Mark Koehn of Devils Lake, N.D., all played well enough to draw interest from college hockey coaches throughout the state, most noteably in the MIAC conference where the likes of Concordia, Augsburg and Gustavus Adolphus are looking for players.

"Although the team record was not as good as it has been, I think individually it was one of our better years," mentioned Northland coach Bob Lundbohm. "We have at least four guys who might go on to a four-year school with some financial aid help, and in the past I haven't had anyone interested in going on to another school."

Bergland, called "the best two-way player I've ever had," by Lundbohm, led the Northland this winter with an outstanding 54-point campaign that included 19 goals and 35 assists. That's the fourth highest single season scoring output in the 10-year-old history of the Northland hockey program. That list is led jointly by Lundbohm (Roseau) and Leo Marshall (Warroad) who scored 65 points apiece during the 1971-72 season. Doug Dallmann (TRF) scored 59 points a year ago.

The productive 1979-80 season also moved Bergland into fourth place on the Northland career scoring charts with 75 points. Mark Hughes (EGF) tops that list with 85 points while Marshall has 79 and Lundbohm 76.

Koehn also cracked the top ten single season scoring charts this winter with 41 points on a team-leading 21 goals and 20 assists. Koehn ranks sixth on the all-time scoring charts at the school.

Geatz finished with 35 points and Olson had 19. In Olson and freshman Howard Beito of Hallock who collected 39 points, the Northmen had two of the top defensemen in the MJCAA this winter.

The problem, however, was lack of numbers. The Northmen played with just two lines and at times went into a weekend series with just nine available skaters.

Lundbohm, who coached the Northmen for four years, announced during the season that he would step down at the end of the 1979-80 campaign and the school announced that Tom Goddard, a former Lincoln high school and University of North Dakota hockey standout, would coach the team in 1980-81.

Northland losses this winter came at the hands of Hibbing 12-7, 15-3, 15-4, 19-1; Mesabi 13-5, 13-4, 11-5, 11-5; Crookston 14-1, 10-5, 15-6, 12-2; Rainy River 16-8, 10-5, 16-9, 9-8; and Rochester 12-7, 10-9.

It was the worst finish ever for the Northmen who were 10-12 a year ago after a 3-17 performance in 1977-78.

SKI REPORT

by Dr. Hugh Patterson

We camped out one day at Ogden, Utah and two days in Salt Lake City, then it rained heavily the last two days. In the mountains it was heavy wet snow — that Sierra cement. You can ski it fine, after it is packed by snow dressing equipment.

Park West, our next destination, is an excellent ski area. They have snow making and night skiing. They have an excellent variety of runs for every skill and a potential for future expansion. Their chalet is very comfortable with an excellent cafeteria and they have a fine ski shop and ski school.

The mountains here are more rounded than those at Alta, but are still beautiful. There are five chair lifts and some of the runs are among the best in the west.

However, when you ski an area, always ask an official which runs are in good condition that day. I forgot to, and this was a mistake.

When you ski Park West, start on Tumbleweed and Arrowhead lifts, near the chalet. They are excellent beginner and intermediate areas, and they were great fun. I then took Tomahawk lift, over to the Short Swing lift area. Riccochet and Sourdough runs were perfect and I ran them several times.

I then took the Iron Horse lift up 1,800 feet of vertical elevation on Maverick ridge. The easy way down by Ambush was closed because of avalanche hazard. Maverick Ridge was the only way down with lots of that Sierra cement, and it had not been packed. I survived, but will remember next time to ask about the current conditions of the runs.

Park West is a fine place to ski. They are adding condominiums for accommodations and are close enough to use those in Salt Lake City. We enjoyed it and recommend it. Tow fees at $9 a day are reasonable.

Ducks Unlimited Is Featured Internationally

Ducks Unlimited, North America's largest waterfowl convervation organization, has announced that it will attend the executive board meeting of the International Waterfowl Research Bureau in Sapporo, Japan.

According to Ducks Unlimited executive vice president Dale E. Whitesell, DU's attendance at the February 17-23 meeting marks a special opportunity for the organization to share with countries around the world some of the waterfowl management expertise it has acquired over 43 years. "Our input to the IWRB actually began with DU's participation last year in the June meeting held in Slimbridge, England," said Whitesell. "It was then that Ducks Unlimited was named to non-governmental organization certified to represent the United Stayes at this United Nations-directed effort to develop international waterfowl programs.

"The IWRB conferences," said Whitesell, "are unique in that politics, for the most part, takes a back seat to solid scientific approaches to problems which affect the waterfowl resource worldwide. You name it, and the IWRB tackles it — from species migration distribution, to population dynamics, to international treaties, to how you can best to about dealing with large oil spills."

After 43 years, according to Whitesell, Ducks Unlimited has managed to raise over $100 million on behalf of North American waterfowl, money which has been channeled to Ducks Unlimited (Canada) who has put that money to work across critical wetland areas where 70 per cent of North America's waterfowl are produced. "During that 43 years I can say we've learned a great deal about preserving and restoring waterfowl breeding habitat," said Whitesell, "and we're delighted to be given an opportunity in Sapporo to share that expertise with countries who are just now beginning to cope seriously with threats to the resource."

Whitesell went on to stress that Ducks Unlimited's focus will continue to lie with the need to preserve critical Canadian nesting wetlands whose existence is pressured increasingly each year by agriculture and industrial development alike. "Though our fund-raising campaign goal across the U.S. this year stands at more than $24 million earmarked for wetland preservation to the north," said Whitesell, "We would indeed ~~be fo~~olish not to address some of the problems to be discussed in Sapporo which affect the very North American waterfowl resource Ducks Unlimited has sought to preserve since the Dust Bowl 1930's."

Minnesota To Receive Fish Program Funds

Minnesota will receive $87,600 in federal aid funds during 1980 to improve populations of anadromous fish, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

Anadromous fish are those species which spend part of their lives in the ocean or freshwater lakes but return to coastal streams for spawning.

Several species which years ago utilized the oceans and freshwater tributary streams have been introduced into the Great Lakes and adapted to a total freshwater environment.

Included among these species are the coho and chinook salmon and the steelhead.

Although past emphasis has been placed on production and stocking of fish, there will be increasing attention to habitat programs in the Great Lakes area during the coming years, said officials.

The anadromous fish program is credited with rejuvenating sport fishing in the Great Lakes.

Mike Eruzione Gives Stick To Hall Of Fame

Olympic gold medal winner Mike Eruzione, captain of the U.S. Olympic hockey team, presented to the United States hockey hall of fame, located in Eveleth, the hockey stick with which he scored the winning goal in the U.S.—Soviet Union game reported executive director Roger Godin.

The 25-year-old Winthrop, Massachusetts native made the presentation at an informal gathering in Lake Placid, following the medals presentation. Eruzione, son of a Massachusetts maintenance man, played hockey while attending Boston University. After graduation in 1977, the physical education major spent two years playing in the International League for Toledo. In 1978 he was named "American Rookie of the year" when he scored 30 goals and 56 assists.

Warren Beats MCC 47-27 In Region 8A Title Game

Unbeaten Warren collected a pair of easy wins over Fertile-Beltrami and Marshall County Central to win its first ever Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament title last week in the Crookston Central high school gym.

The Ponies will carry a perfect 20-0 record into this week's 1980 Class A state high school basketball tournament, scheduled to start Thursday at the St. Paul Civic Center and Met Sports Center in Bloomington.

Region 8A tournament play opened Thursday with District 32 champion Marshall County Central beating District 29 winner Cass Lake 45-36 and Warren of District 31 knocking off District 30 representative Fertile-Beltrami 46-33.

Warren handled Marshall County Central 47-27 in Friday's championship game. Fertile-Beltrami, the three-time defending Region 8A champion, came back to beat Cass Lake 64-49 in Friday's consolation game.

The Ponies will face Region 1A winner Austin Pacelli Thursday at 7:20 p.m. in opening round Class A state tournament action in the St. Paul Civic Center. Class A semifinals and finals will be played Friday and Saturday at the Met Sports Center in Bloomington.

MCC 45
Cass Lake 36

Exceptional performances by guards Sue Olson and Jill Johnson and a torrid shooting performance in the third quarter carried Marshall County Central to a 45-36 tournament-opening win over Cass Lake Thursday.

Olson, a 5-6 freshmen, and Johnson, a 5-5 sophomore, combined for 31 points and showed poise that belied their youth as Olson got the Nordics going at the start by scoring 13 points in the first half and finished with 17 while Johnson did her damage with 10 points in the second half and finished with 14.

And that's the kind of play the Nordics needed to compensate for the absence of center Rosalyn Knutson, one of the team's leading scorers and the only senior in the starting line-up, who was not dressed because of a rules infraction.

"We had four people who could score for us all year," explained Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "We still had three left, and the others picked up the slack."

Olson was the first to strike as she wiped out an early 4-2 Cass Lake lead by scoring seven straight points in 78 seconds midway through the first quarter.

But Cass Lake held a 10-9 edge when the first quarter ended as sophomore forward Kris Borchardt pulled down a defensive rebound and dribbled the length of the court to score with six second left.

The lead changed hands five times in the second quarter before Olson scored twice in the final minute to give the Nordics a 19-16 advantage at intermission. She scored on a fast break lay-up with 58 seconds to go and as an afterthought when everybody else was covered, she dropped a 12-foot set shot with seven seconds showing on the clock.

Marshall County Central took control of things in the third quarter when the suddenly hot-shooting Nordics hit their first five shots and made eight of 11 during the period for a 73 per cent shooting figure and a 35-26 lead heading into the final eight minutes.

A drive by Johnson with 4:21 remaining had Marshall County Central up 43-29 and the Nordics were in no hurry to shoot during the final 3½ minutes.

"We played excellent defense underneath the basket," noted Mjelde who watched the Nordics build a 27-19 rebound edge as they forced the Panthers to shoot from the outside. "We got the lead in the first quarter and stood around on offense. But other than that, I thought we played a really good game."

Marshall County Central finished with an even 50 per cent shooting figure from the field by hitting 22 of 44 shots. Cass Lake shot 33 per cent on a 16-for-48 showing. Free throws weren't a factor in this one as the Nordics went 1-for-2 at the line and the Panthers were 4-for-11. The winners topped the turnover charts 19-13.

Fertile-Beltrami . . . 33

Three-year Region 8A championship reign by Fertile-Beltrami was over after eight minutes of basketball Thursday when Warren doubled the error-plagued Falcons 14-7 in the first quarter en route to a surprisingly easy 46-33 win.

The Fertile-Beltrami point total was nearly eclipsed by the Falcons' turnover figures as they lost the ball 27 times. They fell behind 6-1 at the start and were never in it.

The Ponies' 6-0 center Kim Brekke had a field day underneath with a steady diet of lob passes from teammates that produced 14 first half points and a 27-11 Warren cushion. She finished with 20 points as the Ponies made it 36-22 in the third quarter and pushed the difference to 42-24 midway through the final period before they quit looking for shots.

With Brekke's high-percentage shots underneath, Warren finished 20-for-38 and 53 per cent from the field. Fertile-Beltrami was 14-for-41 for 34 per cent. The Ponies were 5-for-11 at the free throw line where the Falcons were 6-for-15. The Falcons' 25-17 rebounding edge was list in the turnover department. The Ponies turned the ball over 15 times.

Warren had too many guns for Marshall County Central to handle in Friday's championship game and the Ponies shot down the Nordics' championship dreams 47-27.

"I knew we couldn't stop everything," explained Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, "so we concentrated on stopping their inside game. We did that, but then they hit from the outside."

The Nordics' defense held Warren center Kim Brekke to 13 points and effectively shut off the Ponies' strong inside game. But that left room for forwards Jodi and Jill Carlson and the 5-10 twin sisters combined for 21 points as Jill scored 11 and Jodi got 10. No Marshall County Central scorer reached double figures.

Warren decided the issue early with a 13-6 first quarter lead. The Ponies carried a 24-10 cushion into intermission and led it 32-15 at the end of the third quarter.

"The game got away from us in the first quarter," admitted Mjelde.

Warren shot 46 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 19 of 41 attempts. Marshall County Central shot just 27 per cent, hitting only 10 of 36 shots. The Ponies were 9-for-18 at the free throw line where the Nordics were 7-for-12.

"They (Warren) played well," mentioned Mjelde. "They played like champions. I thought we played as well as we could have."

Marshall County Central finished the year with a 17-3 won-lost record.

History tells us the raccoon was the emblem of the Whig party in the United States from 1838 to 1844. Members of that political party were popularly called 'coons'.

The correct classification of raccoons as noted in the World Book Encyclopedia, says "Raccoons make up the family of Procyonidae. The common raccoon is Procyon, the Agouara is P. Concrivorus."

Many years ago Sterling North drew our attention with his article about the racoon family. Later his story became a Disney movie, "Rascal". He also wrote "Raccoons Are the Brightest People."

Raccoon are much alike in appearance. The fur is long and course, grayish with black tips. The under fur is a light brown. Black rings circle the bushy gray tail. Raccoons usually are about 32 inches in length and weigh approximately 25 pounds. Their foxlike faces are sharp and attentive with piercing, beady jet black eyes. A black patch covers each eye much like a mask, with a ring of white hair around it. Thus he appears cunning and mischievous — as he truly is.

Raccoons have from three to six young at a time in early April or May. They are blind at birth and helpless. The parents care for them until early winter. Coons will dine on anything and everything in sight. They enjoy crayfish, frogs, turtles and corn on the cob. A variety of foods they especially seek would be small water animals and fish, wild berries and fruits. They all love to climb trees and can swing branch to branch with their powerful legs and sharp claws.

Raccoons sing while at work or play. When preparing for their frequent naps, they nestle against their parents, and in varying tempo and sounds, purr themselves to sleep, the sounds resembling the purring of a domesticated house-cats.

After acquiring the raccoon for a house pet, it should receive the same attention as any house pet, with one exception . . . this is a wild housepet, thus requiring closer attention. Visits to your veterinarian are a must, shots and all. Coons should never be tied outdoors without close supervision, as dogs will destroy it. It cannot be allowed its freedom inside or outside. It will totally wreck a home's furniture, drapes, etc. Raccoons are not really 'trainable' by non-professionals. They also have very nasty, quick tempers. Flattening themselves out like a rug, they throw themselves through the air at their quarry and rip and tear using their sharp pointed teeth and long claws. They may also bite unintentionally while in joyful play.

Experts have advised us that coons who have been taken from their parents cannot be returned to their natural habitat as they no longer know how to hunt for food or to adequately protect themselves from other wild animals. Raccoons, once domesticated, cannot be returned to the woods. . . It would be certain death.

However, if you have taken a raccoon as a pet and then discover it isn't working out, please take it to a professionally managed animal park or zoo, or call the local DNR for advice as to its future.

We had a pet raccoon years ago which had to be removed from our home since it became a real problem to our life-style. We took it to Bob and Darlene Wallick's animal park in Park Rapids where "Henry" lived out the remainder of his life with other raccoons, surrounded in a beautifully well maintained animal environment where he lived protected, well fed and sheltered.

DNR Notes Rough Fish Spearing Rule

Department of Natural Resources reminded sportsmen this week that it is illegal to have possession of a fish spear near any waters of the state between Feb. 16 and April 30.

Purpose of the regulation is to prevent the unlawful spearing of game fish during the spring spawning season. During the spring the fish move into shallow water and into streams where they are vulnerable to spearing activity.

After April 30, resident Minnesota fishermen may spear rough fish — as defined on page 14 of the 1980 fishing regulations. Enforcement officials called attention to the face that there is a limit on the number of suckers, redhorse and bullheads, as spelled out in the regulations.

The hearing will be continued if necessary, at a time and place to be determined by the Hearing Examiner during the hearing.

At the hearing the Agency will, through written or oral testimony, or both, and the introduction of exhibits, explain the proposed amendments (when used in this Notice the term "proposed amendments" refers to both the above-captioned proposed amendments and proposed repeal) and the Agency's reasons for proposing the amendments. After the Agency has introduced its exhibits in support of the proposed amendments and all the witnesses for the Agency have presented their oral or written comments, interested persons will be given an opportunity to ask questions of the Agency. Questioners will be asked to identify the issues and the facts that are of concern. All interested or affected persons will be given an opportunity to participate and to make oral presentations or submit written comments. In addition, written materials may be submitted by mail to Mr. Allan Klein, Hearing Examiner, Office of Hearing Examiners, 1745 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55104, (612) 296-8104, at any time before the record closes. The record will remain open for five working days after the actual hearing ends, or for a longer period not to exceed twenty calendar days if ordered by the Hearing Examiner.

In the interests of economy and efficiency and helpfulness, the Agency hereby requests that any person who has any objection to any part of the proposed amendments submit a statement of such objection to the Agency (Attention Mr. John McGuire) and to the Hearing Examiner as soon as possible and prior to March 31, 1980. Such statement should

(1) state concisely and with particularity each portion of the proposed amendments to which objection is taken.

(2) state the basis for such objection, and

(3) state the objector's proposed modification, the reason such modification is sought, and the scientific or other basis for the proposed modification.

To the extent possible, the Agency will respond at the hearing to each such objection to the proposed amendments. Failure to submit such objections will not prohibit any person from submitting written or oral statements or comments.

PLEASE BE ADVISED THAT THE PROPOSED AMENDMENTS ARE SUBJECT TO CHANGE AS A RESULT OF THE RULE HEARING PROCESS.

For example, changes may be made in specific proposed water quality standards or in methods of sampling and determining compliance. Any changes made could make the rules more stringent or less stringent. The Agency urges those who are interested to any extent in the substance of the proposed amendments, including those who support the amendments as proposed, to participate in the rule hearing process.

Notice is hereby given that 25 days prior to the hearing, a Statement of Need and Reasonableness will be available for review at the Agency and at the Office of Hearing Examiners. This Statement of Need and Reasonableness will include a summary of all of the evidence which will be presented by the Agency at the hearing justifying both the need for and the reasonableness of the proposed amendments. Copies of the Statement of Need and Reasonableness may be obtained from the Office of Hearing Examiners at a minimal charge.

The Statement of Need and Reasonableness will summarize the Agency's reasons for the proposed amendments, identify manuals and reports and other documents relied upon by the Agency, and list those persons, including experts, who will present written or oral comments and information at the hearing on behalf of the Agency. In addition to the Office of Hearing Examiners, copies of the Statement of Need and Reasonableness are available from Mr. McGuire.

Copies of the proposed amendments are now available and one free copy may be obtained by contacting Mr. John McGuire, Division of Water Quality, 1935 West County Road B-2 Rooseville, Minnesota 55113 (Phone (612) 296-7242). Additional copies will be available at the hearing at each location.

The Agency has proposed amendments to the following water quality rules:

a. WPC 14 Criteria for the Classification of the Intrastate Waters of the State and the Establishment of Standards of Quality and Purity

b. WPC 15 Criteria for the Classification of the Interstate Waters of the State and the Establishment of Standards of Quality and Purity

c. WPC 24 Classifications of Intrastate Waters of Minnesota

d. WPC 25 Classifications of Interstate Waters of Minnesota

The proposed amendments to Minn. Rules WPC 14 and 15, if adopted, would:

(1) modify the water quality standards for fecal coliform organisms and ammonia;

(2) modify and clarify the water quality standards for dissolved oxygen;

(3) add water quality standards for chlorine;

(4) modify the effluent limitation for fecal coliform organisms and total suspended solids;

(5) establish a new class of waters to be known as limited resource value waters and establish water quality standards and effluent limitations for such waters;

(6) eliminate the common level of treatment requirement of (c) (10) in WPC 14 and 15 which applied for all dischargers in the same reach; and

(7) amend other provisions of the rules for purposes of clarification, consistency and administration, and to conform the rules to the most recent available scientific information.

The proposed amendments to Minn. Rules WPC 24 and 25 would add a class of limited resource value waters and provide a list of waters so classified. In addition, proposed amendments to Minn. Rule WPC 25 would change the designated classification of certain portions of the Minnesota River and the Mississippi River.

Finally, the Agency is proposing to repeal the following rules:

a. WPC 2 Classification and Standards for the Mississippi River and Tributaries from the Upper Lock and Dam at St. Anthony Falls to the Outfall of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Sanitary District Sewage Treatment Plant.

b. WPC 3 Classification and Standards for the Mississippi River and Tributaries from the Outfall of the Minneapolis-St. Paul Sanitary District Sewage Treatment Plant to Lock and Dam No. 2 near Hastings.

c. WPC 5 Classification and Standards for the Minnesota River and Tributary Waters from Carver Rapids to the Outlet of Reilly Creek and Grass Lake, Below Shakopee, zone 26-22.4.

d. WPC 6 Classification and Standards for the Minnesota River and Tributary Waters from the Outlet of Reilly (Turrell) Creek and Grass Lake Below Shakopee to the Junction with the Mississippi River at Fort Snelling, Zone 22.4-0.

e. WPC 7 Classification and Standards for Reilly (Terrell) Creek, Bluff Creek, the Chaska Creeks, Spring Creek, Carver Creek and Sand Creek and Tributary Waters.

f. WPC 8 Classification and Standards for Eagle Creek and Purgatory Creek and Tributary Waters.

g. WPC 9 Classification and Standards for Nine Mile Creek and the Credit River and Tributary Waters.

h. WPC 10 Classification and Establishment of Standards of Water Quality and Purity for the Red River of the North, the Otter Tail River from Fergus Falls to the Mouth, and the Red Lake River from Crookston to the Mouth.

These proposed amendments would require the Metropolitan Waste Control Commission, which services over 80 metro area communities, and most of the over 200 outstate communities to incur additional capital expenditures and operating and maintenance expenses to meet the new standards in the operation of their sewage treatment plants. The impact on each community will have to be determined individually, and some communities will actually realize a savings, but the Agency estimates that the total cost to all local public bodies in the state to implement the proposed amendments will be approximately 150 million dollars. These expenses will be incurred in a period extending as long as ten years after the amendments are adopted and no major expenses are likely within the first couple of years after adoption. Under present law 90 per cent or more of the capital expenditures will be eligible for state and federal funding.

The Agency's authority to promulgate the proposed amendments is contained in Minn. Stat. §115.03 and §115.44 (1978).

Notice: Any person may request notification of the date on which the Hearing Examiner's Report will be available, after which date the Agency may not take any final action on the rules for a period of five working days. Any person may request notification of the date on which the hearing record has been submitted (or resubmitted) to the Attorney General by the Agency. If you desire to be so notified, you may so indicate at the hearing. After the hearing, you may request notification by sending a written request to the Hearing Examiner (in the case of the Hearing Examiner's Report), or to the Agency (in the case of the Agency's submission or resubmission to the Attorney General).

CETA Offers New On-the-Job Training Plan

Department of economic security C.E.T.A centers in Thief River Falls and Crookston announce several new training programs which benefit employers in the private sector.

On-the-job training (O.J.T.) program reimburses the employer 50 per cent of the hourly wage for the training period for hiring eligible employees. Training period is determined by the employee's needs and the complexity of the position. Employers are being compensated for the employee's non-productive time and the costs incurred during the training of the new employee.

"This is an excellent opportunity for the employer to fill a job with a good worker, train the person into the job in his own way and incur very little expense in doing so," stated Roger Wittenberg, Region I CETA supervisor.

The Upgrade program available from the department of economic security enables employers to give their eligible employees training to qualify them for a promotion within the company. These costs can be reimbursed by CETA for classroom training and wages while the employee is on the job.

A retraining program is also available for persons who have recently been laid-off from a job. Retraining provides an opportunity for a person to receive training for a different field that may have a more secure future. CETA could help this person with classroom training costs, on-the-job training or both.

CETA's new variable ratio on-the-job training program is part of the private sector initiative program and can reimburse employers for hiring eligible participants up to 75 per cent of the beginning hourly wage. Total reimbursement is not to exceed 50 per cent for the entire contract. Variable ratio O.J.T. enables an employer to be reimbursed for more of the cost of training while the employee is the least productive.

In addition to these programs, employers who hire targeted employees may qualify for a tax credit of up to 50 per cent of the employee's first year's wage (not to exceed $6,000). This allows the employer to save up to $2,580 during the first year of employing a new worker and training him or her for permanent employment.

Any employers interested in assistance with any of these programs should contact the Department of Economic security C.E.T.A. center located at 1904 East Greenwood drive in Thief River Falls, telephone 681-7350.

Food Policies Topic Of UND Workshop Fri.

Interaction of food policies, cultural change and foreign policies will be examined at a workshop to be held Friday, March 21, in Grand Forks by the University of North Dakota.

Program will be held at the Town House Motor Inn, and will begin with registration at 8 a.m.

"North Dakota is the most agricultural state in the nation, and thus is affected significantly by changes in internal agricultural policies and the food needs of foreign countries," noted Dr. William Dando, head of the UND geography department and coordinator of the workshop.

This workshop is designed to help its participants better understand the impact of these changes to foreign policies and the reactions of the United States to these policies. A special section for teachers will focus on instructional techniques that relate to this symposium.

A keynote address will be given at a noon luncheon by Amin El Gammasy, minister of agricultural affairs for the embassy of Egypt. Other featured speakers are Dr. C. F. Gritzner of South Dakota state university, executive director of the national council of geographical education; and Georg Borgstrom of the department of geography and department of food science and human nutrition, Michigan state university.

Program is sponsored by the association of North Dakota geographers, the UND geography department, and the UND division of continuing education and is supported by a grant from the U.S. department of health, education and welfare.

Registration fee is $5. More information is available by contacting Dawn Wagner at the UND division of continuing education, phone (701) 777-2661.

Schedule For Project 20 Is Announced

State patrol and 29 Minnesota counties participated in "Project 55" during fiscal 1979, according to Commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Project 55 is a federally supported phase of the effort to get compliance with the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit in counties. State patrol is conducting Project 20 for 28 months, named for the number of troopers who are in the project.

Counties which cooperated with Project 55 received from $348 (Clearwater) to $22,594 (St. Louis). Funding of more than $150,000 was in addition to the $1.2 million which the state patrol received for its project.

Each county recorded the number of hours worked on enforcement of the 55 limit and total miles traveled.

In Freeborn county the 1978 program resulted in 439 arrests and generated more than $12,000 in bail money. Freeborn received $7,500 in 1979 funding which it used to pay deputies and patrol three designated roads from May 1 through the end of September.

According to the patrol, more than 35 counties have expressed an interest in the 1980 version of Project 55.

Participating counties in 1979 were Anoka, Beltrami, Carver, Cass, Clay, Clearwater, Crow Wing, Freeborn, Hubbard, Isanti, Koochiching, Le Sueur, Lincoln, Martin, Morrison, Olmsted, Ottertail, Pennington, Pine, Rice, St. Louis, Scott, Sherburne, Stearns, Wabasha, Wadena, Washington and Wright.

Meanwhile Project 20 the state patrol saturation speed limit enforcement project, is continuing. Starting March 10 two squads headed by Sgt. Millard Helgeson and Sgt. Larry Klukow will cover different areas each week. Until now the effort has been conducted by one 10-man squad.

In this area the patrol squad will operate on highway 75 from Moorhead to Stephen on May 21-28 and highway 2 from East Grand Forks to Cass Lake September 10-17.

Grain Haulers Want 40-Ton Highway Loads

A group of grain haulers from northern Minnesota met Tuesday in Red Lake Falls to explore the possibilities of organizing an official association of grain transporters to represent grain haulers from northwest Minnesota and northeast North Dakota.

The immediate objectives of the group are (1) to work toward keeping highway 2 from North Dakota to the port terminals in Duluth at 80,000 pounds gross vehicle weight, and (2) to work toward leaving the 80,000 pound load limit on main arteries leading to highway 2.

Grain haulers suggest following the same procedures used in North Dakota and South Dakota, which allow 80,000 pound load limits, but at reduced speeds in critical areas during this emergency, stated H. G. Almen of St. Hilaire, spokesman for the group.

Almen further asserted that spring grain movement this year is critical, because start-up money is scarce this year as a result of delayed shipments during the grain millers' strike last summer. The present situation now effects the well-being, not only of farmers and transporters, but everyone in the area.

Immediate need is to move as much grain as possible, as fast as possible, and proposed load limits of less than 80,000 pounds would, in this emergency, hamper the rapid movement of grain, Almen said.

A longer range objective of the group is to work to establish a smooth flow of grain to the terminal ports on a year around basis, Almen added.

U.S. Military Academy Meet Here Sunday

U.S. military academy of West Point, N.Y., will conduct an admissions conference for area high school juniors and their parents at Thief River Falls on Sunday, March 23, at 2 p.m. at the Best Western Inn.

Nichols emphasized that all area students are welcome to attend the conference.

Land O' Lakes Chairman Talks On Ag Changes

Addressing the 59th annual meeting of Land O'Lakes, Inc., Claire Sandness, chairman of the board, said the very structure of agriculture is likely to undergo vast changes in the '80s.

Sandness, a North Dakota dairy and grain farmer, cited as signs of the changing structure the crisis in rural transportation, financial barriers to entering farming, land ownership and control and preservation of the family farm.

"We wonder," the Land O'Lakes chairman said, "where or how we strike a balance between production efficiency brought on by fewer and larger farms and the need to preserve family-type farming and rural communities."

Sandness' remarks were delivered to an audience of more than 3,000 upper midwest farmer-owners and managers of member cooperatives attending the opening session of the Land O'Lakes annual meeting at the Radisson hotel in Minneapolis.

To meet the challenges of agriculture's changing structure, the Land O'Lakes board chairman called on cooperatives to join together for their mutual benefit — "perhaps their very survival," as he put it.

He said the strengths of one cooperative — the ability to market products, as an example — complement the strengths of another cooperative, such as product procurement or processing.

"Providing the combined membership with a total cooperative service package," Sandness said, "will keep agriculture in the hands of family farmers and not under the control of big government, big business, or both."

"What about Land O'Lakes?" the chairman asked rhetorically. "What's down the road for us as owners of the cooperative?"

He proceeded to list some of the cooperative's concerns in the '80s.

"Our members in the future," Sandness said, "may be asked to commit additional investments to Land O'Lakes as a source of capital for essential new services."

"Improving our marketing position," he explained to the membership, "is another concern we must deal with. In the final analysis, it is the food buyer who determines our success or failure as marketers of the products we produce on our farms. We cannot make the market; consumer demand does that."

Better research, long range planning, and improved communication with farmer-members were other areas cited by the Land O'Lakes chairman as important parts of the total cooperative service package.

Chairman briefed the Land O'Lakes membership on the construction progress of the cooperative's new suburban Twin Cities general office headquarters. Calling it a "people plant" to alleviate present overcrowded office conditions, Sandness noted that ground for the office was broken last May and that the building should be ready for occupancy in early 1981.

A farmer for more than 30 years, Sandness has served on the Land O'Lakes board of directors since 1969. He was elected at the close of the cooperative's annual meeting three years ago. Sandness also is a member of the North Dakota state senate.

Todd Blado To Coordinate CF Bike-A-Thon

Todd Blado has volunteered to coordinate local volunteers in organizing a bike-a-thon to be held in May in Thief River Falls, according to Ron Swain, president of the Minnesota chapter of the cystic fibrosis foundation.

Cystic Fibrosis (CF), the most serious lung-damaging disease, is incurable. One in every 1,600 American children inherits this disease when he or she receives a gene for CF from each of the parents. It is estimated that 10 million Americans are symptomless and unknowing carriers of the gene which can cause CF in their child. Through research funded by the cystic fibrosis foundation, a test to identify carriers is being sought and scientists are pursuing a cure to control for cystic fibrosis.

The bike-a-thon will help support these research programs and medical care to lengthen the lives of all lung-damaged children through over 120 cystic fibrosis centers in the United States. These CF centers specialize in the diagnosis and care of children with cystic fibrosis.

Citizens of Thief River Falls wishing to volunteer to help with the bike-a-thon can call the Minnesota chapter of the cystic fibrosis foundation at (612) 871-0462.

County DFL Holds Convention Sunday

Pennington county Democratic Farmer-Labor convention held Sunday in Thief River Falls resulted in consideration of 61 resolutions, election of delegates and alternates to the Seventh district and state conventions and election of county officers. Candidates for political office also spoke to the convention at which 116 delegates were seated.

Fran Stromberg and John Steidl were reelected chairman and associate chairman of the county organization. Helen Chervestad was elected treasurer and Betty Roadfeldt was named secretary. Directors, who with the officers comprise the county executive committee, were elected as follows: Cornelius Appleman, Charles Kotaska, June Scholin, Neal McEwen, Darwin Boutlette, Colleen Holen, Howard Hanson, Henry Panok, Sherry Solheim, Beatrice Kruse and Ruth Oen.

Stromberg and Steidl were elected state central committee delegates with Allen Nichols and Lova Kraemer as alternates.

Elected as delegates to the district and state conventions were all from the Carter-Mondale caucuses with subheadings of farmer-labor, pro-life and pro-choice, Mrs. Stromberg said.

Delegates include Stromberg, Nichols, Steidl, Jackie Schietz, Kris Kremer and Bonnie Folkedahl. Alternates elected were Helen Chervestad, Darwin Boutlette, Maurice Brule, Jeff Oseid, Jeff Gobell and Paul Hartley. District convention will be held April 19 and 20 in Brainerd and the state convention June 6-8 in Minneapolis.

Rep. John Corbid addressed the convention on issues now pending in the state legislature, urged support for the candidacy of Gene Wenstrom for Seventh District congressman and stressed the importance of party unity.

Rep. Corbid has announced he will not seek reelection. Candidates who are seeking DFL endorsement for the legislative office being vacated by Rep. Corbid, Jim Kremer of Thief River Falls and LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, spoke to the convention delegates. Also speaking was Sen. Marv Hanson of Hallock who is seeking reelection this fall.

Endorsing convention for District I, which includes one senator for District I and representatives from District 1A and 1B, will be held Friday, March 28, in Greenbush. The endorsement process determines who will be officially approved as the party's candidates and therefore receives the county units' full support.

Allen Nichols was elected to serve as convention chairman with Elaine Borsheim appointed convention secretary. Affirmative action report was given by Libby Jones, county affirmative action officer. Fran Stromberg called the convention to order to get the proceedings underway.

The 61 resolutions considered came under the general categories of natural resources and energy, world affairs, civil and human rights, party affairs, economy and tax policy, agriculture, transportation, governmental operation, labor and employment, education, environment and quality of life.

Among the resolutions adopted were those in support of the equal rights amendment, raising the legal drinking age from 19 to 21 and greater expansion of state funding for drug and alcohol education.

Another resolution adopted opposed future federal gun control and recommendations were made for a congressional act to keep Great Lakes ports open year around.

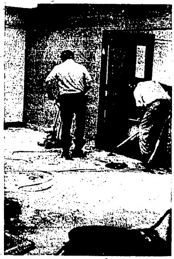
To Vacate Classrooms In Old Lincoln Tuesday

Second Title I Meeting Set Here March 24

Second meeting of the district elementary and secondary parent advisory committee for Title I is scheduled Monday, March 24 at the Franklin middle school library beginning at 7 p.m. Meeting is open to the public, and everyone is strongly encouraged to attend.

General business will include calling the meeting to order by Gordon Peterson, chairman, who will also discuss the Title I meeting he attended; reading of minutes of the last meeting by the secretary; and Walt Redinger will review the present Title I program and discuss plans for next year.



REMOVAL OF CARPET which had been placed in the practical nursing department of the vocational section at Lincoln high school was required by the state fire marshal's office before the space can be utilized by Lincoln classes. Removal of the rubber-backed carpet, which had been secured to the tile floor by adhesive, required gallons of ammonia and hours of man and equipment time. Ted Hellie's English classes will move into this room Tuesday.

Vacating the top floor of the Old Lincoln building in the Lincoln high school complex will be effected next week when about 35 classes affecting approximately 875 students will be moved to new locations. The second floor of the building constructed in 1910 is being vacated in order of the school board and the state fire marshal's office.

Pat Barry, deputy state fire marshal stationed in Thief River Falls, said he issued an order to enclose stairways in the building in 1978 and that the school district requested an extension of that order. The extension was granted, he said, but no further action by the district has been taken.

Barry said he conducted an inspection of the building with two members of the fire code advisory panel of the state fire marshal's office several weeks ago and they found the building to be in bad condition from a fire hazard standpoint.

Another request for extension of the order to bring the building into compliance with fire code provisions has been made by the district and the advisory panel will consider it at its next meeting. Barry said the six-member panel includes people from within the state fire marshal's office and that it will likely be assembled to meet within the next two weeks. At that meeting a decision will be made to allow or reject the request for extension.

Should the panel determine that the building not be used for classes, the result will be an action to close it, Barry said.

Principal Frank Hamerlinck at Lincoln said the second floor will be vacated Tuesday when classes resume following an in-service day in the local school district, Monday. Faculty members will meet Monday for inservice training but

Jane Mackenroth Chosen '80 Young Career Woman

CLUTCHING THE NECKLACE she received from the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's chapter after being voted 1980 young career woman Monday evening is Jane Marie Mackenroth, manager of the Rex cafe in Thief River Falls. Jane will now attend the district competition April 12 at Walker.

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

The judges stepped forward, their decision final, and everyone waited in anticipation to hear the final result.

Vicky Erickson — president of the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's chapter — rose, unsealed the white envelope, and announced, "1980 Young Career woman is Jane Mackenroth," as excitement and applause filled the air.

Jane Marie Mackenroth, who is presently manager of the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls, was chosen among six local candidates for the 1980 young career woman Monday evening. Contestants were judged on group interaction with other participants, a personal interview with a panel of three judges and a short speech on "A New Decade for Business and Professional Women."

And now, the new decade has arrived for Jane, who is involved with a number of activities in her job, including hiring employees, managing accounts payable and receivable, and taking care of the payroll, along with other office duties for the cafe.

"My hours (at work) vary," she said. "I usually spend eight hours a day at work and I'm on call from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m."

A very competent working staff at the Rex has enabled Jane to have more time to herself, she said. She does not work nearly as many hours as she did when she first began work.

"My workers are good to me," she said. "I hope I'm good to them."

Jane is a 1967 Lincoln high school graduate and a graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI where she obtained a degree in business. It was during her schooling at the AVTI that she began a life of traveling and of experiencing various job positions.

"Two special agents from Grand Forks came to the school (AVTI) to recruit people for jobs with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D.C.," she said. "A friend next to me said we should try it. I wasn't doing anything at that time and just decided to go at the spur of the moment."

Preparation for the job included filling out applications, and a screening process performed by various representatives before applicants could be placed at particular job sites in Washington, D.C.

Farm-City Week Continues With More Events

More than 200 people have registered in advance for the program on "Farming With Inflation" conducted today at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls as part of Farm-City week here, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director.

Sponsoring lenders participating in the program held from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. are the Northern and First Northwestern state banks of Thief River Falls and the Production Credit association office here.

Earlier events of the week — a program on "Landscaping for Energy Conservation" Monday evening at the public library and a meeting for sheep producers Tuesday evening at the courthouse meeting room — had much smaller attendance.

Highlight of tomorrow's activities will be farm tours beginning at 12:30 p.m. when buses will leave the chamber of commerce. Farms visited will be a grain farm operated by the Mehrkens family southwest of Thief River Falls and a dairy farm operated by the Martin Hansons northeast of the city.

Businessmen are particularly encouraged to make one of the tours. A light lunch will be available for $1 at the chamber of commerce office from 11:30 a.m. until the buses leave.

On Friday county extension agent Deb Matero will conduct a program on "Energy As It Relates to the Home and Family" at 1:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room. The information to be presented deals with methods of conserving energy in the home and other energy-saving techniques and is expected to be primarily of interest to women.

Monday from 1 to 4 p.m. the USDA offices located in Thief River Falls will sponsor an open house at the public library meeting room. Members of the public attending the open house will be given an opportunity to comment on the resources conservation act.

Concluding event of the Farm-City week observance will be the annual farmer-merchant mixer Monday evening at the American Legion club rooms. Evening meal will be served at 6:30 p.m. and more than 700 people are again expected to be in attendance. All area farmers are invited to attend as guests of Thief River Falls business and professional people.

Farm-City week is under the general sponsorship of the agribusiness committee of the chamber of commerce with Dwight Tangquist as chairman.

Sheila Grace Bowe And Jerry K. Hietala Wed

Miss Sheila Grace Bowe and Jerry Keith Hietala, both of this city, exchanged marriage vows on Sunday, March 2, at 2:00 p.m., at the private wedding ceremony at Our Savior's Lutheran church at Kelliher.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lois Bowe of Kelliher and the late Lester Bowe. Parents of the groom are Yvonne Gilbert of St. Hilaire and Robert Hietala of Kansas.

Rev. A.T. Daniels officiated at the single ring ceremony. At the piano was the bride's sister, Caroline Bowe. She played the traditional wedding marches for the processional and recessional. During the ceremony, Judy, Caroline and Corrine Bowe, sisters of the bride, and Rene Bowe, a sister-in-law of the bride, sang "For Baby, For Bobby" and "Follow Me."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her mother and brother, Tony Bowe. For her wedding, she wore a gown of cream colored qiana, styled with a draped V-neckline featuring a matching lace insert. The double-tiered skirt, gathered at the waistline, was fashioned with a petal hemline. She carried a cresent bouquet of orange carnations, bittersweet phlox and greenery. In her hair, she wore a cluster of single phlox and baby's breath. For sentiment, she wore an heirloom pearl necklace, handed down from her great-great-aunt Clara Quisberg.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Rene Bowe of Kelliher, sister-in-law of the bride. She wore a magenta polyester knit dress featuring a white, button-down front-yoke with a stand-up collar. Her corsage was composed of three cream-colored carnations.

Michael Bowe of Kelliher, a brother of the bride, was best man. Like the groom, he wore a light brown suit accented by an off-white carnation boutonniere. The groom's boutonniere was an orange carnation, taken from the bride's bouquet.

The mother of the bride wore a long-sleeved dress of a polyester floral print in blue and brown. Her corsage was of white carnations with orange ribbon. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in a two-piece navy blue ensemble, complemented by a white knit top.

Honor guests at the wedding were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Bowe and her godmother, Louise Hoyum, both of Kelliher.

Following the ceremony, the bride's mother hosted a wedding dinner at the Tap-A-Keg steak house at Kelliher. Centering the dinner table was a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with orange roses and topped with a wedding bell ornament, backed by a filigreed heart with tulle accents. The cake was cut and served by the bride's godmother. Caroline Bowe, sister of the bride, presided at the punch table.

A reception will be held at a later date.

Following a wedding trip to Bemidji, the couple is now at home in Thief River Falls at 101 South State. The bride is a graduate of Kelliher high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI school of cosmetology. She is currently employed at The Times. The groom attended Denfeld high school, Duluth, and has completed a three year tour of duty with the U.S. Marines. Photo, David Bergstrom, Kelliher

Mackenroth Is 1980 Young Career Woman

"I loved the job because I got to work with people from all over the country," Jane said, smiling. "That was the most interesting part of all. Everyone was considered an individual. It was nice being in such a large city after coming from a small town."

Jane was employed by the FBI from March of 1968 to June of 1969, she said, and during that time she became engaged. Coming back to Thief River Falls to spend Christmas with her fiance', Jane became employed at Larson Music company where she maintained lists of records and tapes and was in charge of ordering and selling equipment, musical instruments, car tapes, and speakers. During this time preparation also began for her wedding.

Following this period, she accompanied her husband to California where he was stationed in the Navy. Here she became employed in the accounting department at the General Telephone compnay in Long Beach.

When her husband finished with Naval duties, the couple moved to South St. Paul where Jane became employed at Northwest Plastics, Inc. and began work in the sales department working her way up to a secretarial position for the engineer of the company. Her husband, at this time, attended refrigeration school at Dunwoody Institute in Minneapolis.

"When he finished school, he decided it would be good to live in Phoenix to put his schooling knowledge to use," she said. By this time Jane had become employed at the Department of Parks and Recreation in South St. Paul — a job she hated to leave.

"I loved my work there and wanted to stay, but we packed and left," she said.

In Phoenix, Jane was employed in the transportation department at Revlon, Inc. in which she was in charge of shipping all air freight, and was responsible for overseas shipments and routing all freight to its proper carrier.

"This was the second largest factory in the city," she said. "There were about 50 men and two girls employed.

"I enjoyed this job because I found out about trucking, and shipping costs and things like that," she said. "I had never done anything like that, before."

Jane's eagerness and ambition took her yet further, and she returned to Thief River Falls, following her divorce, where she became employed as a secretary at Quillin and Associates. While working there, the Park and Recreation boss from south St. Paul called her and informed her of a job opening in the department. Jane did not hesitate to utter her eager "yes" to return to the job she had previously enjoyed, she said, and she moved in one month back to South St. Paul.

"This was my hardest move," she said. Her children were young (ages one and four), her income was low, and she was alone. Her first home in South St. Paul was a two-bedroom apartment which she shared with her two children and a girlfriend.

"I don't know how I made it," she said.

After working awhile, Jane saved her money to get a place of her own with her two children, and she returned to the same apartment where she had lived before moving with her husband to Phoenix.

"Life became easier then," she said. "Lisa started school and my salary improved."

When Jane's father died, she felt a need to be closer to home, she said.

"After my girls and I decided to move back to Thief River, I told my boss I would be leaving, and when Lisa finished school, we moved."

At that time, a manager was needed at the Rex cafe. "That was a whole different ball of wax," she said, laughing. "That first month I cleared more tables than you would believe!"

Jane loves Thief River for raising a family, she stated.

"I'm going to raise my two girls (Lisa, 9, and Lori, 6,) to be outstanding citizens with the best of my ability," she said. "I'm going to get them through school and then do what I've dreamed of all my life."

Jane's dream in life includes the need to develop in four careers, she said. "I've worked in three and I don't know the fourth. I've been a secretary for 11 years, a restaurant manager, and a mother — which I feel is a career also," she said.

Jane continues to ponder that fourth career. "Lots of times I feel I'd like to see myself as a trouble shooter in a business and work in many areas," she said. "I love to travel. I'd like to go south for the winters and north for the summers."

Jane will have worked at the Rex cafe as manager for two years July 5 she said. Her daily duties include taking over for employees when the cafe is shorthanded and she is trained as a cook, custodian, dishwasher and waitress. Head cook scared her the most, she admitted.

Jane's family includes her mother, Mrs. William Grundhaus; three brothers and two sisters. Roger is a pastor at St. Phillip's parish in Bemidji, Bill is a CPA in Seattle, WA, while his wife works in the personnel department for Boeing aircraft; Les works for TRW out of Los Angeles in which he programs computer systems (he is stationed in Washington), and is married to Norac, a woman from Venezuela; Cindy is a court reporter in Iowa and is married to Richard Delorme of this city; and Mary and her husband, an attorney, who are living in Starbuck, are patiently awaiting an addition to their family in May.

Saturday Jane will be traveling with Lisa and Lori to Washington, D.C., for a two-week vacation where she will see her borther and do some sight-seeing.

"I also want to show my daughters different areas so they will be familiar with them when they start taking American history classes in school."

Jane feels that the most rewarding part of any job is to be able to do something for someone else, she said.

"That's why I thoroughly enjoy working with people. I enjoy making them smile. I have a very low tolerance for suffering people. And, since I enjoy my work, I will continue to work at the cafe," she said.

"I don't believe in working at something you don't enjoy. I basically enjoy life. If there's something fun involved, I'll be there. I'm not afraid to try something different. I believe if a person puts her mind to it, she can do anyting."

Her final statement summarizes the story of her life.

Expect 500 For In-Service Here

Faculty members numbering up to 500 from 11 area schools will participate Monday in an in-service day to be held at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. Workshops, clinics and lecture sessions will be held in a number of subject and interest fields. There will be no classes for students in grades K-12 on Monday.

The in-service program is one of four arranged by the office of the Northwest educational cooperative service unit (ECSU) with others being held in Clearbrook, Greenbush and Mahnomen. The Northwest ECSU office is located in the school district service center in Thief River Falls with Fred Rohde as director.

Invited to participate in the in-service day at Lincoln are faculty members from Thief River Falls, Alvarado, Argyle, Goodridge, Grygla, Mentor, Middle River, Newfolden, Oklee, Strandquist and Plummer. The sites at Clearbrook, Greenbush and Mahnomen are expected to serve a combined total of another 500 people.

Sessions at Lincoln school begin at 9 a.m. and continue throughout the day with a number of the morning sessions being repeated in the afternoon. A noon lunch will be served in the cafeteria at 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. since a number of programs end at 11:30 a.m. or 12 noon.

Arrangements for speakers and programs are made by the ECSU office with the assistance of an advisory committee which suggests subject areas of importance and interest for the area. At one of the other school sites, the ECSU office noted, the entire in-service day will relate to child abuse.

Subject areas at the program here include such diverse areas as "Translating the Statewide Reading Assessment into Classroom Strategies", "Using the Driver Education Simulator", "Managing Motivation", "Discipline", "Microcomputers in the Classroom", "Awareness on the Chisanbop" and "Starting Early — Language K-9".

Annexation Discussed At Hearing Today

services and police protection (excluding the Pennington county sheriff's department) are not provided by the township of North. Fire protection is provided by the Thief River Falls fire department.

Proposed land is presently zoned industrial and commercial. Township of North has previously filed an objection to the proposed annexation.

Gerald Wigness, city clerk-treasurer, affirmed Halvorson's summary of services available to the area. "If the area was annexed," he said, "water and sewer services and police and fire protection would be provided. If zoned commercial, sanitation services would be provided according to arrangements with the commercial hauler. If the land was to be zoned residential, sanitation services would be provided."

Conrad Gonsorowski, representing Hubert's Service on Highway 59 north, in Joppru's subdivision — an area of land located immediately to the north of the proposed annexation — attested to the same services provided by the township of North.

It was indicated, however, that Gonsorowski was not in the area proposed for annexation, but adjacent to it.

Duane Walton, member of the planning commission, stated that the proposed land is, "open to any type of development if the land is properly zoned, if the annexation is approved. If the land is annexed, it will be spot annexed," he said, adding that his personal position was that this action would not be in the best interests of the city.

Other witnesses to the issue included Rod Heschke, supervisor of the Pennington county soil survey employed by the Soil Conservation service in Thief River Falls; Charles Rodekuhr, Pennington county auditor; James E. Walker, manager of Stewart and Walker, Inc. and city engineer, who added that it would be physically possible to deliver water and sewer service to the property if it was annexed.

John T. Anderson, superintendent of utilities, discussed the issue, stating that if the area is annexed, a reciprocal agreement will be required between Thief River Falls and Red Lake Electric Cooperative — which presently provides electric service to people in the area.

Richard Heinrichs, an owner of the land in question, also testified to the services provided by the township of North, and spoke of the land being presently zoned as commercial and industrial.

Roger Reuter, president of First Northwestern state bank in Thief River Falls, appeared before the board, reminding those present that the indication that the township of North would benefit from the annexation was misleading.

"I am not opposed to the annexation," he said, "but against its intended use if the land is annexed."

"The question is not one of annexation, but one of zoning," Marben said. "We are trying to see that the best possible services are provided if the land is annexed."

Further municipal board meetings will be conducted in the future. The meeting concluded following nearly two and one-half hours of discussion.

To Vacate Classrooms In Old Lincoln

students will not be in school.

Changes being planned include the following:

+ Judy Schmit's English classes will be moved from room 201 to the former AVTI section, occupying the east room used by the licensed practical nursing classes;

+ Ted Hellie's English classes will be moved from room 206 to the west room formerly occupied by LPN classes;

+ Cecelia Stoltman's social studies classes will be moved from room 204 in the Old Lincoln building to the east room formerly occupied by cosmetology classes in the AVTI section;

+ Jim Goldesberry's English classes will move from room 202 in Old Lincoln to the west room of the former AVTI cosmetology area;

+ Bill Vollan's science classes will move from room 207 to the old bus garage located behind the Lincoln complex;

+ John Kopari's social studies and German classes will move from room 203 into four different rooms (103, 107, 115 and 211; where there are vacant periods; and

+Elvera Oullen's social studies classes will move from room 106 to rooms 103, 110 and 127. (Room 106 is located on the first floor of Old Lincoln but directly over the school boiler room.)

Should the district be compelled to vacate the Old Lincoln building, space will have to be found for area now occupied by seven classrooms, a faculty room, athletic director's office, small gymnasium and storage.

Hamerlinck said that the moves to be accomplished Tuesday will occupy all of the vacated space in the former AVTI section with the exception of a large auto mechanics shop area. Conversion of this area for other than shop use could be costly if permament type changes are to be made.

A SMALL OFFICE does not necessarily indicate a small amount of work, as Jane Mackenroth, manager of the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls, realizes each day. Jane, who was selected 1980 Young Career Woman Monday evening at the Business and Professional Women's meeting, will now travel to district competition April 12 at Walker. As manager of the cafe she is responsible for hiring, accounts payable and receivable, and payroll, as well as various other duties.

Arctic Reports Consolidation Of Boatworks

Various fiberglass boat production operations will be moved from Arctic, Enterprises' Silverline division in Moorhead to its plants in Little Falls and Fort Walton Beach, Fla., according to Kenneth J. Severinson, president of the Thief River Falls based company.

Severinson said that Arctic plans to retain certain production and administration operations at the Moorhead plant for the next nine months.

He added that the consolidation of manufacturing operations is being done to strengthen the company's marine group, which includes Silverline, Larson and Lund boat companies and the Spirit marine division.

"The consolidation will permit us to more aggressively pursue viable market opportunities by reducing production costs and better utilizing available capacities. It is being done to improve our competitive position in the marketplace."

PERFORMING AT THE Jaycee Women Charity ball this Saturday evening at the Elks club in Thief River Falls is Jane Olson, Miss Thief River Falls. Evening will begin with a program at 8 p.m., followed by dancing and entertainment.

Spring Road Restrictions Effective Mon.

Minnesota department of transportation announced today that spring road restrictions for truck highways in northern Minnesota will go into effect March 24 in zones four, five and six.

This is the area north of state highways 52, 23 and 48 north of Elbow Lake — Alexandria — St. Cloud — Foley — Milaca — Mora. In the event of unseasonably warm weather, postings may have to be placed a few days earlier (watch for the signs).

All roads affected by this order will be marked by signs according to their individual load carrying capacity, and in all cases the load limit stated on the signs will be in effect regardless of any other previous posting or information. Highways having no signs stating the posted load limit may carry the normal legal load limit of nine tons.

Publish Study Of Small Post Offices

Official business and community spirit converge at many of America's 18,000 rural post offices, and closing one of them can have far-reaching impact on its surrounding community. The entire issue is thoroughly explored in "At the Crossroads", a pioneering independent study just released by the postal rate commission (PRC) in Washington, D.C.

The commission, among other duties, hears appeals on post office closings or consolidations proposed by the postal service.

Written by Richard J. Margolis, a journalist-author who specializes in rural affairs, the study may be utilized by the U.S. postal service in its decisions on post office closings or consolidations, according to A. Lee Fritschler, PRC chairman.

"At the Crossroads" draws upon a wide spectrum of resources, from personal interviews with postal employees and customers to pertinent sociological and demographic data. Margolis queried postmasters and residents of 37 small communities in 19 different states on how they viewed the role of their local post offices.

Margolis found that rural post offices bolster small-town life in numerous ways, often outside the scope of normal postal services. A rural Kentucky postmaster reports that he helps his customers with "a lot of their personal problems, ranging from filling out papers to helping them understand the contents of a letter." Postmasters throughout the country, according to the study, cited many such "special studies" for their clients, especially the elderly, poor and illiterate.

The study concludes that closing a post office in a thriving rural community can cause significant, often irreparable, damage. It points out, however, that communities on the verge of disappearing are not adversely affected by post office closing.

"At the Crossroads" includes a set of 21 "vital signs" designed to help assess whether a small community is "alive" or "dying" and what kind of impact closing or consolidation of its post office would have.

"I guess the post office is like drinking water," said Irma Dicker, town clerk in Milroy. "You don't appreciate it 'til you don't have it."

Questions on the list of vital signs include:

—Does the village have a geographic center, and is the post office in it?

—Do people live within walking distance of the center?

—Do residents regularly gather at the post office, not only to pick up their mail but also to renew social ties and exchange local news?

Postal rate commission chairman A. Lee Fritschler, appointed by President Carter in 1979, said his agency will examine the study to determine whether or not the community viability criteria it outlines can be applied by the postal service in its decision-making process.

Fritschler noted the study was commissioned to "investigate the implications and community effects resulting from the closing of post offices in small rural communities." He emphasized that while Congress has specifically instructed the postal service "to consider the effect . . . (of such action) on the community served", the law does not provide detailed guidelines to aid the service in the execution of its Congressionally - mandated responsibilities.

The commission, in its first substantive decision on post office closings, returned to the postal service a group of nine appeals, explaining in its opinion how the service should consider more closely the impact on those communities subject to proposed post office closings.

ALTHOUGH STOCKING shelves may not be a favorite job for Jane Mackenroth, who was selected 1980 Young Career Woman Monday evening, she does the task when necessary. Jane, who is manager of the Rex cafe in Thief River Falls, plans to continue her present position at the cafe since she enjoys working with people and does not believe in working at something one doesn't enjoy, she said.

Senator Says Diversion For Grain Needed

Dissatisfied with administration efforts to ease the effects of the grain embargo on farmers, Senator Rudy Boschwitz Tuesday introduced legislation mandating a diversion program for feedgrains and wheat. The bill was reported out of the senate agriculture committee at the time of introduction.

The measure mandates the Secretary of Agriculture committee at the time of introduction.

The measure mandates the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a paid diversion program for 1980.

Boschwitz said "feedgrain and wheat surpluses will be very large in this country because of the 12 million metric tons of corn and feedgrains and four million metric tons of wheat which have been held off the foreign market because of the embargo on grain shipments to Russia. These large surpluses will depress prices on these commodities at a time when farmers can least afford it.

"The net cost of the program," Boschwitz said, "will be very little because by diverting acres we can avoid an increase in deficiency payments which would result from low prices.

"The estimated increases of acreage to be planted in wheat and corn coupled with the large carryover stocks caused by the embargo will have a serious effect on prices at the end of the 1980 crop year," Boschwitz said. "Corn acreage is estimated to increase by three million acres and wheat by six million acres during the 1980 crop year."

Diversion payments under the measure would amount to $1.25 per bushel for feedgrains and corn on diverted acres and $1.50 per bushel for wheat on diverted acres. The bill would also establish a special grazing program in which the farmer would be paid 50 cents per bushel for diverted acres on which he grazes cattle or raises hay.

If the administration is really serious about helping the farmer out of the price squeeze it started with the embargo," Boschwitz said, "I would expect the President and the agriculture department to support this measure. It will provide at least the hope of adequate prices to farmers by removing a potential surplus which would severely depress grain prices."

U Of M Music Bldg. Request Is Debated

A $12 million music building for the University of Minnesota west bank campus is the major difference the House and Senate will have to iron out in conference committee.

Tuesday evening, March 11, the Senate finance subcommittee on education approved the university's music building request. The House turned it down the week before.

Senate subcommittee also approved Tuesday a $3.3 million project to remodel the university's public health facilities, a request the House had rejected.

Both bodies have approved the university's top priority construction request, new facilities for the agronomy, plant pathology and soil science programs. But the House provided extra money so the university would not have to make a 25 per cent reduction in space because of inflation since the request was made two years ago. It voted to give the university $15.9 million, while Tuesday the Senate subcommittee voted in favor of the $13,778,466 the university had requested.

"Although these are important programs, I think they're going to have to survive on a little less money," said Sen. Robert Tennessen, DFL - Minneapolis. "We don't change other building requests because of inflation."

On Monday, March 10, the Senate subcommittee approved $11 million for a Hubert Humphrey Institute of public affairs building and $5 million for a business administration addition. The House combined both requests into a single $13.5 million building for the west bank campus.

Conference committee on the building bills will probably be held next week.

- Cigarette smoking appears to be a major factor in damaging the placenta.
- Offspring of women who smoke during pregnancy may be stillborn or deficiently developed because of their mother's heavy smoking.

- One in nine started smoking when 10 years old or younger. Most teenagers who smoke say their parents have tried to get them to stop; as many as one third report their parents have made no effort to do so.
- Cigarette smoking is more addictive than heroin, hooking ⅓ of all people who have smoked.
- Fifty-six per cent of fires in the United States are smoking related.
- Each year smoking adds between five and seven billion dollars to health care costs and 12 to 18 billion dollars in lost production, wages and absenteeism.
- The death rate among cigarette smokers exceeds that of non-smokers by 83 per cent.
- Cigarette smoking alone is directly responsible for about one third of all cancers or 225,000 malignancies diagnosed in the U.S. last year. Forty per cent of all cancer in males is caused by smoking.

Stangeland Sponsors Bill On Court Cost

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has announced he is cosponsoring the small business equal access to justice act in order to allow small business owners to recover court costs and associated expenses if they are successful in fighting civil or administrative charges brought against them by the federal government.

"The small business equal access to justice act addresses a major inequity in our present judicial system. For example, if a small businessman is brought into a judicial or administrative controversy by a government agency, the businessman must pay the legal fees to defend himself. I can understand this if the accused is guilty but in many instances it is clear the business owner has been unjustly cited and, because the cost of fighting the legal action is so high, he or she is forced to pay the fine," said Stangeland.

The bill clearly preserves the right of the federal government to take action to correct illegal and harmful practices, but it will help the small business owner to battle government injustices without the threat of paying the high cost for legal counsel. The federal government would have to pay the reasonable legal fees and costs expended by the small businessman.

"Many government regulations are both ridiculous and unnecessary. It is not unusual for a small business owner to become involved in a conflict over them. This bill will help members of the business community deal with government charges they feel to be incorrect instead of being forced to accept the penalties government bureaucrats hand down," Stangeland said.

Clinic Dates For EPS, WIC Set For April

Four county EPS service and the Minnesota department of health sponsor an early and periodic screening (EPS) program to identify potential health problems before they become serious or do lasting harm. During screening, hearing, vision, immunization and nutritional status, and physical, mental and emotional health are examined.

EPS is designed to reach "healthy" children, identifying problems that could be corrected by early treatments. Early and periodic screening is recommended for all children and young adults from six months through 21 years.

Certification of participants for WIC (Women, Infants and Children) food supplemental and nutritional education program will take place during April, according to Muriel Roley, WIC coordinator.

Because the participant load is increasing, it is necessary for potential clients to call or write the four county PES service in Warren to make a WIC certification appointment. New clients will be seen by appointment only.

Initial certification will take approximately one to one and one-half hours. Potential clients must bring the children they wish to have certified with them.

All WIC clinics begin at 9 a.m. and will run until noon with a nutrition class for all clients from 10 to 10:30 a.m.

Schedule for April for EPS and WIC clinics is as follows: April 1 — Newfolden, Bethlehem Lutheran church; April 2 — Hallock, Presbyterian church; April 3 — Red Lake Falls, 1-5 p.m., city hall; April 8 — Karlstad, First Lutheran church; April 9 — Grygla, community center (for WIC clinic information call Lillian Sundberg at 294-6146); April 10 — Warren, Evangelical Covenant church; April 11 — Thief River Falls, Redeemer Lutheran church (for WIC patients only); April 14 — Oklee, Zion Lutheran church; and April 25 — Thief River Falls, Redeemer Lutheran church (for EPS patients only).

For further information concerning either of these services, cost or appointments call or write: 4 county EPS service, 208 E. Colvin, Warren, MN 56762, 745-4004.

Views On ® Dental Health

EARLY TOOTH OVERCROWDING

When should crooked teeth be straightened? As soon as they're detected! The old adage about an ounce of protection is especially true in orthodontics, where crooked teeth can be prevented by early treatment.

Diagnosed at a sufficiently early age, an unusual trend can often be stopped in its tracks - and its effects completely erased. To ensure early detection, a child should have a checkup by the family dentist at intervals of about six months, beginning at 2½ to 3 years of age. Overcrowded and crooked teeth are most likely to make their entrance with the arrival of the four permanent incisors and the four permanent molars at around age six.

Prompt treatment is recommended when teeth are overcrowded. Some baby teeth may be removed ahead of their normal shedding time to allow nature to do a certain amount of tooth straightening. Known as interceptive orthodontics, it involves a one-by-one extraction in a well-planned sequence to make room for a better bite.

Farm Bureau Asks Safeguard On Legislation

Today the president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation, Merlyn Lokensgard of St. Peter, outlined his organization's feelings on the issue of initiative and referendum.

With initiative and referendum the topic of political discussion right now, I think its important that we comment on such a vital issue," he stated. "Minnesota Farm Bureau will support a constitutional amendment only if it requires a petition signed by a percentage of those voting in the last election in each county."

Without this petition provision, "actions taken by one section of the state could harm the best interests of less populated areas," Lokensgard warned. "This requirement would insure the support of a cross section of the entire state's population."

The issue of initiative and referendum has become a political football during this year's abreviated Minnesota legislative session, with sights of both political parties on the fall election.

Minnesota Governor Al Quie supports a constitutional amendment on initiative and referendum. His proposal includes a county-by-county percentage of signatures on a petition for initiating or reforming laws by the general public. In an about-face move this past week, the DFL introduced a bill without the geographical requirement.

Lokensgard concluded by saying: "I would call upon state legislators of both parties to resist the urge to play games and work for the benefit of all."

Poison Prevention Week Is Observed

Minnesota health authorities will be alerting parents and children to the dangers of accidental poisoning this month, in connection with the nationwide observance of Poison prevention week. Gov. Al Quie has joined President Carter in setting aside the week of March 16 for the annual event.

Children are the primary focus of Poison prevention week, according to officials at the state health department, because most accidental poisonings occur among youngsters under five. Department authorities say a number of developments during the last few years have helped parents in dealing with the poison problem. One was the introduction, about seven years ago, of child-resistant packaging for medicines and other dangerous materials. Fatal aspirin poisonings, in particular, have been reduced dramatically, they note.

Another important advance has been the establishment, in many parts of the country, of regionally-based poison information centers. Each of these centers is staffed by qualified professionals, with access to complete and up-to-date information about different types of poisonings and their treatment.

"A badly needed bill to fund a statewide poison information center will die in the Minnesota House unless there is immediate public support for passage," said Dr. Merle Mark, a Crystal family physician and Chairman of the Minnesota Medical Association (MMA) committee on legislation.

The Minnesota Senate passed the bill in 1979 and the MMA is hopeful that increased public support will improve the outlook for passage in the House.

Under the terms of the bill, Minnesota's commissioner of health, will select a grantee to receive funding for the operation of a statewide poison information center. The center would function 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Information on poisons, treatments, and consultation services would be provided via a toll-free telephone line available to all citizens of Minnesota.

"Physician members of the Minnesota Medical association sponsored the poison information center bill because poisonings are the fourth most frequent cause of accidental death in the United States. In Minnesota alone, 100,000 children and adults are in need of information and emergency treatment related to acute poisonings each year," said Mark.

Mark emphasized that passage of the poison information legislation (H.F. 448 0 S.F. 480) would insure that current information on poisoning and the needed treatment would be available to both the public and medical professionals at all times.

Health authorities say that, in addition to providing for better handling of poison emergencies, the poison centers have benefited many areas economically. Up to 80 per cent of all poisonings can be treated at home, they note, so ready access to poison information can often save a trip to the emergency room. In the long run, that can mean lower hospital costs.

Potential savings in Minnesota have been estimated at $800,000 a year or more. Proposed appropriation for operating a poison information center is $125,000 a year.

Health authorities suggest a number of measures which parents can take to protect their children against accidental poisonings:

All medicines, cleaning materials, fuels and other dangerous products should be kept in their original containers, and stored where children can't get to them. Steps should also be taken to keep poisonous plants and other dangerous items out of young hands.

All dangerous products or materials should be labeled with the National Poison center's "Mr. Yuk" stickers, which are available in Minnesota through the Poison center at the Hennepin County medical center. Research has shown "Mr. Yuk" to be the most effective type of labeling for deterring children from consuming poisons.

Keep on hand a bottle of Syrup of Ipecac, a non-prescription medicine available at most drug stores. Syrup of Ipecac is used to induce vomiting when someone has swallowed a poisonous substance. Do not use this product unless instructed to do so by a physician, hospital emergency room or poison information center.

Be prepared to contact your poison information center, your family doctor or a hospital energency room immediately if you know or suspect that a child has swallowed a dangerous substance. Keep the phone number handy.

Quie Comments On Energy Assistance

"Minnesota needs a state emergency energy assistance plan to help those unable to pay their heating bills this winter", states Gov. Al Quie. "While high energy costs affect us all, many low income families cannot meet these rapidly rising fuel costs. I recognize this and have made it one of my top legislative priorities this year.

"We have been fortunate to have a milk winter this year in Minnesota. This may account for the low participation rate in the federally funded fuel assistance program. As of the end of February about 58,000 households have been helped through this program. This is just 29 per cent of the 200,000 estimated households that are eligible for this assistance. In actual dollars, Minnesota has received $43.1 million in federal funds, and $20.5 million or 48 per cent of this money has been spent on fuel assistance. We are still expecting as much as $6.2 million additional federal funds for energy assistance yet this year," the governor added.

"In order to provide additional help to those in need I requested that the federal guidelines be increased for Minnesota. The amended guidelines allow payments, on a sliding scale, up to $650 for households using fuel oil and up to $525 for those using domestic natural gas. Original federal maximum payments were $400 for fuel oil users and $275 for natural gas users.

"The federal program helps those up to 125 per cent of poverty. I believe there are people above the federal cutoff who need help and should be assisted so I have provided for them in my energy assistance proposal.

"My January 24 state of the state address included a $26.3 million program for emergency energy assistance. This program includes $7.8 million for fuel assistance grants for households between 126 and 150 per cent of poverty and $11 million for weatherization grants and loans.

"In February the House energy and appropriations committees passed a bill that followed many of the guidelines I set out in my state of the state message, with an additional $6 million for weatherization. Because this measure meets most of the emergency energy needs of the people of this state, I indicated I would accept this proposal," the governor said.

"However, this bill was amended on the House floor to include a 15 per cent state tax credit for weatherization and a pass-through of the federal tax credit. I do not support the concept of additional tax credits for emergency assistance. Weatherization aid should provide more immediate assistance than tax credits can deliver.

MARGARET WHITE models her bridesmaid outfit furnished by the Klothes Kloset in Thief River Falls during the "Storybook Wedding" sponsored by the Thief River Falls AVTI fashion merchandising class and the Thief River Falls retail business association Sunday afternoon in the Northland community college theater. Flowers for the special occasion were provided by Hall's flower shop in Thief River Falls.

"The real incentive for everyone is savings from having costs reduced by weatherization, not tax credits. Low income households need help to get enough money together to weatherize so they need direct grants. My proposal and federal help provide this. Middle income households need subsidized loans. These are already available," Gov. Quie added.

"I also cannot support the Senate's position which would aid families with incomes 187 per cent above the poverty level. In other words, one-fourth of our state would receive some aid. Such a program is too costly for our taxpayers to support.

"We need to provide energy assistance on a sliding scale for households up to 150 per cent for this heating season. Next year it is expected that the federal program will provide assistance to these households. As early as April 1 this year the federal government is expected to raise its income eligibility requirements based upon an 11 per cent cost-of-living adjustment. Further, federal aid according to the windfall profit conference committee report will provide aid to households with even higher incomes for next year's heating season," the governor explained.

"These are my positions on an emergency energy fuel bill. I have detailed them in a letter to the conference committee members and have asked them to take quick action on a bill so we can avoid a law written in the final few minutes of the session.

"It surprises me that with all the concern several months ago about the need for special session on energy there seems to be little hurry to pass a bill this session. I hope legislators act quickly to provide the emergency energy assistance Minnesotans need, but not more than is needed," he concluded.

Index Income Taxes Now!

I recently sent Seventh District residents my third annual questionnaire and, judging by the few hundred that have been returned, the high rate of inflation seems to be the Number One concern on everyone's mind.

Inflation is a hidden tax which-year after year continues to eat away at our salaries and purchasing power primarily because our tax system does not compensate for this economic problem. For example, consider a family of four whose annual income increases from $15,000 to $16,500 to keep pace with one year of 10 per cent inflation. Although the family's purchasing power is the same, the family has jumped from the 18 per cent tax bracket to the 21 per cent bracket and, instead of paying $1,242 in Federal income tax, they would have to pay $1,530. Overall, the family's tax bill has increased more than 23 per cent, while its money income has grown only 10 per cent, and the real income, or purchasing power, has not changed.

If this family's tax bill had increased only by the rate of inflation, its liability would have been $1,366 which means that an extra "inflation tax" (or "taxflation") of $164 has been imposed without legislation to increase taxes having been introduced. The net result if that this family, like all of us, thought they were keeping up with inflation, while they were actually having to pay more income tax and were faced with the same purchasing power.

One way to bring this "taxflation" to a halt to to index the tax system for inflation. In an indexed tax system, the fixed-dollar provisions of the tax code, such as the standard deduction, personal exemptions and income backets, are increased every year by the rate of inflation as measured by the change in the consumer price index. This means that incomes which increase at the rate of inflation are no longer automatically subject to higher tax rates, and the real value of the exemptions and deductions is preserved. In addition, the after tax purchasing power of the taxpayer is maintained and the government does not reap a windfall by receiving new tax dollars because of inflation.

If the family of four had been under an indexed tax system, the $16,500 income would remain in the 18 per cent tax bracket and the personal exemptions allowed would increase by $400. The family's tax liability would increase by only 10 per cent to $1,366 rather than to $1,530 and the effective tax rate would remain at 8.3 per cent. Indexing income taxes would reduce the family's tax burden by 10.7 per cent compared to the liability without indexation and federal revenues would be limited to a 10 per cent increase instead of the 23 per cent increase that would occur without indexation.

Unfortunately, the mood in Congress has not been in favor of indexing taxes because "taxflation" allows the government to reap a huge windfall from inflation. During the next three years it has been estimated that the federal government will take in about $80 billion just because inflation is pushing people into higher tax brackets and increasing their tax bills. This is government's sneaky way of imposing a tax increase without taking the blame.

Indexing income taxes is not the answer to inflation, but this tax system will protect the American people from the ravages of inflation on their tax liability. In addition, indexing taxes will place the burden of inflation on the federal government by reducing income, and, thereby, forcing Congress to curb spending.

As a cosponsor of the Tax Equalization Act, a bill to index Federal income taxes, I feel this form of taxation if in the best interest of the American taxpayer and I will continue to work to have our current system changed.

Thief River Falls' Tom Goddard was one of three Warroad Lakers named to the 1979-80 Central Amatuer Hockey (CASH) League all-star team.

Goddard was selected as the CASH League all-star right winger, with the Lakers' Kim Marchuk getting the honors on the left side and Peter Waselovich of the Lakers named the league's top goaltender.

Ousted from the Manitoba Assiniboine Hockey League for being "too good" at the end of the 1978-79 season, Warroad was elevated to the higher caliber CASH League this winter, but still came up with a first place finish by edging both St. Boniface and East Kildonan on the final day of the regular season.

First round best-of-seven CASH League semifinal playoff series matching Warroad against fourth place Steinbach starts Thursday at 8 p.m. at Warroad. Rest of the series games will be played Sun., March 23, at Steinbach; Tues., March 25, at Warroad; Thurs., March 27, at Steinbach; Sat., March 29, at Warroad; Sun., March 30, at Steinbach; and Tues., April 1, at Warroad. All games start at 8 p.m. except for Sunday's 2 p.m. matinee.

St. Boniface and East Kildonan are playing in the other CASH League semifinal series.

The CASH League playoffs are the first step toward the Canadian Allen Cup championship.

Warroad won the Canadian Hardy Cup intermediate championship in 1974 and won Western Canada championship trophies in 1965, 1974, 1977 and 1978.

The Lakers, whose personnel was limited as a CASH League entry requirement, have bolstered their playoff line-up with the addition of Eddie Christian, a Warroad high school standout; and Roger Lamoureux, a former University of North Dakota star.

Marshall County Produces Champions

Superintendent Gene Busch of Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden wonders if Marshall county might be some kind of Minnesota State High School League record holder after producing 13 district basketball champions during the 1970's.

"Apparently basketball performance by high schools in Marshall county has taken a big step forward in the decade of the seventies compared with the previous ten-year period," wrote Busch.

During the 1960's, Middle River was the only Marshall county high school to reach the region basketball tournament level with a District 32 championship in 1964.

However, 13 Marshall county teams won district tournaments in the seventies, with Argyle winning four trophies, Warren three, Stephen two and Marshall County Central, Middle River, Grygla and Alvarado one each.

Marshall county high schools winning boys district basketball tournaments during the 1970's include Alvarado, 1970; Stephen, 1971 and 1972; Middle River, 1973; Argyle, 1974 and 1975; Warren, 1976; Marshall County Central and Argyle, 1977; Argyle, 1978; and Warren, 1979.

Marshall county has a double chance at district titles since its western half teams compete in District 31 and its eastern half schools play in District 32.

The 1980's started off on the right foot for Marshall county schools, with the Marshall County Central and Warren girls, along with the Warren boys, picking off district titles. The Marshall County Central and Warren girls met in last week's Region 8A tournament championship game where the Ponies won 47-27 to give the county only its second region title; the Warren boys won the 1979 Region 8A crown and finished fourth in the state Class A basketball tournament.

+ Grand Rapids is planning a "million dollar" expanson project for its IRA hockey arena, with the C.K. Blandin foundation approving a matching grant of up to $500,000 toward the project. "We need more room for all the kids coming along," said Grand Rapids Sports Boosters president Pete DeCenzo.

Girls State Meet Starts On Thursday

Region 8A champion Warren is one of five unbeaten teams who will begin play Thursday in the Class A portion of the 1980 Minnesota state high school girls basketball tournament.

The eight Class A schools who will gather at the St. Paul Civic Center have a combined won-lost record of 178-5 and is headed by three-time defending state champion New York Mills.

Boys, Girls All-Stars To Play May 3

Minnesota girls and boys high school basketball all-stars will play the girls and boys Indiana high school all-stars Sat., May 3, at the Met Center in Bloomington.

The girls game is scheduled for 6:30 p.m., with the boys game following.

The second annual Pizza Hut all-star basketball classic, sponsored by the Pizza Huts of the Northwest, Inc., is a benefit for Minneapolis Children's Health Center (MCHC).

Tickets will be sold at Dayton's and the Met Center ticket office. All seats are reserved at $4 and $5, with a limited number of floor seats available at $6.

This is the first year Minnesota will have a girls all-star team. Last year the Minnesota boys defeated Indiana 109-92 before nearly 7,000 fans. The benefit raised over $6,300 for Minneapolis Children's.

Discussing the upcoming event, Jim Dutcher, head basketball coach for the University of Minnesota said, "Minnesota basketball talent for both boys and girls has improved greatly over the past few years, and these games are an opportunity to showcase Minnesota's best against quality competition."

Alice Larson, president of the association of MCHC, said, "It's very exciting to see these talented young athletes playing in all-star competition for the benefit of other young people. Their generosity combined with our contribution and the support of the public gives us an evening of great basketball and enables the Health Center to reach out to more children."

Minneapolis Children's, located at 2525 Chicago Avenue, opened its doors in 1973 after some 15 years of planning and fundraising. The Health Center provides comprehensive care for children and families.

Hams Named 1979-80 NWAC All-Conference

Kyle Hams of Thief River Falls, Tim Knotek of Crookston and Todd Selk of East Grand Forks retained their positions on the 1979-80 Northwest Athletic Conference high school all-conference basketball team announced Tuesday.

Hams, Knotek and Selk were all named to the all-conference team a year ago and were among the nine seniors named to the ten-man squad selected by a vote of conference coaches.

Fergus Falls, despite finishing in a third place tie in the five-team NWAC, placed four players on the all-conference team, including Lonnie Meade, Paul Bakken, Knute Rotto and Clay Mosher, the only junior on the squad.

Thief River Falls and Bemidji shared the NWAC pennant this winter, but Hams was the Prowlers' only all-conference pick while Rob Egersdorf and Tony Murphy represented the Lumberjacks.

John Erie of Crookston rounded out the team.

Meade, injured for part of the season and appearing in just two Northwest Athletic Conference games, was given the NWAC scoring title with his 20.0 scoring average. Egersdorf averaged 18.8 points in six NWAC starts; Knotek 17.3 in seven games; Hams 16.1 in seven; Bakken 14.2 in four; Murphy 13.2 in six; and Erie 13.1 in seven. Those were the top seven NWAC scorers. Moser averaged 10.3, Selk 10.2 and Rotto 8.8.

Bemidji (4-2) and Thief River Falls (4-3) shared the NWAC title with five points apiece, with Crookston (4-3) and Fergus Falls (2-2) collecting four points each and East Grand Forks (1-5) get*ting just two in the point* system that determined the league winner by making games worth one point if teams met twice during the year and doubling their value for a single meeting.

Overall, Thief River Falls finished regular season play 13-5, Crookston 10-8, Fergus Falls 10-8, East Grand Forks 7-11 and Bemidji 5-13.

NWAC All-Conference

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

Thief River Falls Bantam A hockey team will close out its 1979-80 season this week by competing in a 16-team invitational tournament at International Falls billed as the "International Invitational World Hockey Tournament." The impressive list of entries for the sixth annual event includes teams from Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Colorado, Canada and Sweden.

First round draw for Thief River Falls in the bottom bracket will be Kenora, Ont., Friday at 3 p.m.

First round top bracket draws feature Fort Frances, Ont. vs. Hibbing; Duluth vs. Warroad; Virginia vs. St. Croix, Wis.; and Port Arthur, Ont. vs. Park Grove.

The tournament runs through the day Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with Sunday's finals featuring the consolation championship game at 2 p.m.; third place game at 4 and championship game at 6.

A Thief River Falls win over Kenora would produce a 3 p.m. game Saturday against the St. Paul Johnson vs. Denver winner. A Thief River Falls first round loss would necessitate an 8 a.m. consolation round game Saturday against the St. Paul Johnson vs. Denver loser.

Elsewhere this weekend, the Thief River Falls schedule features the Squirt A Northern Lites playoffs at East Grand Forks; Pee-Wee A Northern Lites playoffs at Bemidji; and a Bantam B invitational tournament at Fergus Falls.

DNR Maps 85 Lakes

Department of Natural Resources mapped the depths of 85 lakes during the summer of 1979, it was reported this week. The maps are widely used by fishermen and DNR fish and wildlife managers.

Copies of the maps are sold by the State Documents Section, 117 University Avenue, St. Paul for $1.50 each.

Mapping was completed last year of 34,820 acre Lac La Croix in St. Louis county. Other sizeable lakes mapped during the summer included Lake Ida in Douglas county, 4,506 acres; and Big Pine lake in Otter Tail county, 4,834 acres.

Dogs Killing Deer, Reports State DNR

Minnesota conservation officers report that free running dogs — most of them household pets — are chasing and killing deer in various parts of the state.

Department of Natural Resources officials said the problem frequently occurs during the late winter and early spring when alternate thawing and freezing creates a crust on the surface of the snow.

The deer, with their sharp hooves, break through the crust and are unable to escape from the dogs, which run along on the surface of the snow.

Several dead deer have been found this winter that were pulled down by dogs.

Conservation officers have shot several dogs caught in the act of chasing deer.

Under state law, conservation officers are required to shoot any dog seen chasing deer.

Another law says "The owner of any dog which is found pursuing or killing deer, moose or domestic livestock shall be guilty of a misdemeanor".

Officials said dogs should be kept inside, tied up or caged until warm weather removes the snow, allowing the deer to out-run the dogs.

They pointed out that deer are in a weakened physical condition after a long winter and the does are carrying fawns, increasing their vulnerability to dog predation.

They also pointed out that every doe that is killed by dogs means the loss of the fawns she is carrying, affecting deer populations in the future.

Framework Is Set For Duck, Goose Season

Preliminary hunting regulations for ducks, geese and other migratory game birds for the 1980-81 hunting season have been proposed by the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. No major changes from last year's hunting regulations are proposed at this time.

The proposals, published in the February 29, 1980, Federal Register, describe tentative season frameworks, daily bag and possession limits and shooting hours for migratory game birds in the contiguous United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Species discussed in the proposals include ducks, geese, brant and swans; doves and pigeons; cranes; rails, coots and gallinules; woodcock and snipe.

Shooting hours will remain from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Framework dates for ducks and geese will be from October 1, 1980, to January 20, 1981, for the Atlantic and some Mississippi Flyway states, and from October 4, 1980, through January 18, 1981 for the Central and Pacific Flyways and other states in the Mississippi Flyway.

The Fish and Wildlife Service proposes to clarify the definition of "migratory game bird" by deleting the term "wild" where it is sometimes used to describe "ducks" and "doves and pigeons." This minor change would remove a point of possible confusion, but would not affect other portions of the regulations or add additional species to those presently listed as migratory birds.

All of the published proposals are subject to changes later if indicated by information obtained from surveys, State conservation agencies and the public. Public comments on the proposals are invited through May 16, 1980, and should be addressed to the Director (FWS-MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Blackduck Man Sentenced For Killing Eagle

Emmett Carrigan, 50, a rural Blackduck, was sentenced recently to three years in federal prison following a conviction on charges of killing and selling protected migratory birds. This is the longest prison sentence ever imposed for a federal wildlife law violation according to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) officials in Washington, D.C.

Carrigan, who pled guilty before United States District Court Judge Edward J. Devitt in St. Paul, was convicted on two counts of killing and selling a bald eagle, a violation of federal law. Carrigan was turned over to custody of U.S. marshals following sentencing.

Charges against Carrigan culminated a year-long investigation by special agents of the FWS and state authorities. Carrigan acknowledged selling a bald eagle, which he had killed, to FWS agents acting undercover.

Howard Lovrien, senior resident agent with the FWS in St. Paul said that Minnesota and Wisconsin contain the bulk of the remaining bald eagle population in the lower 48 United States. Lovrien also stated that incidents of shooting at eagles are not uncommon, but that commercial sale of the dead birds is unusual.

Carrigan, who has a record of fish and game law violations dating to 1950, is known to have dealt in the illegal sale of bald eagles on previous occasions.

Carrigan is also facing pending state charges for illegally possessing, transporting and selling deer and for possession of marijuana.

The public Job Service helped some 45,000 disabled veterans find employment during the 1979 fiscal year, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

National Wildlife Week Is Observed Mar. 16-22

More than 15 million American school children, teachers and conservationists are expected to participate this week in the 1980 observance of national wildlife week, March 16-22.

"Save a Place for Wildlife" is the theme for the 43rd annual celebration of the week that was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938 to rally public support for programs to enhance the nation's wildlife population.

Importance of preserving wildlife habitat — areas where wild creatures can find food, water, cover and a place to raise their young — is being emphasized this year, according to Dr. Frederick R. Scroggin, of Dry Ridge, Ky., president of the National Wildlife Federation, which sponsors the annual event.

The 1980 national wildlife week poster animals are two young red foxes, photographed for the NWF by Brian Milne of Thunder Bay, Ontario. On the reverse of the four-color poster Mark Trail, the conservationist hero of a nationally-syndicated cartoon strip, explains what "Save A Place For Wildlife" means, with illustrations by artists Ed Dodd and Jack Elrod, creators of the cartoon character. More than 800,000 copies of this poster were mailed to wildlife week participants.

The NWF, which has 4.1 million members and supporters, also distributed 597,000 copies of a second poster, which bears color photographs of 16 species of wildlife with information on each animal in English and Spanish backing up the pictures.

Teachers across the country, as well as in Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands received 394,000 wildlife week education kits, which contain posters, activity booklets and badges. Youngsters received 65,000 smaller student kits.

"Habitat is the key to a healthy and abundant wildlife population," said Scroggin, a physician and lifelong conservationist, in explaining this year's theme. "Without habitat, there would be no wildlife."

"But," Dr. Scorggin continued, "as our demands for more homes, more food and more energy continue to mount, we are putting ever-increasing pressure on our remaining wildlife habitat. In some places, we are needlessly and recklessly destroying wildlife habitat.

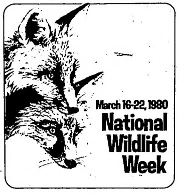
"One of the big challenges of the 1980s is to settle the conflicts between our own needs and the needs of our wildlife. We must save a place for wildlife."

Dr. Scroggin noted that President Carter has designated 1980 as the "Year of the Coast." The coast is just one habitat vital to both people and wildlife whose existence is threatened "by pollution, by development, by erosion," Scroggin said. "In addition, our wetlands, our wilderness, our prairies and our oceans are priceless habitats in need of protection."

"We can answer the challenge of the next decade if all of us show our concern," he emphasized. "With careful planning, we can grow and prosper and still 'Save A Place for Wildlife.' "

When President Franklin D. Roosevelt proclaimed a new national observance, wildlife restoration week in 1938, the nation had only recently learned an important environmental lesson from its disastrous Dust Bowl: Without adequate protection, our natural resources could be quickly lost forever. It seemed appropriate this year that the theme of the week in March sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation, should be habitat protection.

Over the years, national wildlife week themes have varied, from endangered species in general, as in 1956 and 1974, when the themes were "Save Endangered Wildlife" and "We Care About Endangered Wildlife" to specific endangered animals as in 1952, when the Wildlife Week theme was "Save the Key Deer."



Other themes have stressed environmental problems: "Chemical Pesticides Are Poison," in 1963 and "We All Need Clean Water," in 1977; and the importance of outdoor activities: "Protect Our Public Lands" in 1958 and "America Needs Outdoor Recreation," in 1964. In 1972 ecology was emphasized, "Ecology: A Wild Idea", and in 1966, with "Protect Natural

Feeling the anguish of animals in torment, thrashing wildly to be free of a leg trap, being ripped and torn apart as they thrash about, inflicting additional pain upon themselves in their ignorance as to why this is happening to them in their native habitat — their sanctuary — we can wonder at the trapper's motivations.

Surely no money is worth the pain of animals merely seeking food to survive. No 'policy' of game management can be so demanding that to kill is the only answer. It serves, in my thinking, as an "attitude," proving to me an inherent incompatability between nature and environment purposes; totally inimical to our own beliefs of wildlife management policies. Seeking instead opportunistic reasoning for so-called environmental gains, which in sum tota, seems to us devoid of lofty ideals and solid principles. In our wilderness programs involving trapping as one measure to reduce the population of animals.

Stated more simplistically; we hate trapping. We are not alone with these thoughts.

We learned of a large dog trapped in Eagan by a leg trap who had to be euthanized by the animal warden. Anyone missing their dogs should be alerted to call the animal wardens.

We might also consider the plight of the Bald Eagles near the river bottoms who may be in danger of being trapped. Last year a large white owl was trapped and killed. Many times cats are trapped by the leg traps.

This is because leg trap foods are placed within the trap itself, and any animal or birds seeking foods will enter the trap because of hunger — a normal action in order to survive.

National Wildlife Federation published a booklet recently on the role of trapping and trappers in our modern-day management. It numbers ten pages and questions whether or not to trap, making it an individual decision. The booklet is free. Some exerpts:

"But since man has disrupted the "blanace of nature" that once kept animal populations in check, trapping is a valid and effective method of preventing wildlife over-population," it concludes.

"Some furbearers, such as muskrat and nutria, if left uncontrolled, can multiply to such numbers that they consume all available edible vegetation," the pamphlet points out. "This not only wipes out their own food base, but destroys the habitat of many other animals in their ecosystems."

"Wildlife professionals know that regulated trapping is not a threat to the survival of wildlife," says the pamphlet. "They recognize that habitat destruction and degradation is the real threat."

Wild animals must pay for our misconceptions and ideas while their total existence disappears off of the face of the earth. This can proved by the missing species already gone foreever.

State Eelpout Record Given To Duluth Man

A 14-pound, one-ounce burbot (eelpout) is a state record according to Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials.

The fish was caught February 2 by Leonard Lundeen of Duluth in Deer Lake, Itasca county. Lundeen, who was walleye fishing at the time, had his record eelpout weighed in Deer River before witnesses. His "record fish application" was notarized as prescribed by new rules laid down by the DNR last summer.

The eelpout was 35 inches long with a girth of 21 inches. Richard Sternberg, DNR research biologist, said the state record fish is three ounces off the world record and could be a world record for eight-pound test line if it is accepted by the freshwater fishing hall of fame.

DU Outlook On Waterfowl Is Not Optimistic

Abnormally warm and dry weather patterns which have spread stubbornly across the Canadian prairie provinces since last fall are producing tough spring nesting conditions for northbound ducks and geese according to North America's largest waterfowl conservation organization, Ducks Unlimited.

"We're not implying that things couldn't turn around with some fast-moving, widespread storms through March and early April," said DU executive vice president Dale E. Whitesell. "But we are saying that the below-normal precipitation and above-normal temperatures have resulted in a snowpack which is 25 to 50 per cent less than what might be expected at this time of year.

"Consider the snowpack in terms of spring runoff, and unfortunately it becomes clear that there may, in fact, not be a significant one anywhere in western Canada with the possible exception of parts of Manitoba and north-eastern Saskatchewan."

This area, according to Whitesell — central British Columbia, all of Alberta, most of Saskatchewan and southwestern Manitoba — represents the heart of North America's top-notched waterfowl nesting habitat. It is here that Ducks Unlimited has concentrated much of its restoration and preservation work over the past 43 years, and it will be here that DU's projects, with their stabilized water levels, will be counted upon when waterfowl are unable to find conditions suitable for laying their eggs.

Meanwhile, the nesting outlook for eastern Canada is not causing particular concern, because the evaporation rate in these provinces is much lower than that of the prairies.

"The nasty situation we're confronting this spring," said Whitesell, "is a lack of snow in the mountains combined with the unusually light snow cover from Manitoba to B.C. I'm concerned, because this could even take its toll on our irrigation projects such as those in southern Alberta.

"To give you an idea of their importance, you might recall the feelings of U.S. fish and wildlife service biologists surveying that area in 1977. They told Canadian wildlife service biologists then that were it not for the presence of Ducks Unlimited projects in this region, there simply wouldn't have been any water for the birds."

Whitesell stressed again in closing that heavy, spring storms could indeed improve the dry prairie conditions, but that such storms would have to be severe and generally distributed. "Figure that at this time of year DU (Canada) Biologists would consider a blizzard to be a storm which covers one hundred square miles," said Whitesell. "For a storm to be effective, however, in countering the dry conditions which will greet waterfowl returning to the prairies, it would have to sweep across country covering an area roughly 600 miles by 300 miles. That adds up to an awful lot of territory."

Rules Adopted For Endangered Species List

Final rules for making additions, deletions, and other changes in the U.S. list of endangered and threatened wildlife and plants have been published by the Departments of the Interior and Commerce. The regulations implement the 1978 and 1979 amendments to the endangered species act.

"There final rules explain the procedures both departments follow in listing species and determining critical habitat," said Lynn A. Greenwalt, Director of Interior's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. "They also include expanded opportunity for public participation in our decision making process."

The final regulations spell out the criteria for deciding whether a species qualifies for listing, delisting or reclassification; the procedures for submitting and acting on petitions and emergency rules; and the content of proposed and final regulations. Procedures for periodic review of the list and for considering economic and other impacts associated with critical habitat designations are also outlined.

Opportunity for public participation will be increased by publishing notice of proposed actions in local newspapers and scientific journals; notifying local officials, interested parties, and other government agencies; and holding public meetings in or near the affected area. State governors and foreign governments are also consulted on species that occur under their respective jurisdictions.

"Endangered" means that a species is threatened with extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range. "Threatened" means that the species is likely to become endangered in the foreseeable future.

In order to qualify for listing, a species must be threatened by one or a combination of the following factors: loss of destruction of suitable habitat; disease or predation; commercial, sporting, scientific, or educational activities; inadequate protective laws; or other natural or man-made factors.

Critical habitat designations will be based on the biology and conservation needs of the species, such as space for individual and population growth, cover, shelter, food, water, air, light and other nutritional needs, and sites for breeding, reproduction and rearing of offspring. In the case of plants, this also will include the necessary sites for germination and seed dispersal. Critical habitat proposals will include an economic analysis, indicate activities that might have an adverse effect on the species and consider the impact that such designations might have on the local area involved.

After a species is listed, it is illegal for anyone under the jurisdiction of the United States to take wildlife (but not plants) and to import, export, ship, sell or offer wildlife or plants for sale in interstate or foreign commerce without a federal permit. In addition, federal agencies are required to consult with the services to ensure that actions they authorize, fund, or carry out do not jeopardize a listed species' continued existence, or are not likely to destroy or adversely modify its critical habitat. The consultation requirement applies whether or not critical habitat has been designated.

The final rules incorporate many of the changes suggested by more than 70 members of the public, governors, other elected officials and private and public conservation agencies since the rulemaking was proposed in the August 15, 1979 Federal Register. The rules, published in final form in the February 27, 1980, Federal Register, take effect March 28, 1980.

Wildlife Week Is March 16-22

But habitat protection has remained an important and recurring theme. As Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the national wildlife federation, explains: "It's an issue that never goes away. Very simply, without food, water, cover, and a place to raise young — habitat — wildlife cannot survive."

We've come a long way since the Dust Bowl swept across the country, but unfortunately, many of the nation's remaining wildlife habitats are still in danger. For example:

+ The nation once boasted 400,000 square miles of eastern tallgrass prairie, stretching from Minnesota into Texas and as far east as Indiana. Today, only one per cent of those prairies remains.

+ U.S. Soil Conservation Service has estimated that there were originally 127 million acres of wetlands in the lower 48 states. Half of them have been obliterated, and it is estimated that 138,000 acres of wetlands are drained each year.

+ For years, coastal cities have dumped polluting sewage into the biggest wildlife habitat of all — the ocean. For example, more than 130 million cubic feet of sludge are dumped each year into a stretch of ocean south of Long Island and east of New Jersey. Biologists have found that pollutants in the sludge can become concentrated in edible seafood.

+ More than two million acres of ravaged strip-mined land are waiting to be reclaimed. Some 800,000 acres more are mined each year.

"We can't turn back the clock, but with careful planning we can save the nation's remaining wildlife habitats," Kimball emphasized. "We can 'Save A Place For Wildlife'. But we need everyone's help and concern. If you care about wildlife, then you must care about habitat."

Done in full-color, the production is available free-of-charge.

The Twins' film library includes highlight films from past years as well, with World Series and all-star game highlights complete through the 1979 season. These, too, are available to groups without charge.

Habit Change Can Help Weight Loss

Are you always on the lookout for a magic diet, one that will give you quick results with few hassles? If so, you're not alone, state dietitians Gerry Rang and Rebecca Feuling.

For most people successful weight control depends on changing eating habits, Rang explained. "Our focus is not on dieting, which only treats the symptoms," she said. "Rather our emphasis is on improving eating habits through better self-management."

Step 1. Tune in to what you do; become aware of your behavior.

How do you manage your time? How fast do you eat? Where do you eat and what? Do you like yourself?

The answers to these questions are all important factors in analyzing your behavior and its relationship to controlling weight.

For example, draw a diagram of your home, noting all the places where you consume food. Is the number more than one? Cutting calories for you might be a matter of eliminating places where you eat.

Step 2. Be specific in what you want to accomplish; set realistic goals.

Do you want to lose 10 pounds? 20 pounds? Maintain your present weight? On a reasonable weight reduction plan you can expect to lose a pound a week by cutting calories and an additional half pound by increasing physical activity. That means cutting your daily calorie intake by 500 and burning up an extra 250 calories with increased activity.

Few persons stick to a physical activity they don't enjoy so be sure to choose a favorite. A brisk, three-mile walk each day, for example, will do away with 250 calories.

Step 3. Change situations which cause you to eat.

The situations are called "eating cues" and most of us respond to a host of signals besides the familiar growling stomach.

Try limiting your eating to a designated place at home and work. Change your traditional place at the table. Don't associate other activities like reading or watching television with eating. Keep junk foods out of sight, preferably on the highest-hardest-to-reach shelf in your kitchen. Keep leftovers in opaque or colored containers so they won't tempt you when you open the refrigerator door. And don't serve "family style" — again, too tempting.

Step 4. Take things one step at a time; practice new behaviors regularly.

Most of our habits are old friends. Change doesn't happen without systematic practice and fueling suggests starting with time management.

"There's a strong correlation between effective use of time and weight control," Feuling said. "Even the frustration of not getting things done can lead many persons to sit down and eat instead of accomplishing tasks."

Feuling suggests making a "to do" list each morning. She says planned menus and shopping lists are the best was to avoid last minute, often fattening meals. "And don't forget to relax and rest when tired instead of relying on high calorie snacks for energy," she said.

Eating too fast is another habit that adversely affects good weight control. "I'd say 90 per cent of the people we see are speed eaters," Feuling said. "Obviously the faster you eat, the more you can shovel in."

Concentrate on putting the fork down between bites, listening to the conversation at the table and building in delays between courses. Tell yourself, for example, that you won't eat your fruit for five minutes, and then time it.

Step 5. Be good to yourself; learn to reward your accomplishments generously.

Make a list of pleasurable activities (not eating) to use as rewards. "Maybe it's taking a leisurely bubble bath, buying a new plant or calling a friend long-distance," Rang said. "The point is you need to treat yourself for changed habits."

Step 6. Commit yourself to life-long changes.

To do this you have to get rid of your "Mental Monsters," those defessing fears that for most of us food soothes. Whether working with individuals or groups, Feuling encourages persons to focus on the positive elements of their lives. "Start and end each day with five positive thoughts," she said.

Of course weight control also means learning basic nutrition concepts and sometimes information on special subjects such as dietetic foods, convenience foods, nutrition labeling and dining out. Meal planning ideas and food for special occasions are included in United's program as is private consultation with one of the dietitians to design an individualized meal plan, including any special dietary considerations necessary.

Minnesota Outdoors

Feeling the anguish of animals in torment, thrashing wildly to be free of a leg trap, being ripped and torn apart as they thrash about, inflicting additional pain upon themselves in their ignorance as to why this is happening to them in their native habitat — their sanctuary — we can wonder at the trapper's motivations.

Surely no money is worth the pain of animals merely seeking food to survive. No 'policy' of game management can be so demanding that to kill is the only answer. It serves, in my thinking, as an "attitude," proving to me an inherent incompatability between nature and environment purposes; totally inimical to our own beliefs of wildlife management policies. Seeking instead opportunistic reasoning for so-called environmental gains, which in sum tota, seems to us devoid of lofty ideals and solid principles. In our wilderness programs involving trapping as one measure to reduce the population of animals.

Stated more simplistically; we hate trapping. We are not alone with these thoughts.

We learned of a large dog trapped in Eagan by a leg trap who had to be euthanized by the animal warden. Anyone missing their dogs should be alerted to call the animal wardens.

We might also consider the plight of the Bald Eagles near the river bottoms who may be in danger of being trapped. Last year a large white owl was trapped and killed. Many times cats are trapped by the leg traps.

This is because leg trap foods are placed within the trap itself, and any animal or birds seeking foods will enter the trap because of hunger — a normal action in order to survive.

National Wildlife Federation published a booklet recently on the role of trapping and trappers in our modern-day management. It numbers ten pages and questions whether or not to trap; making it an individual decision. The booklet is free. Some exerpts:

"But since man has disrupted the "blanace of nature" that once kept animal populations in check, trapping is a valid and effective method of preventing wildlife over-population," it concludes.

"Some furbearers, such as muskrat and nutria, if left uncontrolled, can multiply to such numbers that they consume all available edible vegetation," the pamphlet points out. "This not only wipes out their own food base, but destroys the habitat of many other animals in their ecosystems."

"Wildlife professionals know that regulated trapping is not a threat to the survival of wildlife," says the pamphlet. "They recognize that habitat destruction and degradation is the real threat."

Wild animals must pay for our misconceptions and ideas while their total existence disappears off of the face of the earth. This can proved by the missing species already gone foreever.

State Eelpout Record Given To Duluth Man

A 14-pound, one-ounce burbot (eelpout) is a state record according to Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials.

The fish was caught February 2 by Leonard Lundeen of Duluth in Deer Lake, Itasca county. Lundeen, who was walleye fishing at the time, had his record eelpout weighed in Deer River before witnesses. His "record fish application" was notarized as prescribed by new rules laid down by the DNR last summer.

The eelpout was 35 inches long with a girth of 21 inches. Richard Sternberg, DNR research biologist, said the state record fish is three ounces off the world record and could be a world record for eight-pound test line if it is accepted by the freshwater fishing hall of fame.

DU Outlook On Waterfowl Is Not Optimistic

Abnormally warm and dry weather patterns which have spread stubbornly across the Canadian prairie provinces since last fall are producing tough spring nesting conditions for northbound ducks and geese according to North America's largest waterfowl conservation organization, Ducks Unlimited.

"We're not implying that things couldn't turn around with some fast-moving, widespread storms through March and early April," said DU executive vice president Dale E. Whitesell. "But we are saying that the below-normal precipitation and above-normal temperatures have resulted in a snowpack which is 25 to 50 per cent less than what might be expected at this time of year.

"Consider the snowpack in terms of spring runoff, and unfortunately it becomes clear that there may, in fact, not be a significant one anywhere in western Canada with the possible exception of parts of Manitoba and north-eastern Saskatchewan."

This area, according to Whitesell — central British Columbia, all of Alberta, most of Saskatchewan and southwestern Manitoba — represents the heart of North America's top-notched waterfowl nesting habitat. It is here that Ducks Unlimited has concentrated much of its restoration and preservation work over the past 43 years, and it will be here that DU's projects, with their stabilized water levels, will be counted upon when waterfowl are unable to find conditions suitable for laying their eggs.

Meanwhile, the nesting outlook for eastern Canada is not causing particular concern, because the evaporation rate in these provinces is much lower than that of the prairies.

"The nasty situation we're confronting this spring," said Whitesell, "is a lack of snow in the mountains combined with the unusually light snow cover from Manitoba to B.C. I'm concerned, because this could even take its toll on our irrigation projects such as those in southern Alberta.

"To give you an idea of their importance, you might recall the feelings of U.S. fish and wildlife service biologists surveying that area in 1977. They told Canadian wildlife service biologists then that were it not for the presence of Ducks Unlimited projects in this region, there simply wouldn't have been any water for the birds."

Whitesell stressed again in closing that heavy, spring storms could indeed improve the dry prairie conditions, but that such storms would have to be severe and generally distributed. "Figure that at this time of year DU (Canada) Biologists would consider a blizzard to be a storm which covers one hundred square miles," said Whitesell. "For a storm to be effective, however, in countering the dry conditions which will greet waterfowl returning to the prairies, it would have to sweep across country covering an area roughly 600 miles by 300 miles. That adds up to an awful lot of territory."

Rules Adopted For Endangered Species List

Final rules for making additions, deletions, and other changes in the U.S. list of endangered and threatened wildlife and plants have been published by the Departments of the Interior and Commerce. The regulations implement the 1978 and 1979 amendments to the endangered species act.

"There final rules explain the procedures both departments follow in listing species and determining critical habitat," said Lynn A. Greenwalt, Director of Interior's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. "They also include expanded opportunity for public participation in our decision making process."

The final regulations spell out the criteria for deciding whether a species qualifies for listing, delisting or reclassification; the procedures for submitting and acting on petitions and emergency rules; and the content of proposed and final regulations. Procedures for periodic review of the list and for considering economic and other impacts associated with critical habitat designations are also outlined.

Opportunity for public participation will be increased by publishing notice of proposed actions in local newspapers and scientific journals; notifying local officials, interested parties, and other government agencies; and holding public meetings in or near the affected area. State governors and foreign governments are also consulted on species that occur under their respective jurisdictions.

"Endangered" means that a species is threatened with extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range. "Threatened" means that the species is likely to become endangered in the foreseeable future.

In order to qualify for listing, a species must be threatened by one or a combination of the following factors: loss of destruction of suitable habitat; disease or predation; commercial, sporting, scientific, or educational activities; inadequate protective laws; or other natural or man-made factors.

Critical habitat designations will be based on the biology and conservation needs of the species, such as space for individual and population growth, cover, shelter, food, water, air, light and other nutritional needs, and sites for breeding, reproduction and rearing of offspring. In the case of plants, this also will include the necessary sites for germination and seed dispersal. Critical habitat proposals will include an economic analysis, indicate activities that might have an adverse effect on the species and consider the impact that such designations might have on the local area involved.

After a species is listed, it is illegal for anyone under the jurisdiction of the United States to take wildlife (but not plants) and to import, export, ship, sell or offer wildlife or plants for sale in interstate or foreign commerce without a federal permit. In addition, federal agencies are required to consult with the services to ensure that actions they authorize, fund, or carry out do not jeopardize a listed species' continued existence, or are not likely to destroy or adversely modify its critical habitat. The consultation requirement applies whether or not critical habitat has been designated.

The final rules incorporate many of the changes suggested by more than 70 members of the public, governors, other elected officials and private and public conservation agencies since the rulemaking was proposed in the August 15, 1979 Federal Register. The rules, published in final form in the February 27, 1980, Federal Register, take effect March 28, 1980.

Beauty," the focus was on aesthetics.

But habitat protection has remained an important and recurring theme. As Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the national wildlife federation, explains: "It's an issue that never goes away. Very simply, without food, water, cover, and a place to raise young — habitat — wildlife cannot survive."

We've come a long way since the Dust Bowl swept across the country, but unfortunately, many of the nation's remaining wildlife habitats are still in danger. For example:

+ The nation once boasted 400,000 square miles of eastern tallgrass prairie, stretching from Minnesota into Texas and as far east as Indiana. Today, only one per cent of those prairies remains.

+ U.S. Soil Conservation Service has estimated that there were originally 127 million acres of wetlands in the lower 48 states. Half of them have been obliterated, and it is estimated that 138,000 acres of wetlands are drained each year.

+ For years, coastal cities have dumped polluting sewage into the biggest wildlife habitat of all — the ocean. For example, more than 130 million cubic feet of sludge are dumped each year into a stretch of ocean south of Long Island and east of New Jersey. Biologists have found that pollutants in the sludge can become concentrated in edible seafood.

+ More than two million acres of ravaged strip-mined land are waiting to be reclaimed. Some 800,000 acres more are mined each year.

"We can't turn back the clock, but with careful planning we can save the nation's remaining wildlife habitats," Kimball emphasized. "We can 'Save A Place For Wildlife'. But we need everyone's help and concern. If you care about wildlife, then you must care about habitat."

Screen actor and environmentalist Robert Redford is serving as chairman of the wildlife week observance for the fourth consecutive year.

Twins Film Is Available For Groups

Minnesota Twins 1979 highlight film is now available for group showing.

Produced by Major League Baseball Productions, the 16mm film runs approximately 26 minutes and reviews the exciting past season, in which Gene Mauch's fine blending of veterans and youngsters took the West Division title race into the final week before dropping off the pace.

The film also features several of the team's individuals who figure prominently in the Twins' 1980 assault on the American League pennant.

Done in full-color, the production is available free-of-charge.

The Twins' film library includes highlight films from past years as well, with World Series and all-star game highlights complete through the 1979 season. These, too, are available to groups without charge.

For further information and reservations, interested parties may contact Wendie Erickson of the Twins' office at (612) 854-4040.

Habit Change Can Help Weight Loss

Are you always on the lookout for a magic diet, one that will give you quick results with few hassles? If so, you're not alone, state dietitians Gerry Rang and Rebecca Feuling.

For most people successful weight control depends on changing eating habits, Rang explained. "Our focus is not on dieting, which only treats the symptoms," she said. "Rather our emphasis is on improving eating habits through better self-management."

Breaking long-established habits takes time, but the following steps can pave the way to successful weight control:

Step 1. Tune in to what you do; become aware of your behavior.

How do you manage your time? How fast do you eat? Where do you eat and what? Do you like yourself?

The answers to these questions are all important factors in analyzing your behavior and its relationship to controlling weight.

For example, draw a diagram of your home, noting all the places where you consume food. Is the number more than one? Cutting calories for you might be a matter of eliminating places where you eat.

Step 2. Be specific in what you want to accomplish; set realistic goals.

Do you want to lose 10 pounds? 20 pounds? Maintain your present weight? On a reasonable weight reduction plan you can expect to lose a pound a week by cutting calories and an additional half pound by increasing physical activity. That means cutting your daily calorie intake by 500 and burning up an extra 250 calories with increased activity.

Few persons stick to a physical activity they don't enjoy so be sure to choose a favorite. A brisk, three-mile walk each day, for example, will do away with 250 calories.

Step 3. Change situations which cause you to eat.

The situations are called "eating cues" and most of us respond to a host of signals besides the familiar growling stomach.

Try limiting your eating to a designated place at home and work. Change your traditional place at the table. Don't associate other activities like reading or watching television with eating. Keep junk foods out of sight, preferably on the highest-hardest-to-reach shelf in your kitchen. Keep leftovers in opaque or colored containers so they won't tempt you when you open the refrigerator door. And don't serve "family style" — again, too tempting.

Step 4. Take things one step at a time; practice new behaviors regularly.

Most of our habits are old friends. Change doesn't happen without systematic practice and Feuling suggests starting with time management.

"There's a strong correlation between effective use of time and weight control," Feuling said. "Even the frustration of not getting things done can lead many persons to sit down and eat instead of accomplishing tasks."

Feuling suggests making a "to do" list each morning. She says planned menus and shopping lists are the best was to avoid last minute, often fattening meals. "And don't forget to relax and rest when tired instead of relying on high calorie snacks for energy," she said.

Eating too fast is another habit that adversely affects good weight control. "I'd say 90 per cent of the people we see are speed eaters," Feuling said. "Obviously the faster you eat, the more you can shovel in."

Concentrate on putting the fork down between bites, listening to the conversation at the table and building in delays between courses. Tell yourself, for example, that you won't eat your fruit for five minutes, and then time it.

Step 5. Be good to yourself; learn to reward your accomplishments generously.

Make a list of pleasurable activities (not eating) to use as rewards. "Maybe it's taking a leisurely bubble bath, buying a new plant or calling a friend long-distance," Rang said. "The point is you need to treat yourself for changed habits."

Step 6. Commit yourself to life-long changes.

To do this you have to get rid of your "Mental Monsters," those defeating fears that for most of us food soothes. Whether working with individuals or groups, Feuling encourages persons to focus on the positive elements of their lives. "Start and end each day with five positive thoughts," she said.

Of course weight control also means learning basic nutrition concepts and sometimes information on special subjects such as dietetic foods, convenience foods, nutrition labeling and dining out. Meal planning ideas and food for special occasions are included in United's program as is private consultation with one of the dietitians to design an individualized meal plan, including any special dietary considerations necessary.

Stanislawski, Pribula Win In Area Contest

Don Stanislawski

Greg Pribula

Area 3 Toastmaster's speech and evaluation contest was held at the Ramada Inn of Grand Forks, ND on Saturday, March 15. Area 3 Governor John Knutson presided as toastmaster.

Winning the speech contest was Donald M. Stanislawski with his speech entitled "Keep On Marching". Others participating in the contest were Dr. Marv Madsen, UMC, Crookston; Don Foss, Hillsboro, ND; and Ken Schultz, Grand Forks, ND. Stanislawski will advance to the District 20 spring conference-speech contest to be held May 2-3 in Alexandria.

Greg Pribula, immediate past president of Northwest Toastmaster's club 1291, was judged the winner of the speech evaluation contest. Pribula evaluated a speech given by Earl Lagro of Grand Forks, ND, and was awarded an evaluation trophy by area governor Knutson.

Northwest Toastmaster's club 1291 meets the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at the chamber of commerce meeting room. Local TM president Lowell Knutson invites all interested individuals to visit the club and become aquainted with the self-help Toastmaster's organization.

Mini-Course In Gardening Set April 26

"Raise Your Own — and Like It" is a series of home gardening and foods mini-courses scheduled in area communities from March 29 through April 28.

Session in Thief River Falls will be conducted April 26 in the Pennington county courthouse basement meeting room from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Topic will be "Techniques for Drying and Using Home-Dried Foods." Food drying, storage and nutritional preparation will be included in this session lead by Marilyn Larson of the North Country Eco-Agriculture center in Minneapolis.

Agassiz environmental education council is sponsoring the public mini-courses. There is no admission charge. For more information contact John Steidl, 681-5593.

Super Skate At 'The Place' March 21-22

Thief River Falls super skate for mental health will begin at 7 p.m. Friday and conclude at 7 p.m. Saturday at "The Place" roller skating rink in Thief River Falls.

Proceeds from the super skate will go to support programs in behalf of mentally ill and emotionally disturbed children and adults in Minnesota. The public is invited to participate for all or any part of the super skate. Pledge sheets are available at "The Place" and most local schools.

"I'm delighted to take part in helping this truly worthwhile cause," said Marcie Kazmierczak, rink owner. "Mental illness has been described by many health experts as our nation's number one health problem".

She added that super skates are a lot of fun and give people the opportunity to become involved in something greater than themselves, and every skater can earn a super-skate iron-on patch and MHA Frisbee, a pair of skates, wheels and skate case through pledges collected.

Rink prizes for the most funds collected at the super skate will include a stereo, 10-speed bike, five AM-FM radios and skating passes. Drawings for prizes and other attractions will be featured.

Sharon Fischer, president of the mental health association, joined in urging citizens to take part in the skate-a-thon as a participant or sponsor. She said "Mental illness affects one in 10 persons. In our struggle against mental illness, we have a task as large as those agencies dealing with heart disease, cancer, muscular dystrophy and tuberculosis combined".

Grain Haulers To Organize An Association

To form a grain haulers association for Minnesota and North Dakota, an organizational meeting with election of directors and officers will be held Friday at 8 p.m. at the Erskine public school gymnasium.

H.G. Almen of Red Lake Falls announced the meeting following a series of informational meetings held throughout the Red river valley area.

"The economic problems of transporting grain to market extend to both sides of the river into North Dakota and Minnesota," Almen said, "and the only way we can deal with them is to develop an active and well-informed association."

Almen said he feels the objectvies of the association would be beneficial to all concerned — including the farmer, merchant and implement dealer in addition to the trucker.

Invited to attend the organizational meeting are farmers, elevator managers, bankers, truckers, legislators, news media and anyone interested in highway and grain movement problems.

Jaycee Jelly Week Sales To Support DAC

Thief River Falls Jaycees are completing plans for their participation in the Minnesota Jaycees state-wide jelly week program, which runs from March 23 to 30. Goal of the jelly week program is to provide financial support to the more than 120,000 retarded children and adults in Minnesota.

The Jaycees have aggressively supported the retarded for the past nine consecutive years through participation in jelly week and its predecessor, honey Sunday.

The 1980 jelly week goal is to sell 156,000 jars of jelly, which will raise nearly $80,000 for numerous regional and local chapter projects aiding the retarded. This year, in response to this program, the Thief River Falls Jaycees have ordered 1,000 jars of jelly for distribution in the Thief River Falls area.

Proceeds from local chapter sales will be donated to the Thief River Falls day activity center, which will use the funds to purchase needed equipment. Equipment purchased by the day activity center with local and regional jelly week donations from 1978 and 1979 include a washer and dryer and garden tractor.

Jelly will be available in a number of local grocery and drug stores in Thief River Falls beginning March 23. For each $1 donation to the jelly week project, supports will receive a 10 oz. jar of jelly. Twenty-five cents from each $1 sale will be retained by the local Jaycees to be donated to the day activity center. An additional 25 cents will be retained by the north region of the Minnesota Jaycees (of which the Thief River Falls Jaycees are a member) to be distributed equally among the nine D.A.C.'s within the region.

On Saturday and Sunday, March 29 and 30, local Jaycees will canvass the community door-to-door to distribute jars of jelly to interested supporters of jelly week. Phone orders for jelly will also be accepted and will be delivered upon request.

he Beheld the city... ...and wept

Today cities have problems involving budgets, bond issues and taxes.

The only large city Jesus knew came in for a dramatic expression of his concern. Through his tears he said of Jerusalem, "If thou hadst known the things which belong unto thy peace, but now they are hid from thine eyes."

Of course, it wasn't a city for whom He wept — it was people. Whether we live in cities, towns, hamlets or villages we sometimes become blind to the spiritual resources on which true peace depends.

In those narrowing days, not long before His Crucifixion, our Lord was thinking about our spiritual vision. The destiny of every family, the life of each community, rests upon our fruitful use of our spiritual opportunities.

Do you go to church faithfully? Every Sunday widens our spiritual horizons!

The Country Wife

Every farm wife should be able to identify with Pat Leimbach who wrote the following column for CA Highlights, publication of an organization known as Communicating for Agriculture. Even the non-farm reader should get a chuckle or two out of the way she handles her dilemma:

When Fred sticks his head in the door and hollers "Honey, are you busy?" well, brace yourself. It's a leading question and you can bet your sweet life it's going to lead you a long way from the morning's agenda.

Make no mistake about it, there is nothing a farm wife does that supercedes in importance what her husband is about.

There's a myth passed from mother to daughter to granddaughter that once-upon-a-time a woman snapped back, "You're doggone right I'm busy," and now ekes out a meager living braiding rugs of plastic breadwrappers at a flea market in the Ozarks. No farm woman, of course, believes she would actually have said that.

When you have assured him that you have nothing to do this morning but trip around in your negligee dusting the plants, he'll come in, lay his grimy gloves on the counter, push back his cap and say. "I want you to run in to town for me." You might as well punch down the bread and shove it in the refrigerator because your morning is shot. You're headed into town for a part, but there's no guarantee that you won't end up in Moline, Illinois.

If the parts man is skulking under the counter when you come struggling in with the "hickey" you want replaced, you may judge that somebody saw you coming. "Oh Lord, it's Clarabelle again."

There is a sort of natural animosity that exists between a farm wife and a parts man. These guys have been sadistically trained to trip you up.

By golly, you'll snap his garter this time. You've got this great big greasy doohickus here wrapped in an old afghan, and you plunk it down smugly on the counter before him. "Want one just like that."

"What kinda' tractor'd it come off of?"

"Well. . .it's red."

"Swell. All our tractors are red."

"The tires come up to about here."

"Lady, that don't tell me nothing. I need a number."

"But I've got the PART right here."

"Don't do no good. They've discontinued that part. Changed it."

"Oh, boy. Maybe you could show me some pictures. I'd know it if I saw it."

"I'll bet." He rummages about in the file and comes out with some brochures. "Any a' them?"

"Oh dear. They all look alike, don't they."

"Maybe if you'd just tell me which side of the tractor it fits on. That'd help."

"Oh sure! The side next to the barn."

"Tell ya what, Lady, why don't you just call your husband and ask him what this thing came off of."

If you're lucky you get Fred on the CB, or you reach a neighbor who sends the feed man out to the place where Fred's got the tractor torn down.

"He told the feed man to tell me to tell you not to forget the bolt," the neighbor adds when the tractor has been identified.

"Oh yes, I want a carriage bolt."

"How long?" says he.

"The exact distance from my knuckle to the end of my thumbmail," you say, as he rolls his eyes heavenward and wonders why he ever gave up his job pumping gas. It seems a perfectly logical measurement to a woman who's accustomed to measuring yard goods from the tip of her nose to the end of her outstretched hand.

"And while I'm in here, I want one of those round things with a hole in it."

"Do you mean a tire? or a rim? or a coulter? or a spacer? or a snap ring? or a washer? or a belt? or a wheel? or. . .just what do you mean, Lady?"

"A wheel, that's it. For the mower. It goes round and round and you put a rope over it."

"Yes, that's right, a pulley."

The longer you stay at this business, the smarter you get. You do learn to go fortified with names and numbers and parts manuals and adjacent parts. If you're really on the ball, you go out and see exactly where and how the old part fits into the scheme of things.

There comes a day when, by golly, you KNOW, you've got it all together. You stride confidently into the dealer's, you look the parts man squarely in the eye and give him the whole nine yards.

"I want a breakaway coupling for a 10-foot hydraulic hose with a ½ inch pipe thread, that fits on a Ford 3000."

But it's no use. These parts men spend their weekends poring through parts books, searching for ways to confound you. They lie sleepless in their beds nights plotting, scheming, dreaming up questions that will defeat you.

"Do you want a male or a female end?"

"I'll tell you what, fella'. Just give me one of each and I'll go home and raise my own."

Comparing The Records

Following editorial is from the Morris Sun:

When President Gerald Ford left office, the annual rate of inflation in this country was 4.8 per cent. Today it soars in the 15-16 per cent range. Ford's administration was characterized by a strong U.S. dollar, low interest rates, and a serious effort to control government spending. After four years of Jimmy Carter, we have a prime interest rate of 17.75 per cent, a huge budget deficit, excessive taxation, and declining faith in the U.S. economy at home and abroad.

President Ford carried out a determined, consistent foreign policy based on a realistic assessment of Soviet objectives. By contrast, it has taken four years for Carter to learn the seriousness of the Soviet threat. American interests throughout the world have suffered tremendously during that time, causing Carter's initial "so what" attitude to be replaced with a vacillating, erratic approach to international affairs which has puzzled, but not deterred the Russians in their quest for global supremacy.

Faced with a Soviet buildup in Cuba, Carter first called the situation "unacceptable", then proceeded to accept it. With regard to Afghanistan, Carter has made threats which the United States does not have the military capabilities to carry out. The president's efforts to induce cooperation among Moslem and European nations to counter Soviet aggression have failed miserably.

The recent grain embargo created great uncertainties about the future of American agriculture and the market for our farm commodities, but it didn't faze the Russians in the least. And the recent reversal of a United Nations vote on Israeli settlements on the West Bank is but one more example of the Carter administration's inability to conduct the nation's affairs. The bungled UN vote has created great resentment toward the U.S. among Arab nations as well as Israel.

Indeed, the Ford years seem like a golden age compared to the economic and international setbacks of Carter's tenure. If Ford is nominated by his party, he is certain to come out on top in any analysis of the records of the two presidents.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Diner: "This food is terrible! I demand to speak with the cook!"

Waiter: "You'll have to wait a few minutes, sir; the cook is out to lunch."

The newly rich housewife decided her home needed a few antique furnishings. "This beautiful vase," said the antique dealer, "is more than 2,000 years old." "Don't give me any of that fast sales talk, buster," the woman retorted. "It's only 1979 now!"

Looking over the back fence, the man saw his neighbor digging in the garden. "What are you burying?" he asked. "Just replacing some of my missing seeds," the neighbor replied. "Seeds!" the man shouted. "That looks like one of my chickens." "It is," the neighbor sighed. "The seeds are all inside."

"Your husband claims he leads a dog's life," the marriage counselor told the wife. "That's true," she said. "He comes in the house with muddy feet, tracks across my clean floors, barks at nothing, growls over his food and makes himself comfortable on my best furniture."

The rookie trying out for the rifle team scored a bullseye on his first shot but his next nine shots didn't leave a mark on the target. Challenged by his coach about "beginner's luck" on the first shot, the rookie replied, "Sorry, coach: I put all the bullets through the same hole."

Today's Question: "If the world keeps getting smaller, how come they keep raising the postal rates?"

Navin Johnson (Steve Martin) is not only rich, he's also just married a beautiful cosmetologist named Marie (Bernadette Peters), in Universal's rags to riches to rags story "The Jerk," now open at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

U.S. Senator
Rudy Boschwitz
reports to Minnesota

Department of Agriculture Should Decide What It Likes and Doesn't

The grain embargo imposed by President Carter has messed up transportation systems by backing up the flow of the commodity to market. And, as a result, farmers have been unable to market their grain, pay back their loans and obtain new money for the 1980 crop year because banks are tight as a drum.

To ease this credit crunch, I introduced legislation to reopen the 1979 loan program on wheat and corn for those farmers who did not participate in 1979 as well as to raise the loan levels. The Senate Agriculture Committee approved the legislation on the same day that I introduced it.

But, the Department of Agriculture didn't like my bill. In fact, just after it was introduced in late February, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said and I quote: "It didn't make sense, economically or politically." And he went on to say "it would be wrong to go back and amend last year's program" and that it would "submarine the whole farm program."

Naturally, I was not pleased with the Secretary's attitude. I felt farmers needed this new loan program to get hard cash to buy seed, fertilizer and supplies for spring planting. But, I was not really prepared for what happened next.

Completely reversing itself, the Agriculture Department came before the Senate Agriculture Committee in early March and asked for authority to open the 1979 loan program to those farmers who did not participate in 1979.

My bill went further than the Agriculture department is proposing, but I wish the Department would get its act together and decide what they like and what they don't like. Their tactic seems to have been to immediately blast my proposal, wait two weeks and then come before the committee with the same type of plan.

I am, of course, pleased that the Secretary of Agriculture has discovered that the program is economically needed and that it is probably politically popular. Unfortunately for the farmer, a lot of valuable time has been lost between the time the Department of Agriculture took shots at my proposal and then contradicted themselves and decided to put the same idea forward.

I will support the proposal by the Department of Agriculture because it is in line with what I proposed although it does not go as far. The legislation I introduced would have opened the 1979 program to non-participants for half their crop and raised the loan rate on corn to $2.30 per bushel for nonparticipants and $2.40 per bushel for participants. On wheat the loan level would go to $2.80 per bushel for non participants and $3.00 per bushel for participants.

However, we could have moved much faster on this help to our farmers had the Department of Agriculture come out in favor of my measure and supported it. By attacking the bill that I introduced and then submitting basically the same type of plan, they have delayed the process. My bill is ready for floor action while their's is just receiving consideration in Committee.

The failure of the Agriculture Department to support the measure early on will result only in suffering for the farmer who is now trying to get financing for his spring crop.

It is my hope that we can get some relief passed through the Senate quickly. Failure to act quickly will result in severe hardship to our farmers who must have financing to begin their field work. The Agriculture Department would have saved everyone a lot of trouble if they would just have gotten their act together and made their decision in favor of the farmer sooner.

I must say that my bill is a stopgap measure. Providing more loan opportunities for the farmer is not going to solve his problem. His problem is that he can't get a decent return for his effort and therefore must keep borrowing money.

Things are beginning to come the farmers way and I will be doing my best to see that the government with its embargos and price depressing policies stays out of the farmers hair.
